Sex Crime Accused Enters Not Guilty Plea

SUMMERSIDE — A Lennox Island youth, Joseph Lee Bernard, appeared before Magistrate W. Chester S. MacDonald in Prince County Court yesterday on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to commit an indictable offence.

The accused elected trial before magistrate and no plea was taken. He was remanded until Tuesday for trial. The charge arose from a break into the Lennox Island School.

Donald Russell Broom of McNeills Mills yesterday changed an earlier plea of guilty to one of "not guilty" on a charge of having unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl under 14.

The accused had elected to be tried by a judge without a jury. His case was also adjourned to March 15 with bail of $5,000 consisting of two $1,500 sureties.

The charges of creating a disturbance in a public place by fighting against Donald Elwood Holmes, Kensington, and brothers Lester and John Sutherland "Junior" Montgomery were dismissed by Magistrate MacDonald following the testimony of Vernon Reeves.

All three men had entered pleas of not guilty at an earlier hearing.

A resident of South Rustico, Robert L. Buntain, was fined $50 and costs or 30 days for exceeding the weight restrictions by 3-650 pounds. The accused was warned that if caught again he would be fined much heavier.

Appearing on similar charges, Lorne Charles Campbell of Beque was fined $20 and costs and Everett Joseph Muttart of North Carleton, $10 and costs.

For failing to yield when entering onto a highway, Joseph Albert Gallant of Richmond was fined $10 and costs.

Lorne Sterling Ramsay of Kensington was fined $10 and Extension Dept. Suggested For Tignish Regional High

TIGNISH — Adult education classes opened at Tignish Regional High School Tuesday evening for the fourth winter, with a good attendance. Rev. Clare MacDonald opened the classes with prayer.

Wilson Shea, one of the teachers, was chairman and described the seven lessons in Leadership that will be followed.

Sister Saint Mary Arnold, high school principal, said it was appropriate that this adult education should be launched in education week. She spoke on the changes in the education field saying people must be interested in training themselves, so they can take their rightful place in communicating their ideas.

Having an extension department set up in the high school proposed by the principal, was discussed and met with outstanding approval. Several of the speakers thought this would be a great advantage for holding short courses for the fishermen and farmers. Other training mentioned was in the field of Red Cross services, and home management.

Officers nominated to the extension board were: chairman, Rev. Clare MacDonald; Sister Saint Mary Arnold; Gregory McInnis; Everett Broderick, and Wilson Shea.

Adult courses will be held regularly each week. Hope was expressed that many will take advantage of this leadership course for the "good of the community."

Membership Drive Planned By AY Group

The promotion of Allied Youth work on Prince Edward Island was discussed at a recent meeting of the Mt. Allison Allied Youth Club. The club decided that a membership drive was necessary if the Allied Youth work was to continue in that area.

Jerry Buell, president, announced the organization of a program committee and it was decided to hold a debate at the next meeting. The treasurer's report showed a slight drop in finances, but the new member campaign would bring needed income into the club, it was stated.

MANY HUNTERS DISAPPOINTED

Hunt Ends For Aerial Sealers As Quota On Young Pelts Met

By FRANK WEEKS

Alberton Bureau The Guardian The seal hunt is over for young seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence but the people of Tignish and Alberton areas will long remember the aerial activity and general excitement connected with this year's chase.

About 30 planes and helicopters operated from Tignish yesterday and nine planes and two helicopters were landing at Montrose Bridge. In all 15 sealing groups were in the West Prince area during the hunt.

Word was received about three o'clock yesterday afternoon that the 50,000 quota of young seals was in sight and sealing activity would cease when the day ended.

The pace of the hunt seemed to quicken as darkness neared. Planes landed, unloaded and departed at full speed for the herd which remained pretty much in the same position off North Cape since the season opened Monday.

BEST LANDINGS

Yesterday's landings were considered the best in the four-day hunt. Overcast skies, light wind and high tide throughout the day. About 1,500 pelts were landed at Montrose bridge and from three to four times as many at Tignish Run. Highest landings were reported by experienced sealing groups which carried out advance air patrols to locate the near before the season opened and had men and materials in readiness for the opening morning.

