IN MEMORIAM

TRAINOR—In loving memory of Mrs. Everett Trainor of South Melville who passed away November 20, 1950.
Always a grieving heartache,
Often a silent tear,
But always a beautiful memory
Of the mother we loved so dear.
Inserted by Mr. Trainor and family.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. D. Coffin wish to thank the doctors, nurses and staff of Prince Edward Island Hospital, the many friends, neighbours and relatives who called. Also those wha sent flowers and messages of sympathy during our sad bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Bowley, Belvedere Ave., wish to thank the Parkdale fire department and their kind neighbors who acted so promptly in extinguishing the fire which threatened the destruction of the warehouse and one of their trucks on Saturday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Bowley regret very much that the mechanic, Mr. Leaman Murl who was working on the truck when it caught fire had a hand severely burned.

We wish to thank all who sent cards and letters of sympathy, during our recent bereavement, in the passing of a son and a brother, Watson Bishop, of Mt. Buchanan.
Signed, Mother, sisters and brothers.

Russia's Ex-Fisheries Mins. Is Still There

OTTAWA (CP)—One-time Soviet fisheries minister A. A. Ishkov apparently hasn't fallen as low in party favor as former Canadian fisheries minister James Sinclair thought.

Mr. Sinclair said in the Commons Nov. 13 he thought Mr. Ishkov, who visited Canada two years ago, was running a fishing plant at Murmansk on the Soviet Arctic coast.

Mr. Sinclair said he prefers the Canadian system of losing his job at the polls "because I am still here and not running a fish plant at Aklavik."

The Soviet news bulletin, published by the Russian embassy here, said Tuesday that Ishkov is "chief of the department of fisheries of Gosplan, U.S.S.SR." He was currently heading a delegation in Oslo, Norway.

The ministry of fisheries and others have been abolished, said an embassy official, but Ishkov holds the same rank as before as chief of state planning.

An official explained that Gosplan means state planning.

"It's not a ministry, but higher," he said.

He said it was a main planning body concerned with planning in all Soviet states.

Letters Pour In For Spot On Space Ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's first manned space ship would be more crowded than a rush-hour bus if everyone who wanted to climb aboard is allowed to.

Bids for the flight are trickling in from Maine to California despite official turndowns and forecasts that any space travel is still years away.

A Vanguard information officer reported Sunday he was received about 30 offers from Americans to go space flying since the Soviets launched dog-carrying Sputnik II early this month.

Project Vanguard is the U.S. government's scientific program for shooting up some baby earth moons.

The volunteers are young and old and in varied walks of life. Some may have tongue-in-cheek, like the Arkansas writer who said he's specially qualified for the first manned satellite—"I've gone around in circles most of my life."

But others seem 100 per cent sincere. And a number obviously figure the first trip could well be jst one way.

A Massachusetts man placed a $1,000,000 price tag on his offer. He said he wanted the money to put his sons through college and provide for his wife.

CONVICT OFFERS TO GO

A 23-year-old Maine convict wrote that although he's due to get out of prison soon, the chances are he can't get ahead in society with a police record. "So therefore I want to volunteer myself for anything that will benefit the people in the future," he said.

An ex-con in Texas said he had no family, so: "I have nothing to lose but my life and what greater way can a man die, but to give his life for his country? Perhaps then and only then will I have truly atoned for my past mistakes."

A letter to "Dear Mr. President" in girlish hand from Akron, Ohio, said:

"There are two of us. One weighs 88 lb. And the other weighs 73. We will gaidy take any chances there will be. Would you please send us your decision."

Man Claims Protection Offered

Giving evidence in his own defence in Queen's County Magistrate's Court Wednesday morning an accused stated that certain R.C.M.P. officers had offered him protection and a reward if he would corroborate with them in their work.

Charged with the unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor (moonshine), the accused a resident of Charlottetown, said that he had been asked to deliver a quantity of shine to a house in the City at a specified time to enable the police to catch this party with the goods.

He stated that he had been promised that he would be allowed to sell liquor without danger of being molested and in addition he was to receive a sum of money in the neighborhood of $125.

On completion of the giving of evidence by the accused, defence counsel J. A. MacDoanld, Q.C., brought up the point of being permitted to introduce a tape recording as part of the defence. Following a brief discussion between the magistrate Gilbert Gaudet, and both counsel the case was further adjourned for one week at which time a decision would be announced.

A female resident of Charlottetown facing a similar charge was remanded until Monday. The accused in this case is also represented by Mr. MacDonald. The Crown Prosecutor in both cases is Gerald Foster.

Charged with the theft of a quantity of meat to the value of fifty dollars a resident of Breadalbane was further remanded for one week. F. A. Large Q.C., is appearing for the accused.

For being intoxicated in a public place an accused from Cambridge was fined twenty dollars and costs or twenty days in Queen's County Jail.

Judge Tricked In Murder Case

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Wily New Guinea villagers helped by a court interpreter, tricked an experienced Supreme Court judge into convicting an innocent man for murder, Australia's House of Representatives was told Wednesday.

Minister for Territories Paul Hasluck told the House the convicted man was recently released after five years in prison and the real offender and the interpreter brought to trial.

After a murder in a remote village, the inhabitants decided that one of their number should take the rap. The man chosen was a consenting party, Hasluck said. He was told he would be freed after five years.

The arrangement tricked the judge, the late Sir Beaumont Phillips—"one of the wisest and most experienced judges" — because the interpreter was a party to it, Hasluck said.

