Europeans Flee Algeria In An Increasing Flow

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—European settlers have begun fleeing to France from Algeria in a flow expected to swell to a torrent as the North African territory becomes independent.

Planes and ships are filled to capacity as the exodus gets under way. The latest ship arriving in Marseille had about 1,000 passengers, more than twice as many as on previous recent trips.

The French government is set to handle 200,000 to 400,000 refugees from Algeria in the next four years out of a European population there estimated at about 1,000,000. Many of the settlers were of Spanish, Italian or Maltese origin.

Because most Frenchmen are revolted by the European Secret Army's terrorist activities in Algeria, the first refugees have been received with coolness in Metropolitan France. Political discussions quickly develop into arguments.

NOTE INDIFFERENCE

A recent arrival from Algiers said: "The people in France seem to be indifferent, but that doesn't surprise us. In their place, I would be like them. You have to have been down here to understand."

Besides the refugees there are government civil servants who will be transferred and assigned to administrative services in France.

Because of a shortage of personnel, the Paris reception centre for Refugees already is overwhelmed. Hundreds of applicants for assistance have had to return several times running before they could be received.

Other reception centres are located in Nice, Marseille, Bordeaux and Toulouse.

The government's efforts to resettle the repatriates is oriented toward giving them housing, providing training so that they can find jobs and supplying subsistence funds during a transition period of up to one year.

He said the Atlanta performance will be to benefit for Rev. Martin Luther King, Negro integrationist.

Later he says will be broken will be those which forbid mixing of white and Negro patrons in a theatre audience; mixing of white and Negro musicians in the pit; mixing white and Negro travellers en route through the state; mixing of white and Negro guests in some hotels.

"And if they hope to stop us, they'll have to arrest every body," he said.

Castro Levels New Attack On Escalante

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro has pictured disgraced Communist Anibal Escalante as having practically set up a new Cuban government before he fell from power.

Escalante, denounced by Castro last March and stripped of his positions, was last reported in Czechoslovakia.

Havana newspapers published new details of charges against Escalante in a speech by Castro before the Matanzas Provincial political committee.

He described Escalante as a man possessed by a ravenous craving for power who has "organized a true parody of government."

Castro said Escalante forced all major administration decisions to pass through his office as organizing secretary of Integrated Revolutionary Organizations, Cuba's provisional political organ. He thus controlled all major government appointments, Castro said, and also attempted to make military appointments.

Survey Looks For Riding To Indicate Voting Trend

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Which of Canada's 263 electoral constituencies is most sensitive to the country-wide trend in federal elections?

Since 1921, Montreal Jacques Cartier-Lasalle has been the infallible election weather - vane. In 11 consecutive elections, from 1921 to 1958, its choice for an MP has been from the party that won the country and formed the government. Four of those elections—1921, 1930, 1935 and 1957—saw a government turnover.

Study of election records back to Confederation in 1867 shows that in 13 elections to 1917 the Montreal constituency sent an opposition member to Parliament six times. Thus it went with the winner 18 times in 24 elections.

It has a chance in the election June 18 to set a record of 12 consecutive choices of a government MP.

Its present string of 11 matches the record set by Richmond-Wolfe in Quebec in a consistent run with the winner from 1867 to 1908. Richmond-Wolfe has elected an opposition MP in only three elections in 24—1911, 1917 and 1957.

NINE WINNERS

Two constituencies — Restigouche - Madawaska in New Brunswick and Marquette in Manitoba—have sided with the national winners in nine consecutive elections, starting in 1926. Ten others are on a string of eight such choices, begun in 1930. Eleven are on seven-straight string from 1935.

Nine constituencies have come out on the government side in every election in which they've voted under their present name and boundaries—two since 1935, two since 1948 and five since 1953. This reckoning doesn't take into account the previous election history of the areas from which the constituencies were formed.

On a province - wide front, Nova Scotia ranks as the most accurate election guide with Quebec a close second. Each has returned a majority of members to the government benches in 19 of the 24 elections since Confederation. Twice Nova Scotia made it a tie—an even choice between national winner and opposition. It took the opposition side only three times. Quebec picked the opposition five times.

ALBERTA BUCKS TREND

Alberta stands at the other end of the scale. In 14 elections since its first vote as a province in 1908 it has gone with the country's choice only three times. Ten times, in a consecutive string from 1921 to 1957, its support went to a minority group in Parliament. Only once did it pick the official Opposition.

Prince Edward Island and Manitoba have chosen the winner in every election since 1926, Nova Scotia since 1930.

Although Marquette now is on a nine-straight run, the constituency once had a decided tendency to buck the trend, returning an opposition MP in seven consecutive elections from 1922 to 1968, starting that string after Sir John A. Macdonald held the seat for a term as Prime Minister.

Marquette's electoral career began with one of the most unusual incidents in Canadian election history—a tie vote in 1871 when an election was called in Manitoba constituencies after the province entered Confederation.

NEVER TOOK SEAT

In those days, a returning officer did not have the authority he now has to cast the deciding vote. The courts ruled that neither candidate could be seated until the Commons election committee dealt with the problem. Before it reached a solution, the House was dissolved for a general election in 1872.

