Prince Edward

Dark Angel" At Prince Edward

A love story so magnificent and compelling that the audience sat hushed for a full minute after the final fadeout before breaking out into tumultuous applause unfolded on the screen at the Prince Edward Theatre last evening . The film was "The Dark Angel," "The Dark Angel and the chief actors in the powerful and gripping romantic drama were Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall. None has ever been cast to better advantage.

Merle, delightful in her widely publicized new personality, shorn of the exoticism and mystery of her former roles, plays Kitty Vane, a sweet, young English girl, who since child-hood has been loved by one boy, Gerald (Marshall), while she loves his cousin, Alan (March). Months in the trenches bring to Alan a realization of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he confesses his love but their ecstatic plans to marry on the morrow are shattered by a sudden order cancelling all leaves. They swear the marriage vows to each other and next morning Alan returns to the trenches.

Alan is reported killed, and the story proceeds to a powerful emotional climax and ends on a beautiful, heart-gripping note.

Magnificently acted, handsomely mounted and brilliantly directed, "The Dark Angel," which Lillian Hellman and Mordaunt Shairp dented from a play by Guy Bolton, stands out as one of the finest and most entertaining films in many a cinema season. The supporting cast, including Janet Beecher, John Halliday, Henrietta Crosman, Frieda Inescort, Claude Allister, George Breakstone, Fay Chaldecott, Cora Sue Collins and others, is excellent.

The Capitol

Edward Arnold At Capitol

We recently finished reading of Nero Wolf's exciting forays in crime detection in Rex Stout's latest mystery yarn, "Fer de Lance," and ventured the guess that the portly detective would soon be released from the confines of black type to vent his genius in the real, shadow world of the screen.

We guessed right. At the Capitol Theatre, yesterday, Nero Wolfe, was introduced to his millions of magazine admirers and to the countless others who have never made his acquaintance in the person of Edward Arnold. Appropriately, the title of the new film, based on the aforementioned "For de Lance," is "Meet Nero Wolfe."

In the capable hands of Arnold, Wolfe comes to life as a lovable, genuinely brilliant criminologist. Surrounded by his orchids and beer he delves into the mystery cloaking a series of murders and by sheer analysis unwinds the tortured threads of drama and suspense to reveal the dramatic story of intrigue and murder.

Sharing the spotlight with Arnold is Lionel Stander, as Archie Goodwin, Wolfe's indomitable aids-de-camp. He acts as his master's arms, legs and eyes while Wolfe stays at home nursing his flowers. Stander as usual, contributes a splendid performance, providing many of the high spots in the film's numerous comedy moments.

Supporting roles are capably portrayed by Victor Jory, Joan Perry, Nana Bryant, John Qualen, Russell Hardie and Dennie Moore.

WOLF AND DOG FORM HUNTING ALLIANCE

(By The Canadian Press)

KEDGWICK, N. B., Aug 28—A huge gray wolf, accompanied by a half-wolf dog, is roaming the wilds of northern New Brunswick and Quebec, woodsmen claim.

Edmond Pinault, a registered guide declared he saw the animals near the Restigouche river. David Ogilvy, sportsman, guide and veteran trapper, expressed an opinion the wolf had become separated from its kind north of the St. Lawrence by the early break-up of ice last spring and had sought seclusion in the New Brunswick game reserve north of the Restigouche. Undoubtles the wolf had formed a comradeship [illegible] thought.

Northern Rebels Advance Towards San Sebastian

By Elmer W. Peterson,
Associated Press Staff Writer
(By Guardian's Special Wire)

VERA, Spain, With Rebel Troops Advancing Toward San Sebastian, Aug. 2.—General Emilio Mola today began a determined drive to crush government forces on the extreme northern front of Spain's civil war.

Rebel leaders, attempting to encircle San Sebastian heard that reinforcements were en route from Pamplona.

They told this correspondent General Mola was anxious "to clean out the back yard" of rebel territory in order to end danger of Leftist attack from the rear as the drive towards Madrid progresses.

Ten thousand rebel soldiers with new supplies and ammunition left the Pamplona barracks, officers said, to relieve Carlist forces at Oyarzun and to form the nucleus for the drive against San Sebastian and Renteria.

Government artillery was shelling the rebel position from Fort Guadeloupe outside San Sebastian.

Dispatches from Burgogs quoted General Cabanellas, president of the National Defence Junta in the Leon region, as declaring "the Northern Army is now at the gates of Madrid.

"The object of the insurgents is to insure triumph of a real Spain and bring to the Spanish people a regime of fraternity, order and peace.

"Our purpose is to give Spain her rightful position in the world without foreign interference."

IN MEMORIAM

MISS DORIS DENNIS

Seldom has a community been more genuinely stirred in sympathy and sorrow than at the wholly unexpected and untimely passing of Doris, eldest daughter of George Denis, of Clinton, whose death occurred at her home early Friday morning, July 24th, after a very brief illness.

At the age of 29 years the sun for this young life went down at noon, the one clear call came, and simply, trustfully, she went forth to meet her Pilot, face to face. There are left to mourn, her father and brother Albert, at home, and one sister, Gertrude, Mrs. Wm. MacLean of Charlottetown.

The large concourse of people who gathered at the home on Sunday afternoon, July 26th, who came from far and near to pay their last tributes of respect was a token of the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The Pastor of the United Church, Rev. George Somers, made touching reference to the sudden passing of this member of his congregation, who but a week before had taken part in the services of her church at Margate and was to have presided as organist on the very day on which her funeral was held.

