Heavy Program Expected When Commons Resumes

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — When the country's law-makers end their Christmas recess Feb. 16, they'll come back to a session of Parliament which to all intents and purposes will be just like a brand new one.

The work left unfinished on the Commons order paper at adjournment Dec. 18 reads like the legislative program for a full new session, without the government having to add anything to it during the recess.

But one of the reasons given by House leader George McIlraith for adjourning to mid-February was to give the government time to prepare its legislation for parliamentary debate. There are few occasions on record when a government has admitted, even by implication, that its legislation isn't ready for the Commons.

One of the measures the government was not prepared to go ahead with before Christmas was the Labor Standards Bill introduced by Labor Minister MacEachen. It was to set a minimum wage of $1.25 an hour and maximum work week rules for industries under federal labor jurisdiction

BILL CRITICIZED

The bill, after its introduction last fall, ran into criticism from both management and labor spokesmen. Mr. McIlraith said the government will make some amendments to the bill, but hasn't reached a decision on other possible amendments.

There are 34 other pieces of legislation and resolutions on the Commons order paper which, presumably, the Commons will be expected to deal with on its return to work.

From everything that was said in the final hours before adjournment, the government intends to carry on the 1964 session—by far the longest already—into 1965 without prorogation or dissolving Parliament for a general election.

Among the items left unfinished is the Canada Pension Plan, to be studied during the recess by a joint committee of the Commons and Senate. Also on the list is a revision of the Companies Act, an increase in first-class postal rates, a far-reaching overhaul of railway legislation, and inquiries into the penitentiaries service and the Prairie Farm Assistance Administration.

Included in the list, too, are some hard-to-crack chestnuts which the government doesn't want to drop, but which are certain to run into lengthy debate.

CONSIDER TARIFFS

Among these are tariffs on foreign periodicals, reform of the Senate, amendments to the Corporations and Labor Unions Returns Act, establishment of a new rural development department, committees, and the opting-out ment, changes in Commons rules affecting parliamentary committees, and the opting-out formula for provinces wanting to quit federal-provincial projects.

In addition, there is statute law revision, approval of Geneva conventions, amendments to United Nations privileges and immunities, extension of coal subsidies, changes in national parks legislation, extensive changes in laws governing insurance, trust and similar companies, and the regular 10-year revision of the Bank Act.

During the eight-week recess, the government is almost bound to be confronted with other problems requiring legislative action—not counting any new legislative proposals it wishes to make as part of its long-range program.

Take By Canadian Fishermen Richest For Several Years

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — With demand and prices running high, Canadian commercial fishermen in general this year cashed in some of their richest hauls in years.

Biggest boom was on the Atlantic coast, the fisheries department says in a view of the spring and summer catches and markets. Up to the end of August fishermen's gross income was nearly $39,000,000—up 30 per cent from the 1959-63 average.

The Maritime fish-freezing industry surged ahead. By the end of August its 1964 output of frozen sea fish — excluding shellfish—was up 16 per cent. Sales were so good that stocks fell 18 per cent. Exports of cod blocks alone rose by more than $3,000,000.

To meet these needs, groundfishing was "urgently pushed," the department reported. The catch rose by 23,000,000 pounds and the bulk of the increase was landed by the big, modern new trawlers built in the last two or three years. The first steel draggers built in Nova Scotia got into production.

The Maritime lobster catch last spring and summer was about 26,000,000 pounds, 1,000,000 less than last year. But prices have risen so much in the face of growing demand that the lobstermen's gross earnings were $2,000,000 higher and many reported the most ever had.

HERRING GLUTTED

The profitable season they have

Large herring were so plentiful that the market was glutted. The smoke houses, turning out kippers, were overflowing even though the new Lunenburg, N.S., plant rushed its smoking facilities into use. The herring run off Shelburne, N.S., was the biggest in living memory. But the glut was so great that by the end of the summer the fishermen had to dump their catches and take up their nets.

Small herring, however, were in short supply and the sardine canneries operated only intermittently through the season.

In British Columbia, by the end of summer the fishermen had pocketed $38,000,000, about $8,000,000 more than the 1959-63 average for the first seven months of the year. The salmon catch accounted for most of the gain. Sockeye landings on the Skeena were twice the predicted figure and nearly set a record.

The inland fisheries were not so bright. Said the department: "Fears have been expressed that pollution may have passed the point of no return in Lake Erie, which yields heavier catches to Canadian fishermen than any other lake."

The lake trout and whitefish have certainly departed. The smelts remain and demand is high, raising prices. Ontario fishermen this year had a smelt catch that was down by 27 per cent in volume from last year. But their earnings were about the same.

Sask. Reaches Oil Milestone

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's oil wells Monday produced their 500,000,000th barrel of crude oil, marking a significant milestone in the petroleum industry.

The half-billion total is the accumulated quantity that has been produced since the start was made in Saskatchewan in 1940, when 331 barrels were produced.

The total also means that just over 80,000,000 barrels were produced in 1964, a record total for any year with a further record annual increase of about 10,000,000 barrels over the 1963 production.

CHINA PROTESTS

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China protested to India Monday against what it called "recent intrusions by three Indian aircraft into China's air space" inside Tibet, Sinkiang and Szechwan province. It said the intrusion lasted about three hours.

Opening lead — Jack of diamonds.

The term "endplay" is a misnomer in bridge, since an endplay need not occur near the end of a hand but may well take place in the middle or even at the beginning of a hand.

The endplay is one of the best methods available to declarer for gaining a trick he might otherwise have to lose. It occurs when declarer throws a defender into the lead at the right moment and thereby forces that defender to make a trick - losing return.

Sometimes declarer must lay the groundwork for the eventual endplay, but at other times declarer finds that nature has performed this chore for him. Here is a case where declarer, near the start of the hand, found a situation practically ready-made for an endplay.

West led a diamond. South took it with the king and played the ace of hearts, West showing out. Had both defenders followed suit, the contract would automatically have been made by drawing another round of trumps and leading the queen of clubs.

But when West showed out, South had to watch his step. He stopped drawing trumps in order to effect an endplay. He first cashed the ace of diamonds and then led the queen of clubs.

East was forced to take the ace, but could not make a return that would defeat the contract. When he led back a trump, South was able to win in dummy, he then discarded a spade on the king of clubs and thus made four hearts.

If South had not cashed the second diamond trick before leading the queen of clubs, he would have gone down. East would have taken the club and returned a diamond, and South would then have had to lose three spade tricks regardless of how he played.

The outcome would have been the same if it had developed that West had the ace of clubs. Any play he made after taking the ace would have limited South to two spade losers.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
