

Myrick Story is interesting

THE DEATH OF John B. Myrick in Tignish this week reminds me that I had once known a business man last fall on a four-day trip to West Prince...

"IT WAS my great-uncle, John H. Myrick who started the business in this province when he located at Yankee Brook...

It was a long time ago, before the days lobsters were fished commercially, that the Myrick came to this province...

Merchants in those days used to lay in their winter supplies early in the year—they came by ship and Myrick had such stores as molasses, sugar, and lard...

Myrick Beef On Boer War Fief

THE MYRICKS canned fish and they also canned meat at Tignish, N.S. They bought their fish from all over the County...

Several of the older West Prince residents told me that they had seen Myrick's boats on the water...

"It was back in 1940 that Harry Holman, Summerside, called and told me a New Jersey man was interested in the business of catching and packing Myrick's cod...

Myrick used to sail to Newfoundland with a boat of fish and the New Jersey man explained "my God, that's Irish money..."

Myrick recalled that his mother had used it to make Blainebank pudding, but up until then it had not been recognized in the community for its true commercial value...

An Important Industry Now

PRICE was a problem at first as the seven cents per pound reportedly paid to him in France was not enough to make it worth handling...

It developed into pretty steady employment for 30 to 40 boats that rake the moss—a large percentage of the moss is raked in a great many places...

Commenting on proposals at the time to establish a production plant on the island, Mr. Myrick suggested the matter was not a simple one...

Mr. Myrick came to the province and the family business, he said, because his great-uncle was a graduate in engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology...

The English man was chairman of the first fisheries conference of Quebec and the Maritime Provinces held in Charlottetown...

Big Dairy Farms in Florida

CHARLES W. MACARTHUR writes me from Daytona Beach, Florida about a mareshead, Charles "Red" White, who milks 2,800 Holstein cows daily to supply the Miami market...

The younger man milks 150 cows at a time in each of four barns, and these units are kept in separate pastures so there is no trouble in keeping the pastures clean...

Mr. MACARTHUR sent me a leaf sheet from the Daytona Beach Evening News which carries a "Readers' Editorials" corner and Charlie's guest editorial on the huge dairy establishments occupied a feature spot...

I recall talking some years ago with a cattle buyer for a huge fluid milk dairy farm outside Boston, and he told me how he fed his cattle inside throughout the year...

Snowshoes Used To Get To Work

MANY PEOPLE in this province have never seen snowshoes but I have used a pair to get to work on stormy days this winter...

The pair I have are more than 40 years old. I bought them several years ago from Warren Lord, Charlottetown...

Island Man Was First Governor

MY ATTENTION has been called to a "Fathers of Confederation" series circulated for publication by the Department of the Interior...

Research I did for a column more than a year ago indicates that Hon. David Laird, a Prince Edward Island man, was the first to undertake that assignment...

There was color, adventure, hardships and danger in the east to Lord and later his son, the late Sir John A. Macdonald...

Many Theories Advanced For CCF Defeat in Sask.

REGINA (CP)—There are many theories as to why clear-cut explanations for the downfall of Saskatchewan's CCF government in a general election after 20 years of uninterrupted rule...

Some observers felt the Liberals won Wednesday because they sold the people on the need for a change—a selling job done through what their opponents termed high-powered campaign program.

The Liberals' program was: Attract more industry, reduce taxes, help the farmer. Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher, a former CCFer, concentrated on his party's platform. He did not rip apart his opponents.

"In past elections we have attacked the government and we were always on the defensive," he said. "This time we staged with our own policies and the government had to answer to us and go on the defensive."

It appeared to some that the government went on the defensive midway in the campaign and apparently didn't know how to react to this unfamiliar role. On top of this was a new leader fighting his first general election campaign.

Mr. Thatcher's government was not a political upheaval in 1964. The government fought the election on its own merits, including a shoe factory and a paper box factory.

The CCF, organized during the depression years, deflated in 1947 as a result of a government hospital insurance plan, first in Canada, and implementation two years ago of a compulsory medical care insurance scheme.

For the first time the government went to the electorate without a crusade. In the 1960 election it was medical care insurance, bitterly opposed then by doctors and opposition parties.

the needs a very mental adjustment and the tendency to stand three weeks of forced retirement from the poultry world. After the hen was selected the proper location must be decided and materials assembled for the nest. Basic was a moist soil, on top of this then straw was turned into a state of semi-compost, the hen was set in the dark of the evening and she was left to her own devices for a week or more.

The question then was would she remain loyal to her biological duties or would she perhaps forsake the nest the next morning or what was even worse remain on the eggs long enough to start the process of incubation then decide to call the deal off. If the necessary 21 days was completed the question was how good would the hatch be and would she look after it once they arrive in the world. In any event the whole proceeding was an intensely busy time for the farmer.

Incidentally the demand for fresh eggs during the war years when it was impossible to get eggs to transport it from the normal sources of supply across the seas.
