THE EXAMINER PUB. CO.
 A good deal has been heard lately about the "slump" in the financial world. The word is expressive, and is generally believed to be "slangy," but has for some time been in general use. The African Review points out that it is of Danish origin, and according to Dr. Raven was applied in many metaphorical ways. In his recently published "History of Suffolk" Dr. Raven says that it is still of common use in the county. Unsuccessful litigation was slumped. "Slumped" says Palmer in his "Perpetration of Great Yarmouth," "was shouted derisively to one who had been a second time unsuccessful." Forby explains it "to sink suddenly into deep mud or rotten ground."
 Underdated.
 "H. V. Jack" said the man in the railroad station, slapping the back of the man walking ahead of him.
 "I guess you have read your hand wrong," said the man, who turned out to be a stranger. "I ain't Jack. My name's King."
 Unfortunate Selection.
 "We are conv.ved," wrote the editor in his valdeatory, "that much of our misfortune is due to the name we gave our paper. We might have known when we called it the 'Record' that when we American would feel his duty to beat it."

USE OF A MAGNET.
 It Drew a Splinter From a Man's Eye When the Surgeon's Knife Would Have Been Useless.
 Joseph Brown of Plainfield, N. J., owes his eyesight to a powerful magnet.
 Brown was employed at the Potter Press Works in Plainfield, N. J. While at his bench a chip of steel flew from the head of his hammer and lodged in the sclerotic coat of the eyeball. The pain resulting from the wound was excruciating, and as the local physicians were unable to relieve the injured man he was taken to New York from Plainfield, and the surgeons at the Eye and Ear Infirmary were asked to aid him, if possible.
 An examination of the injured eye disclosed the fact that the steel had penetrated so deeply that the use of the surgeon's knife meant the absolute destruction of the eye. This ended all hope of relief by means of an operation. It was decided, as a last resort, to see if the great magnet of the infirmary would accomplish what could not safely be done with the knife. This magnet is the largest and strongest in the world. It is constructed of iron coil two feet in length and 12 inches in diameter. At the ends of the coils the soft iron is exposed. The dynamo of the infirmary furnishes the power, which is so great that its extent has never been accurately calculated. It is known, however, that the magnet's power of attraction is sufficient to support an object weighing over 100 pounds.
 In this giant agent of magnet power was the only hope for aid. All preparations were made, and the patient was led near one of the points of the magnet. The lid of the injured eye was drawn so that the surface of the eyeball was fully exposed, the patient being so placed that the power of attraction was greatest at the point where the steel had entered the sclerotic coat.
 Almost at the moment the eye was exposed to the magnet's power Brown felt a sharp pain, followed by a contraction of the muscles. Then the surgeon saw that on the surface of the blood-marked eyeball was visible a shining bit of steel—only a nite of steel, to be sure, but none the less readily in its effect upon the patient's sight.
 A small magnet was wrought into requisition, and a second layer of chip of steel, which had caused Brown days of agony, adhered to its surface. The magnets, great and small, had proved themselves valuable aids to surgery.
 After this Brown's eye was surgically dressed, and he remained at the infirmary for further treatment. The unusual circumstances surrounding the case had aroused the deepest interest among the members of the ophthalmic branch of the medical profession.
 While the sight of Brown's injured eye is probably destroyed, the patient will have one eye as good as any one's. Had the knife been used to extract the steel the sight of the other would in all probability have been destroyed through sympathy.
 Carolina Funeral Customs.
 The preaching at the Primitive Baptist Church, near Dobson, N. C., last Sunday, of the funeral sermon of a man who died three years ago, and of his wife, who died one year ago, calls attention to an old custom, which still obtains in the mountain districts of Western North Carolina, of preaching funeral sermons years after deaths and burials. Elaborate preparations are generally made for these occasions, the "mourner" and all their friends going to the church—generally a rude board country structure—and making "a day of it," carrying large quantities of food and feasting in great style. At the funeral services just preached one of the incidents was the "cooking of eleven hams" for the occasion. It is a custom so old that no one knows its origin, and while it is not practised so frequently as in ante-bellum days, it has by no means become extinct. Another old custom, which survives also in the mountain country, prevails in a section of South Carolina—that of publishing the death notices of persons on the first anniversary of the death. Nearly every week the Charleston News and Courier contains the obituary notice of some person who died exactly one year previous to the date of the paper containing the notice. This custom is as distinctive of the locality as that of preaching deferred funeral sermons in North Carolina.—New York Post.

 ODDS AND ENDS.
 The celebrated sphinx, the figure of the crouching monkey near the great pyramid, is 172 feet and 6 inches long and 52 feet high.
 IT DOES THE BUSINESS.
 If you want to know what Miller's Emulsion of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil will do for a consumptive patient ask one who has tried it. Ask anyone who has used it in lung troubles of any kind. What they say about Miller's Emulsion shall be its recommendation. It is the finest preparation of its kind in the world, and is worth its weight in gold to a consumptive sufferer, whom it will raise from a bed of sickness to health and strength of body and mind, giving a new lease of life. Thousands testify to the value of Miller's Emulsion. It is the great nerve strengthener and blood maker, and cures Coughs, Colic, Bronchitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all drug stores.
 He that never changed any of his opinions never corrected any of his mistakes.
 Counterfeits.
 A few years ago a great discovery was made. Unprincipled persons are trying to prey upon and dupe people who are led to ask for kidney treatment.
 Some of the methods adopted by imitators are as follows:
 First—To imitate the size, color and shape of Dodd's Kidney Pills and sell them by count.
 Second—To put them up to appear very nearly the same and to be offered at the same price.
 Third—To hook on the word "kidney" in naming cathartic pills so as to increase sales of mere physic.
 Fourth—To give a name so near to Dodd's that unwary people may be deceived and think they are getting Dodd's.
 Look out for such dodges. When you want kidney medicine you want the best. And ought not to be the subject for any trick.
 So beware.
 If a man reject druggery, by that token nothing great or high shall ever come out of that man's life.
 "What in the world did you invite Mr. Notmuch for? He's no singer, and—"

