

Amateur Golf Competition Is Seen World-Wide Soon

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
NEW YORK (AP)—With two international golf matches coming up this year, the U.S. Golf association president foresees a time when amateur golf competition will be virtually world-wide.

John D. Ames of Chicago, visiting the USGA headquarters for the first time since his election as president last month, said he could see a trend in that direction although no expansion of international matches now is under consideration.

"Every year we hear of more countries which have good amateur golfers who want to play," he said. "I'd say there's a definite trend toward wider international competition."

The big international matches now are the Walker Cup for men and the Curtis Cup for women—both between the U.S. and Britain—and the six-year-old Americas Cup competition among the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

The Americas Cup will be contested this year at San Francisco just before the U.S. Amateur championship. Ames called it a very successful event so far. American women golfers will try to regain the Curtis Cup from Britain at Brae Burn, near Boston, in August.

SAME RULES EVERYWHERE

"Golf is one game in which the rules are the same the world over," Ames added. "When players from different countries meet, they know they're playing exactly the same game."

The discussion turned to expensive USGA-sponsored experiments with golf balls, which are going into their second year. Ames agreed when ex-president Dick Tufts of Pinehurst, N.C., suggested golf might be a better game if it could be played with the same number of shots on courses 5,500 yards long instead of 7,000.

The problem has been that the top golfers can hit the modern balls too far for the length of the courses they play on. Tests have shown that some can belt a low-compression ball just as far as the high compression pellets.

Double Life Of U. K. Football Player Comes To An End

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP)—The double life of Ray Hancox is at an end. When play resumes in the Football Association's amateur soccer cup competition, Wokingham Town's inside left will be left outside.

Hancox admitted Tuesday night he had helped Wokingham reach the cup quarter-finals, playing under the name of Mike Ashford, and that he modestly refrained from telling his cubmates about his three-year professional career with Crystal Palace of the Football League's third division.

Wokingham promptly suspended Hancox-Ashford and awaited word from the FA, which frowns on participation by former professionals in amateur cup matches. Waiting expectantly in the wings is West Auckland Town, the unimpeachably amateur club Wokingham defeated 4-2 last Saturday with Hancox-Ashford scoring one of the goals. It was West Auckland's protest that unmasked the inside left's shady past.

Hancox explained that the trouble began after he had played two seasons for Dorking, a London area club, and moved on to Chertsey Town early last season, playing under his own name with the FA's permission.

HUNTED NEW CLUB

But Chertsey is a long way from Reading, where Hancox works as a sausage salesman. He decided to find a club closer to home and turned out for Reading Co-op, giving the name of Ashford to avoid embarrassing the FA, which limits its special permits to ex-professionals to one a year.

A Wokingham scout saw him play for Reading and persuaded him to transfer his allegiance.

The trouble began when another Chertsey Palace veteran spotted the sausage salesman in a cup match at Orton Woodseats three weeks ago and decided the face looked familiar. He told officials of the Woodseats club of his suspicions but they decided they had lost fair and square and did nothing about it.

Then the news leaked out to West Auckland and the fat was in the fire.

The Winter Carnival, Mount Allison's first, is being staged on the campus in Sackville from Feb. 13-15. The more than 1000 students of the university, the alumni, and students of other Maritime universities are expected to take part in the three day event. The highlights of this winter extravaganza will include sporting events between Mount Allison and University of New Brunswick and Acadia University of Wolfville, N.S. There will also be the election of the campus queen, snow sculpturing, a variety show, a log-sawing contest, snow shoe races, broom-ball games and a host of other events. The carnival will be climaxed by a gala dance on the final evening, Saturday Feb. 15.

The main purpose of this event is to publicize the giant fund-raising campaign to build Mount Allison a new gymnasium to replace the old temporary structure erected in 1921. (In front of which the queen candidates are posted, above) The students have already made a concerted effort towards the establishment of a gym fund with the raising of $5000. The alumni will be meeting in the near future to consider what their efforts will be in the gymnasium drive.

Sees Canadiens Topping NHL Another Two Years

By BEN OLAN
NEW YORK (AP)—Why are the Montreal Canadiens leading the National Hockey League by 25 points even with so many of their stars on the sidelines? How many years will it be before the other five clubs can match them in player personnel?