The 10 constituencies that have gone with the country-wide trend since 1930 are: Kings in Prince Edward Island; Cape Breton North and Victoria, Halifax, and Pictou in Nova Scotia; Branch, Essex South, Renfrew North, Simcoe East, Wellington South, and York North in Ontario.

The 11 that have followed the line since 1935 are: Prince, P.E.I.; Antigonish - Guysborough, N.S.; Lotbiniere, Nicolet-Yamaska and St. Hyacinthe-Bagot, Que.; Middlesex West and Toronto Spadina, Ont.; Lisgar and Provencher, Man.; Edmonton West, Alta.; Vancouver Centre, B.C.

Nicolet-Yamaska and Toronto Spadina were established with their present names and boundaries just before the 1935 election and thus have never missed sending a man to the government benches.

ALWAYS WITH WINNER

Parry Sound-Muskoka in Ontario and Portage-Neepawa in Manitoba first voted in their present form in 1949 and since then have been right on target with Liberal members in 1949 and 1953, Conservatives in 1957 and 1958.

Present boundaries of Queens-Lunenburg in Nova Scotia, Glengarry - Prescott, Hamilton South, York Centre, and York-Scarborough in Ontario date from the 1953 election. Each followed the trend with a Liberals in their first vote, Conservatives in 1957 and 1958.

On the other side of the coin Vancouver East has consistently voted against the national winner in seven consecutive elections since establishment in 1935, going CCF Acadia in Alberta and Winnipeg North Centre have picked the opposition nine times in their 10 elections. Montreal Papineau has been on the opposition side four times in four tries, B.C.'s Burnaby-Coquitlam three times in three.

Kennedy Plans Campaign To Aid Medical Care Plan

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy turns up the heat next week in hope of melting some congressional ice off his program for medical care of the aged through social security.

He is scheduled to participate in a Madison square Garden rally in New York May 20—the centrepiece of more than 30 meetings throughout the United States to drum up public support.

The administration's medical care, or King-Anderson bill has been bottled up for a year in a House of Representatives committee. For months now both sides in the controversy have been busy with hard-sell campaigns to spread their message.

Recently Kennedy invited seven leaders of the American Medical Association, which spearheads the opposition, to a White House discussion. Neither the president nor AMA budged an inch.

PROVIDES AMMUNITION

The King-Anderson bill would provide health insurance for the elderly through an increase in social security taxes. Whether it passes or not, it's almost certain to provide campaign ammunition for both sides in next fall's congressional elections. It would affect directly 14,200,000 potential voters.

The bill would provide certain types of medical care for all people 65 or older who are entitled to monthly benefits under the U.S. social security program or railroad retirement systems.

Those eligible would get:

1. In-patient hospital service for up to 90 days—after they have paid the first $10 a day for up to nine days and after they have paid a minimum of $20.

2. Skilled nursing home services for up to 180 days—provided the patient first is treated in a hospital.

3. Out-patient hospital diagnostic study.

4. Home health services for up to 240 visits during a calendar year including intermittent nursing care, therapy and part-time "home-maker" services. Not covered would be physicians' and dentists' fees, the cost of drugs and certain other health items.

The Kerr-Mills Law, in effect since October, 1960, provides a wider range of benefits—including physicians' and dentists' fees—for fewer people than the King-Anderson measure.

Kerr-Mills provides financial aid through federal-state funds for persons 65 and over who do not qualify for old-age assistance yet are unable to pay medical bills.

The states lay down the rules for the program and the federal government pays from 50 to 80 per cent of the cost.

Aid is available only to persons whose incomes do not exceed $1,200 a year or $2,800 for a couple. Recipients are required to pass a means test.

The extent of services varies among participating states and only 23 states have Kerr-Mills programs in effect. The legislatures of a dozen others have them under consideration.

STATES LACK MONEY

Senator Clifton Anderson (Dem. N.M.), co - author with Representative Cecil King (Dem., Calif.) of King-Anderson, says the states "lack the financial capacity to make Kerr-Mills really adequate."

Arguing for the King-Anderson bill, Kennedy contends that the 16,000,000 over 65 "go to the hospital more often and stay longer than their younger neighbors."

"Their annual medical bill is twice that of persons under 65—but their income is only half as high.

"Today, only about half our aged population has a health insurance of any kind — and most of these have insufficient coverage.

"This program, of course, would not interfere in any way with the freedom of choice of doctor, hospital or nurse.

"It would not specify in any way the kind of medical or health care or treatment to be provided."

Opponents, led by the American Medical Association, contend the plan would be a start towards socialized medicine which would endanger professional freedom and lower medical standards.

They also say that King-Anderson would cost $5,400,000,000 annually by 1965, compared with the Kennedy administration's estimate of $2,500,000,000 by 1990.

Some 200 New Jersey doctors, in a protest movement similar to the Saskatchewan controversy over medical care, have signed a declaration saying they will refuse to treat patients under the plan.

The Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons says doctors will provide only emergency service if they are not allowed to practise outside the provincial government's compulsory medical care insurance plan, scheduled to go into effect July 1.
