

Young Progressive Conservative Ass'n Meeting In Ch'town

Mr. Ken Anderson, St. Peter's, was elected first vice president when the Young Progressive Conservative Association met here this week.

The consensus of the members was that there appeared to be a turning in the political tide in many sections and they expressed enthusiasm over their party's chance in the next election.

Business discussed centred mainly around the formation of a Radio Forum to bring to attention speakers to attempt to answer questions being posed by the farmers of the Province. These are mainly concerned with margarine and the hog support price, both of which are important here.

Next week the Young P. C. Association will hold a meeting at Georgetown on Wednesday, and another in Tyne Valley on Thursday.

Discussed Proposed Addition To Present Community Hall

Although no definite decision was reached there was considerable discussion as to the possibility of building an addition to the present hall when the members of the Spring Park Community Club held their regular monthly meeting last night.

At the start of the meeting the members witnessed a showing of the picture "Touring the Maritimes", and after the business session saw another picture, "Home and School". At the close of the meeting they enjoyed a lunch prepared by the lady members of the entertainment committee.

There were two matters decided at the meeting, the first being that the club will provide a free movie show in the hall for all the pupils of Spring Park School this Saturday, and the second that a special prize of a pair of chickens will be given at next Wednesday's weekly card party.

President's Report

Progress made in the elimination of ragweed and efforts to get rid of the mosquito nuisance in the National Park area were briefly outlined to the meeting by Mr. Ralph Balderston when he presented his report as president.

The president also told of the value to the tourist industry of the essay contest sponsored by the association among school children this year. He said it created much interest among people at home here and left them with the knowledge of how much they can do to help the industry and the value they can get in return.

He said a committee from the directors had met with Premier J. Walter Jones and the management of the Northumberland Ferries to discuss improved transportation. However, he thought improvement this year was questionable, but believed that the association should continue to press the matter. He also referred to the Trans Canada Highway as being wonderful for travel aside from the dust and said the section of Highway 2 from Coles Mills to Hazel Grove had not been recoated until after the tourist season ended due to difficulty in obtaining material.

Mr. Balderston said the association was in excellent financial condition and spoke of the booklet which it put out this year as a guide to tourists in telling them where to stay and where to eat. The booklet had been printed in time to be distributed to points in Eastern Canada. He also noted that many of the tourists this year had enjoyed the fishing and hunting here and thought it well worthwhile that members of the association were joining the Fish and Game Association.

Minister Scores Karsh Comments

"After considerable travel throughout the Maritimes and Quebec during the past summer, I am able to say that we compare favorably with most places visited in the matter of accommodation and food," Hon. J. W. Arsenault, Provincial Secretary, told the members of the Innkeepers Association at their annual meeting last night.

The Tourist and Information Branch comes under the direction of Mr. Arsenault's department.

The Provincial Minister, however, added that in all fairness to Cape Breton he had to say that the hospitality of the Scottish people there is of such a nature that it can be felt at every turn.

Hon. Mr. Arsenault's remarks followed his regrets at the remarks of "the Armenian photographer" who contributed to a recent article in a nationally distributed magazine and made uncomplimentary remarks about a meal he was served here. (The reviewer was Yousuf Karsh, Ottawa, photographer of world notables).

The Minister told the association that his department had advertised this year in 17 of the largest United States newspapers and planned the same advertising distribution for the next season. He told the members that "whenever an outsider comes within your doors you begin to advertise your wares." He congratulated them on their being done and assured them of the support of his department and of the Government in any activity leading towards increasing the popularity of the Island as a tourist centre.

He said that only agriculture and fishing outclassed the tourist industry as an asset and he suggested that the Innkeepers might lead it into first place. Thus our farm and water products might be consumed by tourists here rather than shipped for them to eat in their own homes.

However, the Minister remarked that "the shuttle ferry service is an immediate necessity and we must press for it with everything we can muster."

Police Vigil Enlivened By Touch Of Melodrama

The recent recovery by City Police of a large quantity of cigarettes stolen in a break into the office of C. Montgomery had some interesting sidelights.

Police learned where the cigarettes were hidden on the outskirts of the city, and waited in a nearby thicket for two days and two nights for the suspects to appear.

Chief Charles MacArthur did not leave the entire job to his men, but took his turn lying hidden on the cold ground for hours on end. Others taking turns were Sgt. Sterns Webster, Det. Tony Lund and Cnst. Lloyd Wakelin.

During one daytime watch the Police had forgotten to take along any food or coffee and by afternoon were cold and miserable. Suddenly a well known businessman of the city appeared on the scene to exercise his dog. They circled the large field several times as the man gave training commands to the canine. In checking the dog he accidentally stumbled over a large crate of cigarettes. He looked at them for a moment and then picked the box up.

Just at that moment a sepulchral voice from the ground said, "Drop those cigarettes!" He did it in a hurry, and almost turned to stone he stood so still with fright. Laughing, the Police identified themselves and asked as a favor if he would stop at the Police Station and have sandwiches and coffee sent out to them. "Look," he said, "I'm so glad to be alive I'll do it myself." He had had visions of movie gangsters with their loot and unwilling to part with it.

He returned to his own house and had a complete picnic kit fire today demolished the Lunde chicken sandwiches and other cabins, Little Sands.

The president expressed his thanks to the secretary, Mr. Wendall Mutch, for his efforts, and his appreciation to the Directors for their co-operation throughout the year.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4 —(AP)—A shattering pre-dawn blast and fire today demolished the Lunde Air Production Company's acetylene plant. Damage might reach $1,000,000. Two men working in the plant escaped after cutting out generators and pumps and preventing a major catastrophe in the area, firemen said.

VALENCIA, Spain, Dec. 4 —(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Jose Monasterio, 70, commander of all National cavalry during the Spanish Civil War and commander of this military region until his retirement in 1950, died of cancer today. He was a national councillor of the Falange, Spain's only legal political party.

MUNSAN, Korea, Dec. 4 —(AP)—The UN command today told the Reds a new prisoner-of-war camp has been established for Communist POWs. The camp is located near Taegu in Southeast Korea. Its location was outlined on a map given the Reds.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 4 —(AP)—An official decree today ordered all Belgian cattle markets closed pending a check on the extent of foot-and-mouth disease. Spread of the disease has caused much concern among European livestock raisers this year.
