Goodyear Announces New Snow Tire For Passenger Cars

A new snow tire for passenger cars has been announced by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Canada. Called the "Suburbanite," the tire is designed for motorists who live in cities and suburbs and whose winter driving is often plagued by snow and ice.

"The Suburbanite is a radically different snow and ice tire," says H. G. Harper Jr., Goodyear vice-president in charge of sales. "The tread is wider and flatter, putting more rubber on the road. The furrowed flexible cleats clean out snow and prevent packed snow from filling up the tread. It has positive reverse traction."

"The Suburbanite is a natural outgrowth of research efforts to develop a tire which is more effective against the hazards of winter driving and at the same time satisfactory for use on bare roads," he said.

Traction on packed snow and ice is the Suburbanite's outstanding quality. A series of tests have shown that the tire has traction and stopping characteristics up to nearly twice that of the conventional tire tread. Goodyear engineers claim. They further state that the improvements have provided a softer, smoother and quieter ride than that previously experienced from mud and snow tires, which have had a tendency to produce a somewhat annoying and noisy vibration.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

POPULAR BREEDING COUNTRY

Already, at this early date, some birds now holidaying in the south are thinking seriously of starting on their long journey back to us. Why should they leave a pleasant climate, travel for weeks with many hardships, and arrive here before the summer sun has had a chance to warm the air? Why should Canada be a favourite nesting ground? Much thought has been given to these questions by experienced ornithologists, and as a result we have several answers.

First of all, to many species Canada is home; they were born here. Their autumn departure was a necessity, because after the nesting period there were many more mouths to feed, yet there was less food than before, and, as it dwindled, the hours of daylight dwindled too, so that marketing became difficult. As soon as return is made possible, the migrants wish to take advantage of the lengthening days of spring in the north.

Last autumn there was plenty of food in the south when the coming of migrants boosted population. But a year-round residence there for all the birds (both those that never come to Canada, and our migrants), would over-tax the food supply, especially after the breeding season. And if all nesting took place in the south, imagine the overcrowding! Southern residents must be delighted when, in spring, our birds leave them in peace, with all the food and nesting sites for themselves. Our friends are assured of plenty of space in the north, spreading out east and west.

Hardy species arrive when our Canadian winter has barely passed: Crows and some of the Ducks as early as February. Then come Killdeer, Plovers, Tree Swallows, Robins, and Bluebirds in March, followed by Herons, Hawks, Mourning Doves, Kingfishers, Phoebe, Meadowlarks, and many kinds of Sparrows before April is out.

By the time the migrants have returned to us, conditions here will be improving. The food supply will be on the upward trend; ice leaving the water so that fish are again available for those that prefer that diet, more little animals running around to satisfy the appetites of the flesh eaters, insects beginning to fly about to feed insectivorous birds, an increase of vegetation to suit seed eaters. Meanwhile the birds will be mating, nest building, and hatching the eggs. Once the young emerge from their shells, nature will have a northern store house packed with good things for the large families. Do all Owls sound alike?

Sawchuk Gets Tenth Shutout Of N.H.L. Season

CHICAGO, Jan. 27—(CP)—Terry Sawchuk got his 10th shutout of the National Hockey League season today as Detroit Red Wings defeated Chicago Black Hawks 2-0.

The second matinee appearance of the Hawks attracted 13,904 fans, setting a season record crowd.

The first score came at 2:35 of the third period when Metro Prystal converted Marty Pavelich's pass into a smart 15-footer from the side that whizzed past Harry Lumley into a corner of the nets.

Then, with 33 seconds to go Lumley was taken out of the Hawk nets. The manoeuvre backfired because at 19:40, Ted Lindsay grabbed a loose puck, skated in on the unprotected net and from inside the blue line hit for the goal.

Sawchuk handled only 22 saves against 33 for Lumley.
