Happenings of The Week

A Coronation is a nation's birthday. It is also the occasion for much splendid pageantry. Therefore it is with great anticipation that the people of Prince Edward Island are looking forward to seeing an Exhibition of the Coronation Robes and Regalia. The exhibits will be on display December 13, 14th and 15th from one until ten o'clock in the Auditorium of the New Queen Charlotte High School. Dr. R. G. Lea, Chairman of the City School Board, kindly gave permission for the Exhibition to be held in this fine Auditorium. So much has been written about the Coronation and our lovely young Queen, but it is well to recall in Burke's phrase that she brings "the dispositions that are lovely in private life into the service and conduct of the Commonwealth." While numerous gifts will attend this Exhibition and which comes to us from Halifax and is being held in all the Capitals, yet it is the children, the subjects of the future, who must be in the majority of those viewing the Coronation robes.

Dr. L. E. Prowse and Dr. John Maloney have returned from a business trip to Toronto. Dr. Prowse was accompanied by Mrs. Prowse.

The real object of the Drama is the portrayal of the human character. In the acting and presentation of the play "The White-headed Boy" by Lennox Robinson in the Queen Charlotte High School Auditorium, Friday evening by the Little Theatre Guild of Charlottetown this object was attained. Meeting the Geoghegans, the Duffys and so on last evening was simply delightful. The members of the cast were not acting these people, they were the people. Mrs. Vera Millar was the Director of this magnificent production of "The White-headed Boy."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevenson have as their guest, Mrs. Stevenson's brother, Mr. Ralph Holman of the Birds Eye Food Division of Lever Bros., Toronto. Mr. Holman is visiting his mother, Mrs. Bessie F. Holman, a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

Mrs. Farrell has carried out many of her own original and artistic ideas in the Interior Decoration of their modern home.

A wedding of interest to their numerous Charlottetown friends was that of Miss Hazel Constance Stacey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Stacey of Fredericton, N.B., to Mr. Harry Alfred Gallon, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Gallon, of New Carlisle West, Quebec, which took place recently in Wilmot United Church, Fredericton.

LET'S EAT

Cook Lamb Properly For Maximum Flavor

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Lamb shanks split to the bone in a large skillet, melt 1 lb. shortening. Slow-brown the lamb shanks all over in this. (Their own fat will contribute enough to prevent sticking). Transfer to a large casserole or small roaster.

Stir 2 lbs. flour into the drippings left in the skillet. Gradually stir in 1 1/2 c. hot water and 3 lbs. fresh, canned or frozen lemon juice. Stir until boiling. Then add 1 lb. Worcester'shire sauce, 1/2 tsp. prepared horseradish, 1/2 tsp. table mustard, 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. monosodium glutamate, 4 whole cloves and 1 c. diced celery. Pour over the lamb shanks.

Cover and bake about 1 1/2 hrs. in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. or until fork-tender. Serve with broad noodles.

ELLEN'S DIARY

by an Island Farmer's Wife

What a nice miscellany of items we found in the parcel of this week's making-kits gone up in starchy wrappings of white and silver. I tried, tied about with a silver cord of moonlight.

Snowflakes were there, pure white, drifting softly earthward—as do the fading leaves of autumn days fall; or the liquid tones of city Church-bells which on stillly December days from lofty heights drop their leaves into the hearts of the hurrying shoppers below. This we found there... and a bit of the downy blanket beneath which now in a quiet sleep rest the weary fields of the farmlands.

Was there not a sprig of spruce there? Aye, and a bit of the balsamed "var" the needles shining silkily, from the evergreens now posing darkly sturdy in woodland and hedgerow, and always an engaging part of the hallowed season drawing near.

In this week's parcel were familiar scenes from years we once knew... Of horse-drawn sleighs traveling by field and roadway along trails now snowy-white. And we saw cattle following paths through winter-like surroundings, come down to drink at the millstream.

And one evening we saw the little boy of this household listed in with eyes shining and bated breath to a bewitching and seasonal "Santa Claus" radio program.

"It's not too far away now" he nodded presently, turning to count the days on the calendar.

"To my mind, it's not far enough away," James smiled. "Not when I think of winter coming down and all the work we had planned to do before that." "There'll be no more plowing" the youngster commented.

"Not for us anyway. We put the plows away today... and the carts too. And brought out the sleighs. I guess now we'll let winter come."

This week brought us the sight of belated flocks of Canada geese, in solemn tones offering their au revoir; dark of wild ducks too, facing into the sunset; prettily plumaged pigeons, gleaming grains in the barnyard; blue wings in the orchard... and on a near hillside, sheep lifting the snow to nibble the fall-grass beneath.

And a beloved season is here, one in which the worn old world may again go a-faring led by that Bethlehem star.

"And ever as dawns the Christmas day, The worn old world goes faring, Seeking the place where the young Child lay, Where the Kings of the East bowed low to pray, And peace was born to abide all In hearts that were long despairing."

