New Invention.

I have invented and patented on July 24, 1897, a new straw elevator and shaker attached to any fanners. It cleans all grain perfectly first cleaning, all grain is taken out of the straw. It has been well tested. It only takes about 1/2 of the power for to drive it of any other machine for that purpose in the market. I ask every intending purchaser to see one of the Week's shakers before purchasing any other. Any person infringing on the patent will be dealt with according to the law I have appointed Mr. Walter Grant of Mill View, Lot 49, as manufacturing agent. He will receive orders; also myself

A LESSON IN BOILING.

Satisfactory Cooking Depends Largely on This Trivial Process.

Sallie Joy White lays down these valuable rules for boiling in "Cookery For Girls" in The Woman's Home Companion:

"For all green vegetables use soft water, salted and freshly boiling. Cook rapidly until soft. The time will depend upon the age or the freshness of the vegetable.

"With green peas, shelled beans, green corn, asparagus, celery and spinach use as little water as possible, and let it boil away, leaving just enough to moisten, and thus save all the desirable soluble matter that may have been drawn out. Cook cabbage and cauliflower uncovered, in a large kettle of rapidly boiling water, salted and with a saltspoonful of soda in it; onions, scald and change the water twice. All others cook in water enough to cover, and drain it off after cooking. Green summer squash, cabbage and other watery vegetables should be pressed in a cloth or strainer and well drained.

"Many people who attempt to cook are apt to forget that there is a wide distinction between 'boiled water' and 'boiling water,' and that the freshness is lost by long boiling, so that the sooner water is used after it has reached the boiling point the more satisfactory the cooking will be. If water stands after boiling, it loses its vitality and cannot be used with good results. That is why tea and coffee are so frequently flat and lifeless, without sparkle or flavor; not because the leaves and berries are not good, but because they are improperly made with 'boiled water' instead of freshly 'boiling water.'"

The Glamour of Art.

Do you think that Greek art ever tells us what the Greek people were like? Do you believe that the Athenian women were like the stately, dignified figures of the Parthenon frieze or like those marvelous goddesses who sat in the triangular pediments of the same building? If you judge from the art, they certainly were so. But read an authority like Aristophanes, for instance. You will find that the Athenian ladies laced tightly, wore high heeled shoes, dyed their hair yellow, painted and rouged their faces and were exactly like any silly, fashionable or fallen creature of our own day. The fact is that we look back on the ages entirely through the medium of art, and art, very fortunately, has never once told us the truth.—Boston Journal.

After coughs and colds the germs of consumption often gain a foothold.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites will not cure every case; but, if taken in time, it will cure many.

Even when the disease is farther advanced, some remarkable cures are effected. In the most advanced stages it prolongs life, and makes the days far more comfortable. Everyone suffering from consumption needs this food tonic.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

An Impediment Placed in a Pursuer's Way That Helped Instead of Hindering.

"When I saw the gate at the top of the stairs," said the retired burglar, "of course I knew there was young children in the house. It was put there to keep 'em from falling down stairs. It was low, I guess about two feet and a half high, and it swung when closed from the post at the top of the stairs across to a strip nailed to the wall opposite.

"I noticed this gate when I went up, particular, because a man in my business notices everything, and because I thought that this would be a handy thing to shut in case anybody should get after me in the house; that shutting that gate in front of 'em might stop 'em long enough to let me get away comfortable. It wasn't more'n a year before I had a chance to try it.

"There was a long hall on the second floor of this house, with this stairway pretty near at the front end of it. I went into a room way back at the other end, and while I was looking around there I upset something on the bureau and woke up a man in the bed.

"Well," he says, 'what's the matter now?' And I didn't wait to hear any more. I didn't even turn the light on him. I didn't need to. You could tell all you wanted to know about him by his voice. He was a resolute, albedodid citizen that I could hear getting out of bed.

