

MR. AND MRS. GARY THOMPSON

Saint Dunstan's Basilica Setting For Fall Wedding

Saint Dunstan's Basilica, Charlottetown, was the scene of an Autumn wedding when Mary Joan Eva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Bulger, Capps White became the bride of Gary Herbert Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Thomas Parkdale, P. E. I. Rev. William Simpson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Rev. Henry Tye and Rev. Reginald Phalen were seated in the sanctuary.

The church was decorated with white and yellow gladioli and potted white mums, and guest pews were marked with lily of the valley and white satin bows.

The organist, Mrs. Joseph Dougan, accompanied Frank MacIntyre as he sang Ave Maria On This Day, Oh Beautiful Mother, Come to My Heart, Lord Jesus, and I'll Walk Beside You.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of white organza over taffeta, accented by Alencon lace and featuring a scalloped neckline and lily point sleeves. Her waist length bouffant veil was held in place by fabric wedding bells and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The bride's only attendant was her sister Sandra Bulger of Toronto, Ont., who wore a floor length gown of blue pearly de soie with round neckline, three quarter sleeves, and floor length train. Her headpiece was a veil of nylon tulle held in place by a blue fabric rose. She carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations.

Ralph Thomson, Blackville, N. B. was groomsmen for his brother, and Allan Bulger brother of the bride, and Wendell Semner, brother-in-law of the groom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Basilica Recreation Centre for 85 guests, at which Wayne Proude was master of ceremonies. J. A. MacLellan proposed the toast to the bride. The guest book was circulated by Marie Best.

Mrs. Bulger chose for her daughter's wedding a three-piece jade green double-knit suit with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom wore a two piece cranberry double knit suit with white and black accessories and white carnations.

For a honeymoon to Toronto, Hamilton and the United States the bride wore a three piece cranberry double knit suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

EAGLE TAKES TRIP

LEGHORN, Italy (AP) — An exhausted eagle from the Helsinki zoo in Finland was captured today by a mushroom picker. The eagle was found in a forest, catching its breath after the flight from Helsinki, more than 1,300 miles away. A band identifying the bird as coming from the zoo was on its leg. Silla Morelli picked it up, took it home, restored its spirits with some meat and water, then put it in a cage.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Hallowe'en Witches Again Ride The Skies

"I can hardly wait for that night to come." Peter's smile was wistful this evening as he was admired with some pleasurable excitement, the Hallowe'en mask, his recent purchase. "It will be fun, won't it?" he chuckled.

By this twilight's fall the Hallowe'en will have come. How easy for us that have older grown, to turn back to childhood's chapters this evening, the pages of the years! We shall be aware of its approach, not only because of a date on the calendar, but now, more or less fancifully, by the signs and portents which toward the dusk-fall appear. The light wind then commences to pass timidly, on an eerie note. The fallen leaves rustle mysteriously. A cat on the lawn pounces on some invisible prey, then sits a moment in an attitude of surprise. Was there nothing there? But of course there is! You know the little people, the elves and their kin are already foregathering about.

How still the surroundings are as the dusk comes down! You remember to put away all movables, the lawn-chairs and such like, because there is surely witchery in the air. The evening's shadows are not the usual purple. They are greenish, to match you think, Hallowe'en cats' eyes. And how hollowly the echoes linger! Listen to the 'f dog bark down the valley! Or is it an owl's weird call, come up over wood and field. And that car now homing past lane's end, why is there haste in its wheels. Now items that could vanish are put away. You close the porch-door quickly behind you, for even by its different creak, you know there is a brown gnome almost at your heel!

Scamp's bark at the supper-hour too is different. There is a frustrating whine in it, as though he has glimpsed something or someone moving, though as yet, you know there is neither "whip nor stitch" to be seen. And as you pour his tea from the little "gold" pot, you wonder if James is putting the thoughts of the farming aside. Is he remembering young Hallowe'ens with happy assemblings of his age group, his cronies, in its observance, at the Corner, on nights such as this, in quaint times now no more. Does he see again the forms and faces of the blithe lads of then, including those who
