PERLEY CHARLTON

25th Wedding Anniversary Is Most Happily Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McLean of Goodwill avenue were receiving congratulations on August 8, the occasion being their 25th wedding anniversary at which time Mr. and Mrs. McLean entertained at dinner in the private dining-room of the Queen Hotel. Many lovely pieces of silver were presented to them and after the dinner party the guests went on to the McLean residence for the remainder of the evening.

Mrs. Jack McLean, Toronto, mother of Mr. McLean, was an honored guest at the anniversary. The McLean children were all present. These included Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell McLean, Saint John and their two children Gary and Rory; the other son Mr. John McLean and the daughter Daryl McLean.

Another very happy feature of the evening was the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dillane of Toronto and their four daughters Carolyn, Judy, Brenda and Sue were present. Mr. and Mrs. Dillane and Mr. and Mrs. McLean started out as young married couples about the same time. Last year Mr. and Mrs. McLean were guests in Florida of the Dillanes when they celebrated their 25th anniversary and this year the Dillanes were here for the McLean anniversary.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Fruit Brings To Mind The Various Seasons

A shower—yes, this morning, barely enough to wash the dusty faces of the pansies by the driveway but enough to delay the haying.

"It must be that rainbow meant unsettled weather" we offered. "But, Ellen" James recalled "that rainbow was days ago and besides it was towards evening we saw it."

"Then it must be the change in the moon," he chuckled. "Whatever it is, he nodded. "I'm thinking we're just a day too late for the fair" in our haying. Only a few loads left now to father up—and."

"A mist on the hills" we said. By this however we fancy our haying will be done. The Fair will have called this family there to enjoy its every day. They will return home more and less weary at night and with obvious relief from its clamor for the peace and quiet of the farm.

But by morning all weariness will have vanished and they will succumb once more to the sound of its siren-call over the eastern hills and be off to join the thousands of Islanders and the summer-guests to our shores, to bask again in its charms.

And one cook at Alderlea, committed to cans a souvenir of August to brighten her menus when the wintry white is once more on the fields.

By such savings the housewife gathers exquisite tokens of the passing months: rhubarb first to remind one of the fresh of the springtime—young winds part in the new leaves, robins' love songs, lambskins playful in the evening pastures.

Strawberries come next—full of summer's enchantment: Haylands a-ripple crops, growing
