

Lobster Carnival Parade To Start Activities Tues.

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

Several thousand spectators are expected to line the streets of Summerside tomorrow afternoon to witness the gigantic parade which will kick off the 70th annual Lobster Carnival and a Livestock Exhibition which will start Saturday night.

Last minute touches are being added to the floats and everyone concerned with the show is hoping the word will be "go" come Tuesday afternoon. However the "mad" section at the RCAP Station reported cloudy weather forecast for the opening day of the carnival.

Lieutenant-Governor F. Walter Wynnum will officially open the five-day show tomorrow evening at 7.15 and from then on it will be a round of vaudeville acts, horse racing, dancing, delicious lobster suppers, midweek and Saturday afternoon dancing. The opening day program is highlighted by the mammoth parade which will still course through Summerside streets beginning at 1.30 with oodles of floats, beautiful girls, clowns bands and all the ingredients that make up a gala parade, if the weather is unlit the parade will be a round of vaudeville acts, horse racing, dancing, delicious lobster suppers, midweek and Saturday afternoon dancing. Seven Sailors Reach S'ide After 8 Days In Open Boat

SUMMERSIDE—Seven weather-weary sailors from HMS "Astute" arrived at Summerside early last evening after eight days in an open dory sailing from the port of Halifax in what is part of their survival training.

The group left Halifax with only oars and a sail to propel their craft and found the sea fairly calm much of the time but the rainy weather was almost unbearable.

A group of seven cyclists from the same submarine, which will dock at Summerside today and remain throughout carnival week, were Summerside-bound last evening and were expected to arrive late last night or this morning.

The sailors that arrived by dory were cared for at the new fire hall where they had a chance to clean up and later to

Versatile 'Singing Cadegans' To Perform During Carnival

SUMMERSIDE—One of the acts at this year's lobster carnival and livestock exhibition that is sure to be a smash hit is the "Singing Cadegans," a troupe of youthful Nova Scotia born singers.

The children of Donald and Helen Cadegan of Glace Bay are rapidly becoming Canada's best known singing family.

These children come from a musical background on both sides and they were born to sing. The group is made of a family of 10. The oldest boy Patrick was as a boy, the leading boy soprano for eastern Nova Scotia. Now a bass baritone, he awaits the development of the children's voices to rejoin the group.

David is seven, and awaits the development of his voice to change to join the group. The babies Neale, 3 and Marguerite 2, show all the signs of becoming part of this singing family.

The group was originally started by Helen Cadegan, when she was eight years old, she entered the three oldest in a Kiwanis contest.
