In Advanced Years
The strength and pure blood necessary to resist the effects of cold seasons are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla.
"I have for the last 25 years of my life been complaining of a weakness of the lungs and colds in the head, especially in the winter. Last fall I was again attacked. Reading of Hood's Sarsaparilla I was led to try it. I am now taking the fifth bottle with good results. I can positively say that I have not spent a winter as free from coughs or pains and difficult breathing spells for the last 25 years as was last winter. I can lie down and sleep all night without any annoyance from cough or pain in the lungs or asthmatic difficulty." E. M. CHAMBERS, J. P., Cornhill, N. B.

FAMILIAR HYMNS.

"NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE."

Sarah Flowers Adams.

As a garden without a rose, such would be a collection of hymns without this one. About 53 years ago the daughter of an English editor and writer and wife of an English engineer composed a hymn that has undertaken to rival in popularity that magnificent Marseillaise of the church, "Coronation." Her father, Benjamin Flowers, was proprietor of the Cambridge Intelligencer, and trained her literary tastes that early manifested themselves. Her husband's name was William Adams, and she is best known as Sarah Flowers Adams. She was of the Unitarian faith, but all denominations have adopted her inimitable hymn, and it is now incorporated into almost every hymn book exposed for sale. It is sung in nearly every language in which the Bible is read, and is every day accompanying the gospel into "the distant lands that lie beneath the shades of overspreading death." In spirit it is the same as Cowper's "Oh For a Closer Walk With God," and Wesley's "My God, the Spring of All My Joys." It contains the fresh and touching expressions of aspiration after God, and is the best expression of burning desire for more intimate acquaintance with God that can be found in any of our hymns. Intimacy on ANY terms is the language of the hymn.

Ever upward is the song; though a cross be the ladder. Ever upward; though the chariot be the whirlwind. Ever upward; though the pinions be flame.

By the thorny way of deep affliction she had been brought near to God, and her experience was God's answer to the simple prayer which she has embalmed in song,

"Nearer to Thee."

When passing under the rod, she read the experience of Jacob at Bethel, the runaway, the sleep, the dream, the ladder, the angel, the waking, and from that inspiration came the song. The following incident is mentioned in connection with this beautiful hymn: A Christian minister was called to visit a dying lady member of a Unitarian congregation, and was requested not to refer to her denomination. She said, "I was brought up a Unitarian, and taught to take the Old Testament as my guide, and the Unitarian minister still visits me as one of his flock; but the future is very dark to me. I seem to have hold of nothing. I want to be right with God. I want to get at God, but cannot. I think of Him as a father, but He is absent. I try to pray to Him and then I repeat a hymn I learned, 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.' I want to get nearer to my God, that is my desire, any way to get nearer to Him. What shall I do?" "Let the cross raise you," he replied. "Come to your Heavenly Father through Jesus Christ His Son." He read the Gospel of St. John with prayer. St. John led her to see "The Lamb of God Which Taketh Away the Sin of the World," and when she died a few days after it was with this hymn on her lips.

But the hymn had not yet been finished. There was another petition to add, and this was done some time after. Her much-loved sister Eliza, who was as famous for music as Sarah was for poetry, was taken with consumption, and a new experience of sorrow gave the poetess to see another round in the ladder, another mode of transportation, and turning over her old manuscript, as she saw the shadows of coming departure on the countenance of her much-loved sister, she added to the manuscript of her favorite hymn one verse more,

"Or if on joyful wings,"

which stanza was blessedly realized in her own experience two years later, for she closed the earthly pilgrimage while engaged in repeating this last stanza she had written,

"Or if on joyful wings."

The late Mrs. Merriam Grant, one of the people wounded in the Chatsworth disaster, was in the fourth car with her husband. In this car was a party of six young people. In order that they might sit together, Mr. and Mrs. Grant changed seats with a young man and his bride. Their courtesy saved their lives, for the young people were both killed. Mrs. Grant thought this party were concert singers, they were so jolly and sang so well. They could sing, and they laughed and told stories and anticipated the pleasure of the trip until late at night. Then Mrs. Grant composed herself in her chair and covered her face with her handkerchief to go to sleep. Nearly everybody in the car was quiet except the jolly party of six. About this time the young bride was requested to sing "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Something in the desire to sleep and rest recalled the dear old song. The young woman sang and all listened while the train sped on.

As the little gleam of fire appeared far down the track their voices swelled in:

"Yet in my dreams I'd be Nearer, My God, to Thee."

The speed of the train increased down the grade. Again the song swelled:

"There let the way appear, steps unto heaven."

(The way was already in sight.)

"All that thou sendest me in mercy given."

