ABSOLUTE PURITY.

THE following analyses (made by the Dominion Analyst) of three BAKING POWDERS sold in this market should put a stop to the unjust efforts of the Royal to mislead the public as to its being the only pure Powder. These impartial tests show that other Powders are as pure and wholesome:

Royal—Contains Alkaline Carbonates—a mixture consisting mainly of Bi-carbonate of Soda and Cream of Tartar—adulterated with about 20 per cent. of Starch.
W. SAUNDERS, Dom. Analyst, St. John, N. B. reports:

W. F. BEST, Dom. Analyst, St. John, N. B. reports:
Pure Gold—Contains Cream of Tartar, Carbonate of Soda—fresh and pure.
Nov. 19, 1882—Not adulterated; same as usual.

WOODILL'S
April 7, 1883—Not adulterated; same as usual.
June 4, 1884—Fresh and pure; same composition as usual.

MAYNARD BOWMAN, Dom. Analyst, Halifax, N. S. reports:
WOODILL'S
Of good quality; contains nothing injurious.

WOODILL'S German Baking Powder has held a reputation for purity and wholesomeness now nearly 30 years.

SHADOWS AND SUNSHINE.

BY S. M. BENT.

CHAPTER VIII. AN UNEXPECTED VISIT.

"The wildest ill that darkened life,
Are rapture to the bosom's strife;
The tempest, in its blackest form,
Is beauty to the bosom's storm."—J. W. Eastbourne

We have lingered long enough on the battle fields and marching grounds of the sunny South, and it is now time to turn our steps northward again. Arrived in New York, let us, as we pass through the thronging crowds of Wall Street, call upon our old friend Mr. De Wolfe. We find him in his elegant private office, looking over his letters and papers, having just come in from Inglewood. A rap is heard on the door, and in response to his cheery "come in," his confidential clerk appears, and informs him that Samuel Warner and his son Lionel have called to see him on pressing business.

"Show them in."
The clerk bows, and in a moment ushers in the visitors.

A great change comes over the broker's face as he rises and extends his hand, saying,

"Ah! my friend of olden days, it is a long time since we met in private; you have come to be reconciled, and I am more than pleased to be the first to offer my hand."

"I come to be reconciled!" exclaimed Samuel Warner, taking no notice of the offered hand, "no! Lemuel De Wolfe, you mistake me if you imagine such a thing. Can you not read hate in my face, deeper than ever!"

"Then, sir, if your errand is not a peaceful one, please withdraw at once, and instruct your legal adviser to confer with mine on whatever business brings you here this morning."

"You would hardly desire even your lawyer to be made acquainted with our business just yet, Mr. De Wolfe."

"Then, as I begin to see, your visit bodes no good!"

"That depends upon the manner in which you entertain my proposals."

"I refuse to listen to any propositions from you, sir."

"But I think you will, when you learn that it not only concerns your future, but that of your daughter also."

"What right have you to speak of the future of my daughter? She is under my protection, sir, and when she needs the help of such a you, Samuel Warner, dark days will, indeed, have fallen upon her."

"The dark days may be nearer than you think, Lemuel De Wolfe: you know where and when my hatred of you was born, you know the reason of it, you know that like a healthy child it has grown stronger year by year, and you know that my oath to ruin you is not an idle one. You have long carried a proud head, and enjoyed a high reputation, but I have woven around you a web of difficulty from which you will find it hard to escape, and I am here to greet over you trouble, to shed the look of despair come into your face, to make you cry for mercy."

"Then your visit is vain, and you had better go."

"Not till I hear you cry for mercy; my snares are so thick around you that there is only one chance of escape, and even that is the hands of my son, and at his earnest pleading, I have come to you this morning, to show you the way out of your difficulties, by the gratification of his wishes, and if you refuse, mark my words, Lemuel De Wolfe, the blow shall fall this very day, aye, this very day, for the power to ruin you is now in my control, and my years of plotting against you shall bear fruit at last."

"Mercy at your hands, Samuel Warner, were a curse, and if I cannot fight my way through all the difficulties with which you claim to have surrounded me, I refuse to accept any favor at the hands of a dishonest, villainous rogue, such as I have believed you to be."

"Be careful, sir; I do not come here to bandy high words and recriminations with you, but to threaten you with my speedy vengeance if you refuse my offer, which my son will interpret to you."

"And what if I refuse to listen to him, whom I know to be one in whose presence no good man can breathe freely?"

"Then the blow must fall. Lionel, go on."

"My father," began Lionel, "has warned you that a storm is ready to burst over you. To speak briefly, I have prevailed upon him to avert that storm from you, on condition that you give me your daughter's hand in marriage. Long have I loved."

(To be continued.)

The Proper Weight of Man.