Groups from the Seven Islands and Quebec which arrived on Tuesday were unable to obtain aviation fuel and were only in action for one day with resulting small catches.

Among the groups were the Alberton Sealing Co., the Delaney Bros. from the Magdalen Islands, Glen Matthews and pilot Robert Melville from Alberton, Jack Bond from Charlottetown and Phillip Kinch from Alberton South.

LOST IN FIRE

Two hunters, Alton MacDonald and Lee Alward, lost all their personal belongings when their tent was destroyed by fire while they were out on the sealing grounds. The fire was thought to have started from a heater left burning. The Tignish Fire department was at the scene.

Throughout the four-day chase only one plane was damaged when it went through the top ice at Tignish run. Fine weather, except for Wednesday when planes were grounded, helped the sealers but planes taking part this year were reported to be in top condition and crews for the most part had past experience at sealing from the air.

The federal department of fisheries is maintaining its inspections at all drop sites and ice patrols will be continued by helicopter. Planes will be permitted to bring in some pelts that are still out on the ice but will not be permitted to carry hunters with knives.

The season for adult seals is still open after they leave the breeding patches usually about March 20 and continue until April 26.

Land based hunters are permitted to walk out and bring in young seals in the event the herds come close enough to the shore. But machines cannot be used.

Seminars Set On Rural Development

Rural development and their possible solutions will be discussed at two seminars in the province later this month in Alberton and Charlottetown.

Provincial research director Reid Sangster said yesterday the seminars will be conducted by Alex Sim, a consultant for the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Administration.

The first seminar is scheduled for March 18 and 19 in Alberton and will involve resource development leaders for the Tignish, Alberton, O'Leary areas. The second seminar is scheduled for Charlottetown on March 22 and 23.

Mr. Sangster said emphasis will be put on having people organize and operate their own rural development programs.

Overweight Vehicle Cases

Justice of the Peace Albert Dinnis was faced with five cases of trucks operating on highways while overweight yesterday morning in traffic court, and each violator was fined $5 and costs.

Those fined were: Irving Oil Company, Charlottetown, Pearly Sealing Drake, Vernon; Joseph MacCarville, Parkdale; and Frank MacEachren, Mt. Allison, and William Owen MacRae, Bonshaw.

Tillman Joseph Arsenault of Summerside was fined $10 and costs for not dimming his headlights.

Garfield MacFadyen, Bonshaw, was fined $10 and costs for allowing an unlicensed driver to operate a motor vehicle on the highway.

James Joseph Cumiskey, Charlottetown, was fined $10 and costs for operating a motor vehicle with inefficient equipment.

Mrs. Ernest Crane of Mt. Stewart was fined $10 and costs for operating a motor vehicle without a licence.

Island Communities Featured In Hour Film

The Centennial activities of Prince Edward Island have been recorded on film and will be presented in an hour-long presentation entitled "The Hundredth Summer". The program will be seen on the CBC network Sunday afternoon, March 28 at 2 p.m.

This film was done in color by the National Film Board on a commission from the National Centennial Committee. The one-hour color film is to be made available to communities across Canada, to assist them and to give them ideas on how to plan their celebrations for the 1967 Centennial.

The fact that this film is being shown on the CBC coast to coast network, coupled with the fact that it was only recently another film on the Confederation Centre was seen coast to coast point out the success of the Centennial Celebrations here last summer is being appreciated by the people in the rest of Canada.

The film while showing the "big moments" of last summer, concentrates on the plans and projects of three island villages: Miscouche, Victoria and North Rustico.

It was here that producer, John Howe, and director, Teresa MacIntyre - Pilgale, felt they found the heart of the Centennial. Nothing was staged for the cameras. The film crews attended the celebrations and recorded the events as they came off. Often they were hampered in their task by overcast skies and people running in front of their cameras. They shot thousands and thousands of feet of film, in order to get the best possible presentation.

It is believed the original plan called for a half-hour film only, but a press release from the National Film Board Thursday indicated the film is an hour long.

Included in the film are shots of the various parades, the sky-divers, majorettes, etc. Also recorded were such events as the blessing of the fishing boats at North Rustico, High-