And then, with but a moment of life left for each of them, even when poor Ed. McClintock's hand was giving its last desperate wrench to the engine, the singers sang to their God, Who seemed not to be holding them in the hollow of His hand:

"Angels to beckon me,
Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Enough. It was finished. The engine struck the frail bridge and it sank. The car containing the singers crashed like a bolt of Jove through the two cars in front of it, killing and grinding as a foot kills a worm. In the same instant another car crashed through it and the singers were dead.

Like Other Great Men.

"Who is this Dean Swift they are talking about?" whispered a society lady to Lady Bulwer at a party. "I should so like to invite him to one of my receptions."

"Alas, madam, the dean has done something that has shut him out of society"

"Dear me, you don t say so? What a dreadful thing!" said the lady in a breath. "And what was it?" she added.

"Well, about a hundred years ago he died."

Science Triumphant at Last.

Miller's Emulsisn of Cod Liver Oil is the outcome of the latest scientific researches. There was always a prejudice against taking cod liver oil on account of its disagreeable taste, but Miller's Emulsion is agreeable to the palate, and that is one reason why it has become so popular with the medical fraternity, the hospitals of the country and the households where-ever consumption or lung troubles prevail. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all drug stores.

"Love one another as I have loved you," is God's remedy for all the troubles in this world.

Counterfeits

A few years ago a great discovery was made.

Unprincipled persons are trying to prey upon and dupe people who are led to ask for kidney treatment.

Some of the methods adopted by imitators are as follows:

First—To imitate the size, color and shape of Dodd's Kidney Pills and sell them by count.

Second—To put them up to appear very nearly the same and to be offered at the same price.

Third—To hook on the word "kidney" in naming cathortic pills so as to increase sales of mere physic.

Fourth—To give a name so near to Dodd's that unwary people may be deceived and think they are getting Dodd's.

Look out for such dodges. When you want kidney medicine you want the best. And ought not to be the subject for any trick.

So beware.

There is still a small voice that will tell us wonderful things about the goodness of God, wherever we will listen to it.

AS GENTLE AS WINE.—To drink inferior whiskey is heroic treatment for human ill. Try "Good Scotch Kilty." There is nothing harsh or biting about it. It has that liqueur quality so much desired and so hard to get.

Tore His Flesh in Agony.

"I was troubled with blind itching piles for 20 years; was unable to work, and tore my flesh in agony. United States and Canadian doctors failed to relieve. Chase's Ointment was a God-send. I am a better man than in 20 years, and am able to work every day." Philip Wallace, blacksmith, Iroquois, Ont. Chases's Ointment cures piles, eczema and irritant diseases. Bad Blood Between Them.

The ever-slaving farmer's wife, her delicate sister in the city, suffer more than they care to tell. The dark rings around the eyes, headaches, dizziness, palpitation or rheumatic twinges, betoken a run-down system. The blood is poor, and is a bar to enjoyment of life Scott's Sarsaprilla purifies the blood, strengthens and vitalizes the system, and speedily restores the bloom of health to the cheeks. It cures when all others fail.

DROPPED DEAD!

Suddenly Stricken Down by Heart Disease.

"A sad and sudden death occurred to a well-known citizen on one of the leading streets this morning."

Nearly every large city paper contains daily some such heading. The number of deaths from heart failure is very large, but it is only when they occur in some public and sensational manner that general attention is drawn to them.

Palpitation and fluttering of the heart are common complaints. With the heart itself there is nothing radically wrong. But the system is disorganized, the kidneys and liver are out of order, and the stomach is not in condition to do its work porperly. Between them all, they throw too much responsibility on the heart, and the letter is unable to stand the strain.

A box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills at a cost of 25 cents will regulate the system, purify the blood and make a new person of every sickly man, woman or child.

Dr. Chase's Liver-Kidney Pills may be had from any dealer or from the manufacturers, Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. One pill a dose, one cent a dose.

Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine is [for coughs] and colds. Largest bottle on the market; only 25 cents.

GREAT AGE OF PALMETTO TREES.

Some of Those In Florida Said to be More Than 300 Years Old.

It is a well-known fact that some trees live to a great age, the oak, elm, cedar, hickory, etc., but the palmetto trees of the South, and particularly those along the Indian River, Florida, are really a curiosity for their long life. The older trees are gracefully straight, about forty or fifty feet high, having a diameter of eight to ten inches, and so smooth that they look as if they had been shaved with a carpenter's draw knife up to about three feet of the green spreading fan leaves, which form a top without a single branch.

These trees are said to be from 300 to 500 years old, according to their height, and are so tough that they will bend almost to the ground in a gale of wind, then spring back to their normal position again. Relatives of mine who have resided on the Indian River for the past thirty years say that the trees have not grown more than six feet during that length of time.

