Council not apes

depicts student council executives as primates. There were two abstentions to the motion against Antal.

Eric Luckacs, student vice-president internal, who presented the motion, said, "I'm sick and tired of having things appearing ... and having this organization sponsoring Robert Antal's personal philosophies."

Nancy Kenwood, student vice-president finance, said she objected to being portrayed in the video as an orangutan. "Cute", she conceded, "but we don't want the school to think we are a bunch of monkeys." Another executive Jill Barker, is shown as an ape.

Antal said the video should be shown because council money has already been spent on it, and said he did not think students would confuse his opinions with council views.

"I'm the primary spokesperson of the student union, not to speak is insulting ... What you're doing is defying my role as president."

Mary-Liz Wiley, student vice-president academic, said she expected the video to familiarize students with the functions of the executive and the role of the student union, and was disappointed with the results.

BC students besiege bridge

VANCOUVER (CUP) — Vancouver commuters heading for the city centre got an early morning message March 19 — B.C. students are fed up with education cutbacks.

education disintegrating before their eyes," she says.

CFS-Pacific is also organizing a postcard campaign urging the government to restore the funding losses and threatening it with the loss of students' votes in the next election. CFS-Pacific hopes hundreds of students mail in the cards to the Victoria legislature.

Hundreds of Langara, Douglas and Kwantlen College students walked along several Vancouver bridges to show the province their anger over the onslaught of funding cuts that have hit B.C.'s post-secondary system. The latest B.C. budget reduced university and college funding by five per cent.

The students carried signs demanding increased education funding and asked passing drivers to honk in support. Later in the day more than 1,000 rallied at the Langara campus.

The bridge protests were part of a province-wide day of concern for education. Students from more than a dozen B.C. colleges throughout the province also swamped the offices of premier Bill Bennett and the education and universities ministers with calls complaining about education underfunding.

Donna Morgan, executive officer of the Pacific wing of the Canadian Federation of Students, says students are becoming more active as the B.C. government's policies hit home in the form of staff layoffs and program cuts.

"The cuts are happening so fast people can see the

To those who appreciate hair

Have you seen the hair styles of 1985 around UPEI? Well, Business student and ex-Engineer RON HATELY is currently modelling the latest in hair fashions.

Believe it or not, Ron has gotten a soft and very curly PERM!

It's guaranteed not to blow in the wind as you ski or fall down the slopes at Brookvale, as you play squash, or even broomball (what an athlete!)

Ron also attests that it is very easy to manage. Once tube of gel per day will hold it in place.

If you would (and you should) like to see Ron model his "stuff", he can be found in the Business Lounge, at the Fish Bowl, or at pubs with his trusty Accounting book.

He will be glad to give you more information on costs, specific gels to use, and so on.