 Commercial Travellers.
 Wm. Golding, commercial traveller 130 Esther St., Toronto, says—For 15 years I suffered untold misery from itching Piles, sometimes called pin worms. Many and many a time have I had to lay off the road from this trouble. I tried eight other pills and ointments and so-called remedies with no permanent relief to the intense itching and stinging, which irritated by scratching would bleed and ulcerate. One box of Chase's Ointment cured me completely.
 THE "BIG" FOUR
 A Quartette of Remedies that are Effecting Wonderful Cures.
 Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, Dr. Chase's Ointment, Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure, and Dr. Chase's Syrup of Limesed and Turpentine. His latest and greatest discovery for all throat and lung affections.
 "I was sick for three years," says James Simpson, of Newcomb Mills. "I tried various alleged patent cures and several boxes of a certain pill which has been greatly advertised. I got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since I have been able to work every day and feel like a new man. The pills alone cured me at a cost of 25c."
 "I have been subject to severe colds every fall and winter," says Miss Hattie H. of 174 Crawford Street, Toronto. "I used many cough medicines, but none cured me until at a cost of 25 cents I tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Limesed and Turpentine."
 "My husband was troubled with the worst kind of piles," writes Mrs. Jane Potts, of Meyersburg. "He was often unable to work. Since using your Chase's Ointment he is completely cured. It is truly worth its weight in gold instead of the price you charge, only 60 cents."
 "I bought a box of your Catarrh Cure for 25 cents at Mr. Boyle's drug store here," says Henry H. Nichols of 176 Rector Street, London, Ont. "It is so thankful to say it cured me."

BURNING BUSH.
 That Marvel of Moses Said to Have Been Discovered by English Travellers and Brought to London.
 This is the Bible story about the burning bush:
 "And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him (Moses) in a flame of fire, out of the midst of a bush; and he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed."
 "And Moses said, I will now turn aside and see this great sight, why the bush is not burned."
 "And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him out of the midst of the bush and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I."
 "And he said, Draw not thine hand: put off thy shoes from thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground."
 Now comes an English foreign officer's report with the account of a newly discovered stunted tree, called the chapparo, that appears to fill the bill and reproduce the miracle, minus the voice of God, however.
 In a huge conflagration this strange tree seems to start into life, as an ordinary plant does when it is wet with rain after a long drought. Amid the swirling reeds and yellows of the flames it takes on a new life, and after the fire has swept past it is seen with new shoots of vivid green springing out of it. At such times the chapparo stand alone, sturdy and strong, amid the surrounding blackened trunks, the only living things in a land reduced to sterility.
 It is not accurate to say that the entire tree comes out of a forest fire unscathed. While the body of the tree is incombustible, its smaller branches and twigs burn. They burn very slowly, while the rest of the woodland is going up in smoke.
 The London scientists who have looked into the matter believe that the trunk of the tree, and its branches in a smaller degree, exude under the influence of great heat a moisture that is sufficient, owing to its peculiar chemical properties, to resist the action of the fire.
 Commenting on the chapparo, the English Foreign Office says: "It is very remarkable that these fire-begotten plantations are nowhere crowded to excess; on the contrary, the trees are so sparsely placed that their appearance is that of the most carefully formed gardens."
 A specimen of chapparo bark is on exhibition in the museum of the Pharmaceutical Society in Bloomsbury Square, London.
 A comparison of the description of this remarkable tree with that given of the "burning bush" shows that it was probably the thorny acacia of the Arabia Peninsula, the sturt of Egypt, and was akin to the shittah tree and senna. Hence the name, Sinai; and the tract is called the "Wilderness of Sin," or the "Seneh." The wood of the shittah tree furnished the material for the Ark of the Covenant, and various parts of the Tabernacle. It is hard, tough and durable, and susceptible of fine polish.
BIRDS VERSUS INSECTS.
 Wonderful Speed on the Wing of the Ordinary House Fly and the Dragon Fly.
 It is the popular belief that the flight of birds is much swifter than that of insects, but some European scientists who have been making a study of the matter think that such is not the case. A common housefly, for example, is not particularly rapid in its flight, but its wings make 800 beats a second and send it through the air twenty-five feet, under ordinary circumstances, in that space of time. When the insect is alarmed, however, it has been found that it can increase its rate of speed to over 100 feet per second. If it could continue such rapid flight for a mile in a straight line it would cover that distance in exactly thirty-three seconds.
 It is not an uncommon thing, when traveling by rail in the summer time, to see a bee or wasp keeping up with the train and trying to get into one of the windows. When the insect is a swallow is considered one of the swiftest of flying birds, and it was thought until recently that no insect could escape it. Yet Prof. Leuwenhoek tells of an exciting chase he saw in a meadow, about 100 feet long, between a swallow and a dragon fly, which is among the swiftest of insects. The insect flew with incredible speed and wheeled and dodged with such ease that the swallow, despite its immense wings, completely failed to overtake and capture it.
 How Dan Came To Himself.
 An Irishman by the name of Dan H., who had worked through the summer down in the valley and drank up his wages, later in the season was at Pine Lake, and when it began to grow cold one day he expressed his feelings in the way: "The wind came up from below and telegraphed through me overhalls, and it says, 'Dan! what did you do to bid your summer's wages?'"

Catarrh in the Head
 Is a dangerous disease because it is liable to result in loss of hearing or smell, or develop into consumption. Read the following:
 "My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H.