"I made a break for the door and sprinted along the hall, throwing my light and catching sight of that gate again and smiling to myself as I saw it. I swung it around shut after me as I passed and went on down the stairs, leaving the man up stairs coming along the hall overhead with a rush.

"But it's all right," I says to myself; 'the gate'll stop him long enough for me to get out easy.' But, by snakes, it didn't stop him at all. On the contrary, it helped him. Just as I was stepping down from the last step on to the floor of the hall below the man fell on my back. He'd been coming along the hall above so fast that he couldn't stop himself, and he fell over the gate, turned a summerset in the air on the staircase and came down a heap faster'n I did and landed on me. Instead of breaking his own back he pretty near broke mine.

"We rolled over and over on the floor in the hall, the man laughing fit to kill. That's the sort of a man he was. It was the funniest thing he'd run up against in a long time.

"He never once thought of stopping me, not once, but he says, when he was letting me out, 'If you should come again, don't shut the gate.'"—New York Sun.

THE YUKON MOSQUITO.

Drives Moose and Caribou to the Snow Line and Stings Bears Blind.

Not only do the Yukon mosquitoes attack men and overwhelm them, but they drive the moose, deer and caribou up the mountains to the snow line, where these animals would prefer not to be in berry time. They kill dogs, and even the big brown bear, that is often mis-called a grizzly, has succumbed to them. Bears come down to the river from the hillside in the early fall to get some of the salmon that are often thrown upon the banks when the "run" is heavy.

If bruin runs foul of a swarm of mosquitoes and has not his wits about him his day has come. The insects will alight all over him. His fur protects his body, but his eyes, ears and nose will soon be swollen up and bleeding, and unless he gets into a river or a strong wind he will be driven mad and blind, to wander about hopelessly until he starves to death.

Although the Alaska summer is short, two broods of mosquitoes hatch out each year, and are ready for business from one to ten seconds after they leave the water. It rains a good deal along the Yukon, and rain is welcomed, for it drives the mosquitoes to cover. They hide under leaves and branches until the shower is over; then they come out boiling with rage at the time they have been forced to spend in idleness, and the miner has a harder time than ever after his respite.

Mosquitoes and snowflakes are not contemporaries in the States, but in Alaska it is different. Snow does not bother them so much as rain, and an early snow may fall while they are still on the wing. Fog does not choke them either. They appear to like it. They float about in it as in ambush and take the unwary prospector by surprise.—Denver Times.

The Effect of a Cold.

A correspondent writes: Away in the southwest of Scotland somewhere there lives, moves and has her being a little girl named Mona MacBean. On the first day of March Mona was late in arriving at school and detailed off to write her name 50 times. When the task was completed and presented to the teacher, the latter was horrified to find the name written, page after page, "Boda Bakbade." "You naughty girl, that's not the way to spell your name. Spell it properly." The reply was an astounder. "Please, bab, I've dot a cold, add I cad odly say Boda Bakbade." That girl will live to be a Pitmanite.—Glasgow News.

Painless - Dentistry

A WORD TO THE CARELESS

Many persons do not value their teeth. If they have the toothache their first and only thought is to have the tooth extracted. Just a few words on that point, they go and have it taken out, that is the last of that tooth; they cannot get it back again. Another tooth will begin troubling; out it goes, too, and soon after a while the person cannot masticate food; consequence is their health becomes impaired; then they pay doctors bills, buy medicine, etc., and as a last resort they get artificial teeth. Now look at the question from a business standpoint. In the first place what would be the cost to save the tooth and keep it good for a lifetime? Perhaps $1.00, and you will have your own teeth in your head, and they were most certainly put there for use. Now think of this—if you had a wart on your finger, that troubled you, would you have the finger cut off to remove the wart? Why certainly not. Well, why loose a tooth to remove an ache. We can stop toothache and save the tooth, and guarantee them never to ache again.

Artificial Teeth

must be good to be satisfactory. We guarantee satisfaction or we don't want your money.

You can call in in the morning and have your teeth same day.