Taking as his text the passage "For the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal," (2 Cor. 4.18) Mr. Somers referred to her life of loving service in the home, in her church and in the community.

The sudden ending of the life of a member of the choir, an officer of the Young Peoples' Society of the church, and of one whose love and gentleness in the home will ever be missed, would appear in the temporal view to be an irreparable loss.

Looking beyond these things of time and sense, however, may be recognized the spirit behind these manifestations. The quality of mind and heart which made up such fineness of character were but part of the spirit behind the veil which is eternal and imperishable. Her dead life has not been terminated by death: "What seems so is transition; this life of mortal breath is but a suburb of the life Eylsian, whose portal we call Death."

The relatives and friends will be comforted by a feeling of gladness and thanksgiving that a life so devoted to usefulness and service has been called to usefulness and service in a higher life. We can rejoice in the beautiful character that has passed on, knowing that for her "to live is Christ, and to die is gain."

Mr. F. W. Wegenast's beautiful setting of "Crossing the Bar" was sweetly rendered by Mr. T. W. Bentley.

Appropriate hymns, "The Sands of Time Are Sinking" and "Abide With Me" were sung. Mrs. Chester Simpson accompanied at the piano.

The pall bearers were: Carmen Heaney, William Heaney, Edison Heaney, Ralph Heaney, Armel Whitehead and David Glover.

Interment took place at the cemetery of the United Church, Margate.—B.

Sword of Revolution For N.B. Museum

(By The Canadian Press)

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Aug. 2—A sword once worn by Colonel Christopher Billopp, commanding officer of the Staten Island militia, later a Tory officer during the American Revolution and for many years prominent in the early history of New Brunswick, has been presented to the New Brunswick Museum by his great-grandson, John Black, of Fredericton.

Dying at Saint John in 1827, aged 90, Colonel Billopp was buried in the Old Loyalist Burying Ground. He was a member of the assembly of the province of New York and subsequently of the assembly and council of New Brunswick.

In 1776 the Billopp manion on Staten Island was the scene of an unsuccessful "peace" conference between Lord Howe, representing the British government, and Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Edward Rutledge, representing the Americans. It was from this residence that Colonel Billopp was taken later, thrown into jail and chained to the floor. The order to the jailer read in part:

"You are hereby commanded to receive into your custody the body of Colonel Christopher Billopp, prisoner of war, herewith delivered to you, and having put irons on his hands and feet, you are to chain him down to the floor in a close room in the said jail, and there to retain him giving him bread and water only for his food until you receive further orders from me or from the Commissary of prisoners for the State of New Jersey, for the time being."

Billopp was one of the 55 petitioners for land in Nova Scotia, then including the present province of New Brunswick. The following inscription is still legible on an old tombstone:

"Sacred to the memory of the member of His Majesty's Council in Honourable Christopher Billopp,

Montrealer Wins Coveted Story Prize

CANADIAN AND UNITED STATES WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN THE ALL-NATIONS PRIZE NOVEL COMPETITION.

The Oxford University Press, Toronto, sponsoring the All-Nations Novel Competition in Canada for Farrar & Rinehart, announces that the entries in the Canadian section of the competition have now been judged, with the result that Roderick Stuart Kennedy's novel, "The Road South," will represent Canada before the international judges. Mr. Kennedy is a Montrealer, and his short stories have been appearing in Canadian and American magazines for some years.

Very close behind "The Road South" came Charles M. Hale's "Destiny Island," with Michael Devine's "Youth in Waiting" third. It was from these three novels that the judge, Professor J. F. Macdonald of Toronto, made his final selection.

Publishers in the thirteen principal book-producing countries of the world are cooperating in this competition to offer prizes which have a minimum value of about $19,000. The best novel in each participating country is being chosen by local judges first, and these thirteen "best" novels will then go to London to the international board of judges for choice of the final winner. The board includes Johan Bojer, Dr. Rudolph G. Binding, Joseph Wood Krutch, Gaston Rageot and Hugh Walpole.

The American contender will be John T. McIntyre's "Steps Going Down," and is more fortunate than the Canadian book, inasmuch as there is a $4,000 prize offered for the American winner in the event that it does not win the International prize. Mr. McIntyre is a Philadelphian and the author of many short stories, novels and plays.

Americans Will Erect Monument

(By The Canadian Press)

SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 2 — In memory of the British, French and American soldiers who fell in the several battle at Louisburg, a monument is to be erected at the historic fortress site by the American Society of Colonial Wars.

The suggestion came from Albert Almon, well known Cape Breton historian and in a letter received last week he was informed by Major Howland Pell, Honorary Governor General of the Society, that funds are now being collected for the undertaking.

The monument will be constructed of rugged granite of simple design and its erection will be handled by the North Sydney firm of notified Mr. Almon that work will John D. Steele and Sons, who have begin shortly.

The inscription will contain the following tribute:

"In memory of the American, French and English soldiers who gave up their lives for their country, 1745-58. Erected by General Society of Colonial Wars, 1936."

The Society is stimulating further interest in the project having awarded substantial cash prizes for the best essay written on the history of Louisburg, and competition will be open to school districts particularly within the Louisburg area.

Prizes will be $25, and $5 all donated by the Society, and separate prizes given by Major Pel, who was responsible for the erection of the present shaft at Louisburg commemorating the deeds of the American soldiers.
