

4,000,000th Ford Vehicle Rolls Off Line At Oakville

By FORBES RUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor
Ford Motor Company of Canada announces that on Friday its 4,000,000th motor vehicle rolled off its assembly line at Oakville, Ont.

Founded in 1904, production reached a total of 1,000,000 vehicles in 1932; 2,000,000 in 1946; and 3,000,000 in 1954. Thus, while it took 5 years to produce 1,000,000 vehicles, the 4,000,000 mark is taking only an additional eight years.

Chrysler of Canada states that it sold more passenger automobiles in June than in any month since July, 1957. The total was 6,622 units, an increase of more than 33 per cent over June last year. Truck sales of 699 units were more than 19 per cent above June last year.

Electronic Industries Association of Canada says sales of television sets to dealers in the first five months of this year, as reported by association members, totalled 141,758 units, up more than 20 per cent from the same period last year. Chief increases were in portable, table models and three-way combinations. May sales of 21,256 sets were nine per cent ahead of May last year.

SPLITS INCREASE
The Toronto Stock Exchange in a press release, notes that 13 listed companies split their stocks in the first six months of this year, compared with seven in the comparable period last year and 23 in the full year 1961.

Among benefits a company may receive from a stock split, exchange comments are: Greater marketability of the stock; results from a stock split in a share owners; a increase in May last year.

A feature of this solid-masonry house, designed by architects Polson and Munro of Don Mills, Ontario, is the large window area at the front which ensures a well-lighted interior. Inside, a capacious feeling is imparted by an open stairway leading up to the dining and living rooms.
By raising the main floor of the three-bedroom bungalow, the architects have allowed more headroom and window space in the basement arrangement that permits better use of this area for recreational and living facilities. The design is sometimes called a "split-level" entrance house.
The floor area of the house is 1,600 square feet and the exterior dimensions 42 feet by 25 feet. Known as Design 2504, working drawings may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Moncton at minimum cost.

How To Protect Your Home During Vacation Period

Ideas for protecting your home while you're vacationing. When he takes off on vacation, many a home owner unwittingly leaves his house an open invitation for intruders to break in.

How about you? It's a pretty dismal experience to return from the "greatest trip ever" to find your house has been ransacked. There's not only the physical loss of valuables, but usually a mess to clean up, particularly if the intruders find your liquor closet.
Short of a 24-hour armed guard, there's no absolute guarantee your house won't be violated while you're away. But there are many things you can do to minimize this, so you won't suffer the dreadful let-down of returning to a burgled house.

CHECK HOME
Any good police department will truly welcome you notifying them you'll be away, especially if you live in the country where the RCMP are in charge. Patrolling troopers will make a point to stop by, look around and see if everything's as it should be.

Never let the local editor know you're planning a trip. All too often a Society page item like "Bryan family plans August fishing trip in British Columbia" is followed by a front page article: "Bryan family burgled during vacation trip." Travel and society columns are carefully checked for names of those who make a living by breaking into unoccupied houses give these columns very close attention. If they read about a house that will be empty during a certain period, they can plan a profitable visit in your absence. So it's much safer, as far as your own peace of mind is concerned, to have the newspaper item read: "Bryan family returns from Canadian tour."

BUSINESS AS USUAL
As for the house itself, try to maintain an appearance of business-as-usual.
If you make lawn and flower beds normally look well, barbers can arrange to have the grass cut once a week. Saturday is a good day. If snow weathers activity going on.

Needs to say, an overflowing mail box is a dead giveaway. Either have the post office forward all first class mail and hold the rest, or ask a neighbor to collect yours (you'll do the same for him when he goes vacationing).

Cancel all deliveries of newspapers, milk, laundry, diaper services. Many newspapers have services to forward copies to vacation addresses.

If you feel you must leave a key somewhere, as most people do, do not put it under the mat over the door, in the mail box, or any other of the famous places known to all. Leave it with a trusted neighbor. If he'll come over and look around periodically, so much the better.

TRICKS USED
But caution the neighbor about an old-trick: if a purported delivery man shows up with a package for you, the neighbor should not lend the man your key so he can just leave the package inside the door. It only takes a few seconds for him to open the front door, put down the package, then race inside, unlock a back door or window, look the house over and return the key promptly. With that trick, the man has made a fast job of his work.