General Manager Murray Muzz Patrick, whose New York Rangers are closest to the powerful Canadiens, surveyed the situation Tuesday and came up with these conclusions:

"Montreal will continue to dominate the league for at least two more years," he said. "A lot depends on how much longer some of their older players like Maurice Richard, Doug Harvey and Bert Oleschak can keep going."

"I know that even without some of their top players in the lineup they look almost invincible. But the replacements are not that good.

"You can compare the Canadiens in many ways with the Yankees in baseball. When you rub elbows with guys like Mantle, Berra and DiMaggio you're bound to play better. That's the way it is with Montreal. Several of their men are just mediocre, but they catch fire when they put on a Canadian uniform."

LOSE MANY STARS

The Canadiens have been without the services at various times of Rocket Richard, the league's all-time scoring leader, and Bernie Geoffrion, Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard, three more of the circuit's top point producers. In all, Montreal has had 13 players on the sidelines.

Patrick, who coached the Rangers before moving into the general manager's spot two years ago, believes a sound farm system is the one way to get on even terms with the league-leaders.

"No one is going to give away a good player," he said. "You have to develop them. We now own or have working agreements with 13 minor league and amateur teams. That's as many as Montreal has. More than 50 per cent of our players come up through our system, including Lou Fontinato, Camille Henry and Dean Prentice.

"The other clubs also realize this is the way to do the job. This includes Chicago which has finished in last place the past few years and recently has developed such fine players as Elmer Vasko and Pierre Plante.

"Look at the Detroit Red Wings. They got Gordie Howe from their Saskatoon farm when he was 17 years old. And he was the big reason they won seven straight championships."

Resigns From Badminton Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Cutts, Montreal badminton professional, Wednesday announced his resignation from the Canadian Thomas Cup badminton team, which is to play the United States Feb. 28-March 1.

Cutts quoted Jack Underhill, executive member of the Canadian Badminton Association, as saying association funds don't warrant the cost of sending a coach to Montreal. More than 50 per cent of our players come up through our system, including Lou Fontinato, Camille Henry and Dean Prentice.

"So, to save any embarrassment, I'd sooner resign," Cutts said.

"It's a shame our team can't meet the Americans on an even basis for a change and perhaps win a tie after losing the three previous ones."

Cutts, professional at Montreal Badminton and Squash Club, was named to coach the six-man team six weeks ago.

Meeker Decides He Will Not Take Job At St. John's

T. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The John's Memorial Stadium Commission announced Tuesday that no one man could do the job they wanted me to do. . . . When I first came to St. John's and inquired about the position of hockey coach my first impressions were that the job could be done.

"I am even more convinced than ever that it still can be done, but not by one man."

Meeker suggested the championship senior team this year form the nucleus of the St. John's Capitals—the team to be reinforced by about six players from the rest of the league and then continue into Newfoundland Amateur Hockey Association playoffs.

If the suggestion is acceptable to the senior league and the stadium commission "I shall be happy to stay in St. John's until the seniors have completed their playdowns.

"As to future plans, I intend to come back to St. John's and go into business and hope to always have an interest in hockey and a particular interest in the welfare of the players."

The commission said: "Mr. Meeker has assured the commission of his intention to coach both (senior and junior) all-star teams for the present season."

Richard Hopeful To Play In Week

MONTREAL (CP)—Maurice Richard is hopeful he will be able to return to National Hockey League play in about a week.

"I can't say exactly when; no one can say yet," declared the 26-year-old Montreal Canadiens forward Friday. My foot is improving the time and I am skating better.

"I will practise with the Quebec Montreal Royals next week and if all goes well I may be able to play with Canadiens following week."

Richard suffered a deeply cut laceration on his right foot during game Nov. 12 in Toronto. He said he feels in good shape and is becoming tired after his skating workouts. At the same time he has noticed steady improvement in his condition and is anxious to get back into the game.

There's another thing bothering Maurice Richard. A rumor has been going around that he will be a candidate in the March 31 federal elections.

No, said the Rocket flatly, denying the rumor categorically.