The plot was exposed during an inspection of Madang prison. The prisoner asked: "Isn't it about time I was let out?" He disclosed the conspiracy after he was told he still had a long time to serve.

WINS ATOMS-FOR-PEACE PRIZE

At ceremonies at the U. S. National Academy of Sciences in Washington, 72-year-old physicist Niels Bohr, is seen receiving the first $75,000 atoms-for-peace award from James Rhyne Killian, Jr., at right, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and chairman of the board of trustees of the atoms-with smiling approval is President Eisenhower, who originated the Atoms-For-Peace plan. The award was partly for Dr. Niel's early warning that prompted American scientists to move ahead with uranium research on a crash basis and beat the Germans to the atom bomb. But mostly is was in tribute to his efforts to put the atom to work for mankind's benefit.

Tempers Are Edgy Though Little Rock Is Now Quiet

By RELMAN MORIN

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The echoes of Little Rock are still thundering through the southern states today and authorities everywhere see three major effects on the anguished question of desegregating th schools.

They are:

1. A definite hardening of the determination of many southerners to resist the Supreme Court order. People tell you they were prepared, reluctantly, to accept integration before but now are ready to battle to the bitter end to avoid it. Tempers are edgy. A judge in one city said, "I'm really afraid people would be killed here if they try to push integration at this time."

TIME TO COOL OFF

2. As a result, there is widespread talk of a "cooling off" period. Southerners believe — perhaps wishfully—that Little Rock will cause proponents of integration to postpone new petitions for court orders to enrol Negro children in all-white schools.

3. Prior to Little Rock, most of the pronouncements from the South came from the extremists. The North—hearing little else took this as representative of southern opinion.

Today, other points of view are emerging.

Along with this, there are reports of economic boycotts aimed at the Negro, new state laws to preserve segregation, and much discussion, pro and con, of the desirability of deserting the Democratic party and forming a new one.

BOYCOTT THREAT

The events that swirled around a single high school in Little Rock last September are reflected across the South today in these dissimilar forms:

In Decatur, Ga., a printed leaflet, unsigned, addresses itself to all whites, including doctors and housewives as well as businessmen. It says:

"If you continue to employ EVEN one Negro, you shall be labelled a renegade white. The whites shall buy elsewhere and all friendships shall cease. As we succeed, your business shall fail."

But, in Atlanta, 80 prominent clergymen sign and publish a clear-cut manifesto:

"We believe that all Americans, whether black or white, have a right to the full privileges of first class citizenship . . . God is no respector of persons . . . no policy which seeks to keep any man from developing every capacity of body and mind and of the spirit can be justified in the light of the scripture."

MORE VIOLENCE

In Birmingham, Ala., a Negro is emasculated. In Concord, N.C. the Ku Klux Klan beats up a woman reporter and a male photographer, both white. In Jacksonville, Fla., on the steps of a church where a Negro woman is making a speech, they find a package — a brown doll with a crushed skull, drenched in red ink to simulate blood.

In Augusta, Ga., the segregationist newspaper, Augusta Courier, tells its readers:

"We should have a plan of operation in case we are occupied by the armed forces of the nation and our schools are policed by federal troops . . . U.S. forces can exterminate southern white people but they will never be able to force mixing of races."

But a Mississippi-born newspaper man, Bicknell Eubanks, writes from Dallas:

"Few southerners want a repetition of Little Rock and Nashville. Only those who thrive on dissension and make a career of fostering suspicion and hatred in disturbed communities want more of the violence which has marked the capitals of Arkansas and Tennessee."

So, in many ways, the shadow of Little Rock—especially the use of federal troops to enforce integration there — lies heavily over the Deep South.

WON'T INTEGRATE

What is the future of the public school system?

Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin—who made a speech in Little Rock just before Governor Orval Faubus put the National Guard around Central High School last September—told this reporter:

"The general assembly (legislature) is absolutely adamant that there will be no integration in Georgia. State law permits us to close the schools. They (the federal government) know they can't make us levy a tax to operate a school. There's no necessity for sending troops to a school where the doors are closed."

Segregationist organizations appear to have been given a big lift by Little Rock. Their leaders, in some cases, candidly admit that membership had been dropping off before. Roy V. Harris, president of the State Rights Council in Georgia, claims money and new members are rolling in now. He gave no precise figures.

TO SCHOOL

Zang Gi Hong, a former communist North Korean soldier who fought with the Hungarian freedom fighters in Budapest last year, is seen above, as he arrived in New York to meet Barry Farber, a North Carolina newsman. The 24-year-old Zang, who was in the North Korean army from 1950 to 1954, was sent to study engineering at the University of Budapest in 1954. When the Hungarian uprising erupted, Zang led student groups in the fighting against the Russians. He then escaped to Austria where he met Farber, who was there covering the refugee story. Zang was brought to the U.S. by the International Rescue Committees and will continue his studies at Adelphe university on Long Island.

Blames Tight Money Policies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice Minister Davie Fulton blamed Canada's mounting unemployment Tuesday largely on the tight money policies of the former Liberal government.

He told students at the University of British Columbia the Conservative government is relaxing the tight money restrictions to counter unemployment, but said it would be some months before effects of the move would be noticed.

It would be folly to minimize the employment situation, Mr. Fulton said, but he did not see things as "disastrous."

Easing credit would arrest recession and even reverse it toward a prosperity as great or greater than Canada has ever known.

Mr. Fulton said the worst dangers of inflation have disappeared, but the time is not yet ripe for complete release of credit restrictions.
