Buergerism Adopted To Make Canadian Unions Democratic

By ROBERT FICKE
OTTAWA (CP)—A former university professor who now is research director for a Canadian trade union has advanced a new philosophy for making unions in Canada more democratic as well as more Canadian.
H. S. Crowe, research officer for the 35,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, contends that the typical trade union in Canada hasn't got enough democratic characteristics or techniques to qualify as a democracy.
"It is an oligarchy, not democracy," he said in a paper delivered to the Ashley Society for the Study of Democracy in Birmingham. "Moreover the oligarchy in whose hands effective power rests is American and not Canadian."

To remedy this, he suggests a drastic reduction in the number of unions in Canada—at present 102 international and national unions representing 1,300,000 workers. At the same time, the unions should be converted to more suitable structures for resolving Canadian matters in Canada.
SEES UNION MARRIAGE
Specifically, Mr. Crowe advocates the "marriage" of Canadian segments of international unions in parallel units for administrative, technical, political and legislative purposes. The constituent unions would continue their collective bargaining roles individually, although

British Conservatives Face Z-Droned Attack

By GEOFFREY WHITEHEAD
LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Douglas-Home's conservative government faces the prospect of a two-pronged attack from the opposition Labour Party from the start of Britain's general election next week.
Whether the election is held in March, June or October—the dates in parallel months—the campaign will get seriously under way within the next few days.
Labour Leader Harold Wilson, determined to take Labour back to power after the party's 13 years out of office, will aim to keep the government on the defensive both in Parliament and in the country.
He and Douglas-Home start their "meet the people" tours of the country shortly. Both leaders will be expected to cover the large proportion of the undecided voters.
TIME FOR CHANGE THEME
Wilson will have a different member of the Labour "shadow cabinet" with him on the platform at each of his meetings and will tackle a new aspect of his party's policy in each speech.
Douglas-Home, who has already established his authority in parliament since Harold Macmillan last October, now plans to build up his personal image in the country as a whole.
He is likely to concentrate on domestic issues in his speeches, arguing that standards of living are rising and claiming that to

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER
FAMOUS HANDS
Ely Culbertson, playing with his wife, Joe, was West.
Jacoby arrived at six clubs and might have had some trouble if West had led a spade, but what happened was Mrs. Culbertson led the ace of hearts even though it was not her turn to lead.
Under the laws then prevailing, this gave Jacoby the right to lead, and later most only a heart trick to make the slam.
The lead out of turn was very helpful because, against a spade lead, Jacoby would have been directed with the ace of hearts and a diamond and might conceivably have gone down.
However, by taking the right view, Jacoby would have made the contract even against a spade lead.
Let's assume there had been no irregularity and that West had led a spade. Declarer wins with the king, draws two rounds of trumps, ending in dummy, and plays the ace of hearts.
If East goes with the ace, South naturally makes the rest, since he can later discard a diamond from dummy on the king and trumps. East therefore plays the seven of hearts on the eight and South wins with the king.
Declarer now enters dummy with a trump, cashes the ace of spades on which he discards a heart, and ruffs a spade. West shows out, proving that East started with seven spades.
Declarer therefore plays East to be short in diamonds and takes advantage of the situation by cashing the A-K of diamonds and exiting with a heart. East takes the ace, but is forced to yield a ruff and discard, permitting declarer to escape the diamond loser.

ant of dissent, hence more democratic.
Mr. Crowe concludes that when the structure of a union is held in balance by two interlocking power blocs operating in different fields of endeavor, the union is more democratic.

Harry Crowe has been with the CBRT since Sept. 1, 1959, shortly after his resignation from Winnipeg's United College where he was involved in a controversy over a personal letter that got into the hands of the principal.
The letter, in which Mr. Crowe expressed views on religious matters which were described by college officials as incompatible with the philosophy of the United College institution and also criticized some other members of the faculty, was written in 1959 from Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., where Mr. Crowe was on loan, to a colleague.
He was dismissed by the board of regents but after strong public reaction, during which several other faculty members resigned in protest against the firing, he was reinstated and his resignation was effective in August, 1959.

RIPELY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT

THE EXISTENCE OF THE TWO COUNTER-BALANCING BLOCs, says Mr. Crowe, tends to keep the two unions more alert, active and progressive, more responsive to membership wishes, more tolerant of dissent, hence more democratic.