It's different! A combination of a new penetrating ingredient with a medicating formula. The penetrating ingredient carries medicine to irritated crevices of the throat, where the medicating ingredient can go to work. That's why it's named Vicks Medi-Trating Cough Syrup. Big Advances In Treatment Of Disease

Medical science makes great strides each month in developing new medications and treatments to protect the health of you and your children. Among the latest advances are:

Hydrocortisone: a modification of the drug cortisone, which has been used so effectively in the treatment of arthritis, and many other disorders. In helping bring relief to arthritis victims, it can be injected directly into painful joints and also into connective tissues.

Low Back Pain

It has also helped bring relief of low back pain due to fibrositis which is an inflammation of the connective tissues, such as the ligaments.

It is useful in eye disorders.

Serpasil: a preparation derived from a plant known as Rauwolfia serpentina. It is used to control hypertension and nervous pressure in general. It has been helpful in calming and soothing patients under strain. Excellent results have been obtained when given to psychotic persons in a state of anxiety.

Antihistamine Relative

Chlorpromazine: A drug related chemically to the antihistamines. Demonstrations have shown it aids in relaxing muscles, relieving itching, lowering body temperature and increasing the effectiveness of analgesics.

While it acts as a sedative, it does not confuse or depress mental processes. It has been used effectively with another drug, disulfiram, in treating chronic alcoholics, keeping them calm and even helping some of them sleep during the withdrawal period.

Relieved Nausea

As little as a single dose has helped patients who had been suffering severe nausea and had been vomiting.

Trevidal: Available only for experimental purposes, it is a mixture of a vegetable gum, a cooked oatmeal derivative and antacids. Ulcer patients report the tablet gives excellent results. Of 123 patients tested, 115 said they got distinct or complete relief of symptoms.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

E. G.: I have been bothered for years with perspiring hands. Can you advise me what to do?

Answer: Excessive sweating of the palms may be an indication of some general disorder, such as an infection or perhaps even difficulty with the thyroid gland. In many cases, it is a localized condition, the cause for which cannot be determined.

There is no treatment which is of any particular value. Of course, a careful search should be made for the cause, so that it can be eliminated just as soon as it is discovered.

Morning Smile

Two boys were spending a day in the country and came upon a man fly-fishing. After watching him cast his line several times, one of the boys remarked to the other: "Oh come on, Bill. He'll never catch anything—he's trying to lassoo 'em."

Engagement Announcement

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Prince Bovard, 320 Cameron street, Moncton, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Joanne Marilyn, to Mr. Frederick Thomas Coyle, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Arthur Coyle, of Charlottetown, P. E. I. The wedding will take place in St. Bernard's Church, Moncton, Monday, December 27 at 10 a.m.

Tinsel and Affection Combine at Christmas

By ELEANOR ROSS

The spirit of love which inspires Christmas expresses itself in many ways.

Tinsel, holly, tinkling bells, bright ribbon and evergreen wreaths, all small things in themselves, draw us back in memory to the past.

Linked with the Past

They are cherished symbols of man's ancient ways. Derived from many sources and peoples, they continue to evoke in us a nostalgic feeling, a kind of yearning for traditional ways and remembered friends.

Part of the miracle of Christmas is expressed in the joy of giving. The gift itself may be tiny, but the emotion behind it is great. Affection is expressed in every intricate bow and seal.

A magazine subscription is often sent as a Yuletide remembrance. Of course, the periodical itself sends a greeting card announcing the gift to the recipient.

Something Extra

But the ingenious may devise a charming extra fillip to add to the present's appeal.

An inexpensive wicker magazine basket or a letter tray might be purchased or drafted into service from your own possessions. Wrap the November and December issues of the particular magazine up in gala holiday paper. Then loop ribbon around the container and tie it with a big, loose bow.

If only one color of undecorated ribbon is used, paste on a few beads or sequins for a glitter touch, or place sequins all over the ribbon in polka dot effect.

Present in a Wheelbarrow

Gift shops frequently harbor wonderful small gift containers such as wicker wheelbarrows. Last year we obtained several and used them to turn one present by speedy alchemy into two. Such attractive holders may be sprayed with commercial snow, and then decorated with bells, flowers, pine cones and ribbon.

Don't overdo the frillery! The gift each wheelbarrow held was wrapped in plain metallic paper and tied with the narrowest of ribbon without benefit of bows. The container had enough adornment without further embellishment.

To Hold Small Items

During the summer we obtained several of those small straw baskets which were popular as handbags. Now they'll be put to use as containers for modest gifts such as gloves, handkerchiefs and scarves.

Spankies and red and green ribbons complete the gift.

Such a straw carrier would be ideal for a little girl, especially if she decided to save it for next summer.

Larger wicker handbags might be filled with gaudily wrapped holiday cakes and cookies.

Gold Stars

These hampers should also be brightly decorated. Ropes of red trimming might be affixed by tiny bows or pine cone clusters. Or use the containers with ribbon and finish off with a huge felt bow of the same color as the tyings. Gold stars may be pasted on for another touch.

One such hamper is going to an invalid child. Inside she will find 12 gaily wrapped packages, each to be opened on the 25th of each month in the year (if her will power holds out.)

Household Hint

Hang a pad and pencil in the kitchen to jot down household memos and store lists. Or buy a bulletin board equipped with magnets for attaching notes and memos.