A curious fact about the "cabbage palmetto," as it is called, is that it grows only from the top, having a cabbage-like head which, when young, is a palatable food for man or beast, and if a rifle ball were to penetrate the center of it, the tree would die. Any amount of hacking or girdling may be done to the trunk, however, without injury to the tree, as the nourishment from the roots passes through the thickly matted fiber, the entire thickness of the body, to the head at the apex of the tree.

The Rescue From the Wreck.

A thrilling story of German heroism at sea, which goes far to offset some of the reports regarding the loss of the Elbe, comes from Schleswig-Holstein. One stormy morning last week, a fishing village was awakened by a gunshot off the coast. Hastening to the beach, the people saw a ship wrecked on a reef a mile away. The crew were in the rigging. A lifeboat was run out, but Harro, the leader of the crew, was absent. Eight men, however, rowed out to the wreck. The crew were got into the lifeboat, with the exception of one who was lashed high up on a mast. He was half frozen, and as the storm was increasing and the lifeboat overloaded, it was decided that he could not be taken off. When the lifeboat returned to the shore Harro had arrived. He asked whether every one had been saved, and was told that one remained.

"I will fetch him," said Harro. "Will you go with me?"

The men refused, saying that it was impossible.

"Then I will go alone," cried Harro, and sprang into the lifeboat.

At this moment his mother came running down and begged of him not to venture out, reminding him that both his father and his brother Uwe had been drowned. Uwe was his youngest brother, and as he had not been heard from for years he was supposed to be dead.

"For love of me," Harro's mother begged, "don't go!"

"But the man on the wreck," exclaimed Harro. "Are you sure he has no mother to mourn his loss?"

Harro's mother said no more, and her son and four other men went for the wreck, which was now quite under water. The waves were so furious that it was difficult to approach.

At last the lifeboat reached it, and Harro climbed the mast and fetched the half-frozen man down. He was laid in the bottom of the lifeboat, and Harro bent over him and remained so until the boat was so near shore that his voice could be heard. Then he waved his cap and shouted:

"Tell my mother we have saved Uwe!"

Reviving the Husking Bee.

One of the most gratifying things in this much-shouted, long-drawn-out end of the century is the revival of the husking bee. The barn party has struggled hard to get the better of it. "Barn party"—incongruous name—brings to mind a floor nicely polished for dancing to the music of the city orchestra, with no trace of hay or straw and the horses resting in roomy stalls. "Barn party" belongs to the city village, and marks a weak attempt to bring together the old and the new. In "husking bee," there is the odor of the breath of cattle, the light of the jack-o'-lantern, the warmth of the summer sun stowed away in the mows, the dancing of bright eyes, the laughter of red cheeked girls, the gurgle of the cider jug, and withal the itching from the rye-beards that make the dust on the rough board floor. "Husking bees" belong to the country cross-roads and beyond. We know there is a revival of them because almost every one of our state exchanges mentions them in its correspondence, but, unfortunately, not enough attention has yet been given to them in print to make a boom. The nearest it was when it was written of a bee over in East Hartford that it was decided to call all the ears red ears, and "the girls liked it."—Hartford Courant.

As Many Lives as a Cat.

An ordinary dog with an extraordinary record was lost by Mr. George Brooks, of Belleville, Conn., the other day, and a reward that would be large for a big prize winner has been offered for his recovery and restoration. The dog's record is that he has been poisoned four times, run over by wagons twice, badly scalded once, has had a butcher's knife thrust handle-deep into him and was once thrown sixty feet by the pilot of a locomotive. When the engine tossed him his career seemed surely ended. His grave was dug and he was about to be placed in it when somebody noticed one of his ears twitch. Restoratives were applied, he got around, and was soon as frisky as ever. Mr. Brooks is anxious to get his dog back, but the neighbors are even more anxious to know whether he is dead, and, if he is, what could possibly have taken him off at last.—New York Sun.

She Knew It.

Fogg.—Did you hear about young Snodgrass? He has only been married a year, you know, and they tell me he is out nearly all night every night in the week.

Mrs. Fogg.—There! Didn't I always tell you that—

Fogg.—I suppose I ought to mention in palliation of Snodgrass' conduct that he works on a morning newspaper.

Mrs. Fogg.—I suppose you think you're funny; but I don't care. I haven't any doubt that it would be the same way if he didn't have to work nights. Do you know, I have an idea it is to have an excuse to be away nights that induces men to work on morning papers; at any rate, I can't think of any other reason why a sensible man should do it.—Boston Transcript.

NOT WHAT WE SAY, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla Does, that tells the story of its merit and success. Remember HOOD'S Cures.

The London Economist says:—"It is clear that if British South Africa is to obtain its highest political development, and to take the place in the Empire which it deserves, the various colonies and communities which it contains must be federated and united after the model of Canada."
