

A QUEER WOMAN.

BY ANNETTE L. NOBLE.

Continued.

The Fourth meeting was long sought for by Pannel before he obtained it. Evelyn had suddenly become timid and self-conscious, but Pannel was very bold. He found her at last, and in the whole-souled original way, as if they were alone on the earth, this man asked this woman to be his wife. She said 'yes' the first thing—this Evelyn Hopkins who could not make a ruffle or flute, make lemon jellies, oyster patties or sponge cake; she said 'Whither thou goest I will go; thy people shall be my people.' (Shade of Mrs Pendry!) She did not say, however, 'Thy ideas shall be my ideas,' but remarked instead, 'you have some funny notions.'

The blessed pair were altogether Arcadian and—ridiculous. They straightway talked about their marriage.

'How soon can it be, Evelyn?' 'I don't know—must I now be stirred right up in a fuss with dress-makers, clothes and clothes and clothes all fitted on to me, and a horrible party at the last? Let us run away, Pannel!'

'I am a minister. Dear! What would people say?—but couldn't we be married day after to-morrow in church? My mother could get here in time for the ceremony—if she hurried.'

'Yes—yes—yes, really I like that! It is sunset now; they can't make many clothes. I will go right home and tell my mother it is decided.'

'Do, this minute,' said Pannel, then he kissed her twice with a quiet unsanctified sort of a relish and they separated.

'Chaos and old Night!' what a sensation they caused, and how cool and obstinate they were.

'Think of having this about our ears for six months,' whispered Evelyn to Pannel over the gate, next morning.

'It must be excessively wearing, love. How sensible we are to abbreviate it. I fear—I think my mother can't get here.'

'O, that is too bad—and they are getting me plenty of clothes, ready-made ones, so that was all right.'

'All right, of course,' said Pannel, sagely, 'you were born for a minister's wife.'

'I suppose so, if you are the minister.'

The hour came, the bride and groom were ready, Evelyn Hopkins became Mrs. Pannel Pendry, and that ends the first of it.

CHAPTER II.

It was Sunday morning and Evelyn Pendry stood in the door of a new home, having been three years a wife. It was a little cabin nestled under a great rock out the south slope of a lofty mountain. Before her lay the grandest picture on which her eye had ever rested. Beside her sat Pannel bolstered up on a couch. In her arms sat a boy as strong and comely as his mother. Into Evelyn's face had crept much of that Madonna-like sweetness which comes with a pure motherhood, and in her heart was a strength born of earnest love; withal, she had not lost the wilful energy of her girlhood. Pannel had been a kind husband, and was a better preacher now that he had somebody who told him not to repeat his fifthly in his sixthly, and to leave off his very prolix 'one word in conclusion.' But his health had failed and his income with it; therefore one morning Evelyn said: 'I shall take you to California, Colorado, the Rocky Mountains, or wherever the air is best. I have means enough to take us to some mining district; there we will do our utmost and the Lord will provide. If your throat gets better you can preach to the miners; if it don't, I can work myself. I am not a lady. It takes a diamond ring, a camel's-hair shawl, and a weak back to make one now-a-days; I lack all three. Pluck up courage, Pannel, and we'll go West.'

West they went, and West they were on this bright morning when, Evelyn, standing in the door, remarked to the sick man, 'Yes it is a pity! Your first Sunday here, and ever so many miners going to meet down there in the Back Hollow! I thought it would be a splendid chance for you to make a start with them. Bill Stevens said they were a tough lot that had left their manners home with their families, and their morals too, I should judge from his stories. Coming right from the East I thought they would listen to you and may be adopt you as a sort of chaplain,' and Evelyn sighed as she turned from the glorious landscape without, to the invalid within.

The Civic election took place on Monday. All the old Councilors and Mr. Theo. Clark were candidates. The following is the result of the election: David Rogers, Esq., Chairman, no opposition; Thomas Crabbe, 89; David Montgomery, 88; Jacob Schuman, 87; W. P. Baker, 91; Thomas Brehant, 87; Theo. Clark, 79; Jeremiah McArthur, 43.—Journal.

Supreme Court.

On Tuesday last the October term of the Supreme Court was opened at Summerside, Judge Peters presiding. The Judge made a somewhat lengthy address to the Grand Jury, in the course of which he referred, in very appropriate and pathetic terms, to the death of Judge Pope. In concluding his charge he spoke of the melancholy event as one which cast a gloom on the whole community. He described the departed Judge as a man of keen and powerful intellect, who had devoted his whole mind to the due discharge of the duties of his high and honorable position. The loss of such a man, Judge Peters very truly remarked, would be felt not only by his friends and relatives, but by the community at large.

We understand that there is no considerable amount of business to be transacted this term—some nineteen civil cases, most of which were confessed, two appeal cases and one criminal case, composed the docket.

We heard it complained of that there was a number of cases of small debts brought before the Supreme Court this session, which could have been disposed of in the County Court quite as effectively and much more cheaply than in the Supreme Court. The practice of heaping expenses upon small debtors is very much to be deprecated.

The Grand Jury were:—David Rogers, foreman; John S. Gaudet, William Hayward, Archibald M. Wright, Archibald Montgomery, Sylvan H. Arseneaux, R. H. McDonald, John Ramsay, Frederick W. Strong, Benjamin Rogers, James Dalling, Thomas Robins, jr., Wm. Brown, James Silliker, Charles Green, Daniel Woodside, Archibald McIntosh, Joshua Smallman, George Sinclair, Peter McNutt.—Journal.

The Markets.

New York, Oct. 5. Oats are higher—sales 76,000 bush. Mixed Western, 37½@40c; White Western, 40½@42c; White State, 42@43c.

Sugar is firmer—Fair to good Refining, 6½@7½; prime, 7½@7 3-16c.

Lard is firmer at 86.55.

Beef is steady—Extra Mess, $10.25@11.00. Molasses is firm.

Tallow at 6@6 11-16c.

New York, Oct. 7, p. m. Flour is firm and rather quiet, shippers inclined to hold off—No 2, $4.50@5.00.

Wheat is irregular and unsettled, opened a shade over, afterwards reacted and closed 1 cent higher and firm—No 2 Spring, $1.38@1.28½.

Hretroleum is firm; good export enquiry—Crude, 7 cents; Refined, 7½ cents.

Pork is a shade easier—Mess, on the spot, $8.90@8.95.

Freights are steady—Wheat per steamer 9d. Sterling Exchange if dull and weak—Long, $4.81@4.81½; short sight, $4.82½@4.83½.

The St. John Telegraph reports a steady and firm market on choice butter, at 13c. to 14c.; factory cheese, 11 to 12c.; eggs, 13c.; potatoes 90cts. to $1 per bbl. The tendency is strongly towards better prices for almost all kinds of produce. Oats are dull.

SUGARS—Scotch refined is in light supply. Choice white in hhd. 8 to 8½. Good No. 2, 7½ to 7¾c. Redpath's granulated is largely in market. Prices are steady at 9½ to 10c.

TEAS—Several of the fall buyers had pay to the advance of 1d. to 1½d. per lb. asked in London. Prices here are higher, most dealers having advanced rates 2c. to 4c per lb.

TOBACCO—We notice the Montreal factories have advanced the price 1c. per lb. on black, and 1 to 2c. on bright.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.—DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long. I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite cured of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head.

A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unqualified, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper.

Yours truly, W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister. Port Elgin, Ont., Aug. 24, 1878.

Ask for Littlefield's Constitutional Catarrh Remedy and take no other.
