King's County Exhibition Notes.

Mr. Cowan's prize bull was sired by "Nonpareil."

Mr. Sinnot's draft mare is a fine one. She weighs 1,630 lbs.

The "ring" for horses was an improvement worth imitating.

A veteran prize-taker—the old Beswall ram—was on the grounds.

Mr. Poole, M. P. P., exhibited a splendid thoroughbred Ayrshire bull.

Some splendid apples were shown by Mrs. and Miss Robertson, of Brudenell.

Mr. F. Boyver, of Georgetown Royalty, exhibited a splendid young Ayrshire bull.

Mr. Allan McDonald's carriage mare attracted general attention. She weighs 1,300 lbs.

The cheery address of the Lieutenant Governor, was as the word spoken in due season.

Mr. James McLaughlan, of Souris, had some fine bred cows and calves on the grounds.

Mr. Keays' two-year old bull weighs 1400 lbs. His mother is the prize cow now in St. John.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church had a timely tea. They sent the visitors who favored them away with strength renewed, and added many dollars to the coffers of the Church.

Dancing was kept up with great vigor in several booths throughout the day.

Government Farm Stock, auctioned by William Sanderson, Esq., was bought by the following persons:—

DRINK, OR THE BOTTLE.—This interesting emotional temperance drama will be presented for the first time in this city on Monday evening next. It is the current sensation of London, as Mr. Warner has made it famous by his wonderful skill in portraying the downward course of the drunkard from happiness to the mad house and death. As the temperance question is now uppermost amongst us, we expect the societies and votaries of prevention will give it a cordial welcome, whilst its absorbing interest as a drama will doubtless draw the general public, who may find a salutary lesson therein.

THE Presbyterian tea at St. Peter's, on the 28th ult., was very successful. About $400 were collected. Much credit is given John A. McLaine, Esq., for his good management of the affair.

According to assessment just made in Toronto the increase of property is $3,657,600 over last years valuation.

Correspondence.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the statements or opinions of our correspondents

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—An "explanation" appears in yesterday's EXAMINER from H. S. Hart, in reference to the recent go-as-you-please race. He states that the "Unknown never saw Clow till he met him in Summerside." In the face of this I positively assert that the Unknown did see Clow and resided with him at North Wiltshire before the race took place; and in proof of this statement credible witnesses can be produced.

Will Mr. Hart please inform the public as to when the Unknown left the city, by what mode of conveyance, and where he now is? If he answers these questions truthfully, there will not be two opinions as to whether or not the match between Eph Clow and the Unknown was a "put-up job."

YOURS, &c.,
PEDESTRIAN.

October 1st, 1880.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Being sojourning at present among the good people of Souris, I see your daily evening—I was much surprised to see in Monday's an account of a raid made by the police on a house of ill fame kept by a Mrs. McDonald and her two daughters; resulting in the arrest and conviction of the two young women and a young man. In yesterday's edition a correspondent complains of your having paraded the names of Mrs. McDonald and her daughters, before the world, while you withhold, that of the young man, thus leaving every young man in town open to suspicion, Now Sir, whether "Cypher" is reasonable in his complaint, or not, I do not know, nor do I care. But I do object to have characters of this brand misnamed in a newspaper report, for it exposes innocent respectable people to suspicion. That prostitutes may be found bearing the name of McDonald, I shall not attempt to deny, but as it happens the party alluded to in Monday's report does not. If a scoundrel of a McPhillips a Buddy or anybody else, choose to take refuge from public execration under the name of McDonald, the Press, I admit, might easily be deluded, but a Vigilant Police should not be so easily galled.

I believe that the Charlottetown Police are aware that McDonald is not the real name of these parties recently raided; and their name should not be given as such to public, to the prejudice of respected people.

Yours truly,
ANOTHER McDONALD.
Souris, Sept. 29th 1880.

At the Pan-Presbyterian Council, now in session at Philadelphia, Principal C. M. Grant, of Kingston, Canada, read a paper on "Religion in Secular Life." He maintained that in religion, as in secular matters, probability will not do as a ground for belief. Religion to be vital must be on the foundation of spiritual certainty. His conclusions were that the relation of religion to the secular was not arbitrary but natural, with absolute freedom as a condition for its successful working, the test being obedience to Christ, and finding His commandments joyous and not irksome. A portion of this paper was devoted to "heresy hunters," of whom Dr. Grant said that they substituted passion for reason, and necessitated resolutions of results which, however valuable in certain respects, may be measured by the remark of a great general about victories, of which the latter said: "They are the saddest things in the world except defeats."

LONGEVITY IN ENGLAND.—The mortality returns for England, which have recently been completed, record the deaths of 230 men and 510 women registered as 95 years old and upward when they died. Twenty-four of the men had reached 100 years and upward, and one who died at Newport, Monmouthshire, was 105. Sixty-four of the women had reached a century of life or more, and one who died at Luton district was 106. Their respective ages were as follows:—Twelve males and 27 females, 100; five males and 13 females, 101; two males and eight females, 102; three males and seven females, 103; one male and four females, 105; and one female, 106. Eight of these centenarians, one male and seven females, died in the London districts.

There is a colony of Christian Caffres at Middleburg, in the Transvaal, the result of twenty years' labor by a Lutheran missionary. A handsome brick church, built by Caffre hands, affords accommodation for 1,500 worshippers, and rows of brick-built workshops resound with the noise of industrial pursuits. Wagons, furniture, wood and iron work are turned out in abundance. Schools have been provided for the children and the mission owns 30,000 acres of good land, once prairie wilderness, but now divided into small farms, and worked under the supervision of the missionaries.

The Queen returns to Windsor at the end of this month, and will remain there until the departure of the Princess Louise for Canada.

The employes of the Grand Trunk have presented a petition to the General Manager, asking for an increase of wages. The increase will be granted.

A movement is on foot among Toronto capitalists to establish a syndicate, with a capital of $1,000,000 for the purpose of engaging largely in the cattle export trade.