Admittedly, there are problems about closed doors and darkened house during summer vacations. There are burglar alarms, and lights that automatically go on at dusk and off at dawn, but the latter are quite new and relatively inexpensive.

I have heard of amateur geniuses who rigged up the clock radio and a few lights to turn themselves on at sundown until midnight. The case of using automatic outdoor flood lights.

ADDITIONAL IDEAS
Others may have additional ideas on securing the house's integrity during a vacation absence. But the principle behind these suggestions has been checked out quite successfully. Further, they're readily adaptable to almost any circumstances. So here's hoping you'll find them of help in making your summer vacation's end a return to no more than the usual problems of trying to get down to business again!

Pope Predicts Wide Travel By Successor

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope John said there is a future head of the Roman Catholic Church, which may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Moncton at minimum cost.

Pope John spoke of the precedent - breaking possibility during a special audience in the Vatican's Clementine Hall for 200 members of the Philippine colony in Rome. The Pope had just come from a 30-minute private audience with Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal, Mrs. Macapagal and three of their children.

No pope in the 2,000-year history of the Roman Catholic Church has ever left Europe. No pope in modern times has ever gone farther than Castel Gandolfo, the papal summer residence in the Alban Hills within sight of Rome.

The Pope, turning to one of seven Philippine journalists who came to Italy with the visiting president, said:

"You know that Christ was also a journalist - because he asked so many questions of everyone."

2 British Medical Journals Oppose Sask. Doctor Action

LONDON (CP) - Two authoritative British medical journals - both of which have refused to carry Saskatchewan advertisements for doctors - express their opposition to the withdrawal of services by the province's practitioners.

"Withdrawal organized for political ends, in we think, wrong," says Lancet, an independent weekly.

The publication describes the Saskatchewan doctors' action as "an alien procedure, out of keeping with the character of any profession, and especially that of medicine."

Lancet backs up its editorial attack with the publication for the first time since May of advertisements offered by the province's medical care insurance commission for doctors to fill permanent posts on the Prairies.

The British Medical Journal, the weekly published by the nation's medical association, reminds the Saskatchewan doctors of their obligations under the profession's world code of ethics.

"By the time this week's issue is published, some way out of the present impasse may have been found," says the BMJ.

WILL FOLLOW CODE
"If, however, it continues, we have no doubt that the Canadian doctors will act in accordance with the international code of ethics drawn up by the World Medical Association of which the Canadian Medical Association is such a prominent and active member."

The journal then printed what it considers the most relevant to the Saskatchewan situation:

1. Health is the primary concern of the physician.
2. The physician will not permit religion, nationality, race, party politics or social standing to intervene between his duty to his patient. The doctor must give emergency care as his duty unless he is assured that others are willing and able to give such care.
3. The journal has not yet acted on its decision to refuse the Saskatchewan Medical Care Commission's offers of advertisement space.

Lancet says it originally declined to accept Saskatchewan advertisements because of the feeling that the provincial government was trying to establish a "monopolistic control of all health services."

NOTE CLARIFICATION
"Many of the information since provided, it appears that if a monopoly was intended, it is intended no longer for the medical care commission and the governments have made clear that the private practice of medicine will not be prevented. The publication says, "We see no reason to retract our advertisement..."

"With this assurance, we prefer to continue to publish their advertisements..."
The publication says Saskatchewan advocates of withdrawing services may feel that by evoking these explanations or (perhaps) changes of government policy their action has succeeded.

"But it was not the only possible means of attaining their end; and against their success must be set some damage done to the profession not only in Saskatchewan but elsewhere."
The journal also deplored U.S. criticism of the British national health service and said it was "tempted" to distract attention from the weakness of American medicine."

Rain In Needed In Sask., Alta.
OTTAWA (CP) - Rain is urgently needed over the plains areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta because of insufficient rain and lack of moisture reserves, it said.
The Bureau report was the sixth in a series of 13 issued on Prairie crop conditions and is based on telegraphic information dispatched up to Tuesday night by field correspondents.