Professor Huxley asserts that the proper weight of man is 154 pounds, made up as follows: Muscles and their appendages, 60 pounds; skeleton, 24 pounds; skin, 10 pounds; fat, 28 pounds; brain, 3 pounds; thoracic viscera, 3½ pounds; abdominal viscera, 11 pounds; blood which would drain from the body, 7 pounds. The heart of such a man should beat 75 times a minute, and he should breathe 15 times a minute. In 24 hours he should vitiate 1,700 cubic feet of pure air to the extent of 1 per cent. A man, therefore, of the weight mentioned, should have 800 cubic feet of well-ventilated space. He would throw off by the skin 18 ounces of water, 300 grains of solid matter and 400 grains of carbonic acid every 24 hours; and his total loss during that period would be 6 pounds of water and a little more than 2 pounds of other matter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Insulting the Clergymen.

SIR.—The Patriot of the 7th exhibits a good deal of bad temper in trying to account for the late Conservative victory. The result of the contest in Charlottetown is especially displeasing to the organ. It "loudly scolds the Tories" and every one else suspected of having the least leaning towards that side of politics. Even Ministers of the Gospel come in for a share of abuse at the hands of the "humble follower;" for we are told that "ministers of the gospel wrote and preached in the interest of the Government candidates," and with such aid, a free expenditure of money and a lavish use of rum, the election was won by the Tories." This is not the first time the ministers of Charlottetown have been insulted by anti-temperance men. The leading Opposition candidate told them not long since from his seat as City Councillor, that there are as many disreputable clergymen as disreputable rum-sellers. The Patriot and its defeated candidate may have a very poor opinion of ministers of the gospel. Law-abiding citizens, however, approve of the course taken by the clergy and other temperance men of this city in their opposition to the leading Grit candidate, not because of his politics alone, but because he is a liquor dealer and consequently opposed to temperance and temperance legislation.

Yours,
OBSERVER.

It is reported that Hon. W. W. Sullivan employed some very questionable means in gaining his late election in the St. Peter's District. Liquor was freely distributed three weeks before the election; and in a settlement called Grahoe, where the electors were nearly all Liberals, he promised them a Post Office, named one of their number the future postmaster, and in this way induced many of them to vote for him.—Patriot July 1th.

SIR.—We wish to inform our censorious and unhappy contemporary that the Hon. Mr. Sullivan gained his election simply because the electors of the St. Peter's District believe him to be an honest, economical and patriotic man. If the Patriot knows of any liquor having been distributed in that District, it must certainly have belonged to the opposite party, as they had any quantity of it, both before, and on the day of the election.

As for the people of Groschaux, we are at a loss to know why the Patriot voted, single them out for attack. They voted in the late contest, as all honest and level-headed men ought to vote. The post office lately opened there had nothing whatever to do with the support they gave the Premier and his colleague, Mr. Underhay, at the polls. The insinuations of the Patriot are quite uncalculated for, and we have no doubt will be resented at the proper time by the intelligent farmers of Groschaux.

ST. PETER'S.

Burglary in Buctouche.

The Buctouche correspondent of the Morning Times writes:

"A few nights ago our little village was awakened by the cry of burglary. A sailor of a Norwegian barkentine having left his ship came to Buctouche to take the packet next morning for Shediac. He drank liquor very heavily all night, and the boys had him for a toy. About 11 o'clock he went down to the packet to sleep but the Captain would not let him in the cabin, and he had to sleep in the fore-cabin. A few minutes afterwards he was heard walking on deck towards the street. The first house attacked was that of John Walker, blacksmith, where he stole an overcoat belonging to Charles Young, worth $15. The next house was that of John Killam, another blacksmith, but here he was less fortunate. He was caught by the master but made so many excuses that he was let go. The third place was an American yacht, where he stole an overcoat worth $20 and a short coat worth $9. His presence was discovered at the moment, but it was too late. He could be seen running across the bridge and got out of reach. The fourth place was at Peter Allain's, where he was also unfortunate. He went along the road without being caught. The fifth and last house was that of Tom Wallace, where he stole a pair of boots. A rasal of this kind should be punished. The last news of him is that he was drowned in St. John harbor."

A Reception.

The New York Tribune's London special says: "The Queen's luncheon at Windsor Castle to the colonials is reckoned in London society as the most surprising event of Her Majesty's reign. No precedent exists for such an invitation. No circumstance of splendor was wanting to enhance the impression. A special train took the guests from London to Windsor. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Princess Louise, and many other royalties and the whole royal household were present. Luncheon was served in the Waterloo gallery. Then the guests were presented to the Queen. The list of colonials and Indians fills an entire column and includes Sir Charles Tupper and other Canadians. The whole party came away charmed with the reception. London asks wonderingly, what will the Queen do next?"

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little shrub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Two-centa bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.
