ELLEN'S DIARY

Fresh Garden Vegetables Savored At Noon Meal

"This is one of the nicest places, isn't it?" the one girl of this farm remarked this afternoon, looking down from a red cliff at the waves breaking in lacy curls on a shore we know and enjoy. Sun glints be-jewelled the breast of the sea, and the sound of the tides then was like that we sometimes fancy we can hear in the old coral-bused cove in the parlor—a vague sound and serene, a vague whisper of things, as though every last corner of time and place had been settled, and everyone and everything had found at last a satisfying peace.

The gathering up of hay-bales today had taken the trucks on outings which ranged a number of miles, to the delight of the children and others privileged thus to catch rides. Peter enjoyed them, as did Jamie's three, their faces smiling as they gathered in the summer's charms, not the least of which was the sunshine they caught and stored away, to have it by them through the darkish Fall days, and the bleak ones of winter, to which the year will all too soon turn.

"I could stay and stay," she said. "It's lovely here by day, and I'm sure it would be enchanting by moonlight!"

August gives them; the summer's own days, long, and golden, and beautiful, the nights perfected, overlaid, in its time, with moonlight.

"So you're here, safe and a sound!" Alex exclaimed, greeting with a pleased smile the brown bunny when the evening brought him home from his holiday. Scampie too wore his best smile as he joined him in a tour about.

The chicks! Had ever chicks grown so much in so few days as had those nine bantams? As Ellen said, picking up his cap after breakfast to go to the farming, "to have the dinner on the table a bit on the early side, so as not to delay us. It's a great day, this, to get that hay hauled home." Dinner was a slice of steak, nicely ribboned with fat, indeed altogether a cut after James' own heart. Complementing it tastefully were the new potatoes ("Do you eat them skins and all?" Peter was curious to know, when he glanced to come by, "We do!" she nodded.) Crisp lettuce and young beets from the garden, we had. And for dessert bowls of cultivated raspberries from an old garden where flowerings also are.

"These go with the season, Ellen don't they?" James, savoring them commented. "The strawberry time had given us over and over the notes of the bell-like tones over the fields, but somehow the joy of life is not so apparent now as it was in the earlier days of the summer."

"But we gather all to us: every summer day, every loveliness of land and woodland and sea; of sky and haze—the blue of the sun-beat by day, the purple through which our winging star appears. And keep them close, close to the heart."

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good — night....

Heffell-Olscamp Ceremony Solemnized At Summerside

Baskets of summer flowers decorated St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Summerside for a ceremony uniting in marriage Joan Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heffell to David George Olscamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Olscamp, all of Summerside. Rev. Gerald Steele of Alberton officiated.

The bride was wearing a slim, full length gown of Swiss peacock, sole with high collared bodice and lily point sleeves. Her bows accented the waistline. Her pill-box headpiece held a shoulder length veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascade of mums and frenched carnations. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Pat Heffell, maid of honor for her sister, was in a floor length gown of aqua shantung of similar styling to that of the bride's and carried pink mums. Linda Olscamp and Peggy Day of Westmount, P.Q., cousins of the bride were gowned alike in bridesmaid's dresses of shocking pink shantung and with them wore matching shoes, pill box headresses and carried aqua mums.

Mary Lou Heffell, in a floor length gown of aqua shantung, was flower girl for her sister and carried a basket of pink pom-poms.

The groom's attendants were Bobby Gallant as best man and as ushers, John Olscamp and Ron Heffell, brothers of the bride couple.

During the ceremony, "Prayer for a Perfect Life", "Sweet Sacrament Divine" and "Mother of Christ" were sung by Sharon Mullin, accompanied by Mrs. C. Roy Ahearn of Summerside.

At a reception held at the Knights of Columbus Home the bride's mother received wearing a two piece dress of pale blue lace over taffeta, matching organza hat, white accessories and corsage of carnations. The bridegroom's mother was in a coat and dress ensemble of pink brocade, a picture-hat of white lace and corsage of carnations.

The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The guest book was circulated by Doreen Day, the bride's cousin.

Leaving for their honeymoon at the Panc Mountain resort in Pennsylvania, the bride was gowned in blue Alencon lace over taffeta with matching hat, and corsage of carnations. They will reside in Brampton, Ont.

Among the out-of-province guests were Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Olscamp and children, New York State; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lavigne and children, Grandmere, P.Q.; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gallant, Kitchener, Ont.; Wayne Veno, Brampton, Ont.; Harvey Olscamp and daughter, New Brunswick; Al Kelly, Edmonton, Alta.; Mr. Robert Day, Doreen and Peggy, Montreal; and Mrs. Joseph Baird, Linda and JoAnn, Montreal.

Pineapple-Cocoanut Pie Crusty Way To End Meal

FRUIT pies are not necessarily "heavy" foods, but they are refreshing because of their fillings which naturally satisfy the summer appetite.

Today we feature an unusual pineapple-cocoanut lattice pie, suitable to top off, almost any dinner menu, and with a filling as easy to put together as a "mix."

CALORIES HALVED

By the way, if you are looking for a new weight reducing plan, try eating half portions of every food in a meal. Calories will be cut in half, yet you will obtain all the elements in a balanced meal, satisfy your appetite, and have the pleasure of enjoying gourmet desserts, such as the pie we are presenting today.

Measurements are level.

PINEAPPLE-COCOANT LATTICE PIE

1/2 cup sugar
3 tsp. cornstarch
1/4 tsp. salt
1 (1-lb. 4-oz.) can crushed pineapple
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 1/2 tsp. grated lemon peel
2/3 cup flaked pkg. coconut
Pastry for 9" double-crust pie

Mix together sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in undrained crushed pineapple and pineapple juice. Stir-cook over moderate heat until mixture boils and thickens. Stir in butter. Remove from heat, stir in lemon juice, lemon peel, and coconut. Cool five minutes.

Turn into pastry-lined 9" pie plate. Cover with pastry strips arranged lattice fashion. Fold lower crust up and over the ends of the pastry strips. Press together to seal; flute edges. Bake 30 to 35 minutes in hot oven (400 degrees). Cool before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

knings allegation that "Every one knows the answers but you... that's simply not true. Only the specialists do; or those whose business it is to keep posted along these lines.

Within the past year, a nationwide survey of the younger generation's knowledge of modern world history, changing geographic patterns, etc. (results of which were noted in newspapers) disclosed that the vast majority of young adults are pretty much out of touch with, or indifferent to, that kind of learning.

It appeared that few indeed are reliably well read on these subjects, and the others seem to feel no qualms about their oversight (if such it is).

The problem posed by your husband's periodic bellicose quiz - sessions (designed to demoralize, not to enlighten), is not what you think. It is how to arm yourself with the answers. Rather, it is how to cope with his sick neurotic bias, which finds outlet in brow-beating you, when he is gripped by resurgent self-contempt.

Actually, you need family relations counselling help, far more than your need remedial reading lessons at this writing. But to track down the private tutoring you have in mind, check with the Information Service, or Dean of Admissions' office, at any of the several universities in your town, M.H.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

Institutes Are Entertained At Social Get-To-Gether

A pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mrs. George Dunning when members of the Springfield and North Granville Women's Institutes were entertained at her home.

At the close of a short business period, Ernest Dunning and Wilbert Stetson showed color slides of the Island and elsewhere. The prize for "Naming the Flowers" contest was won by Mrs. Frank Deacon.

Following refreshments, a short sing-song with Mrs. Ernest Dunning at the piano brought to a close.

UBWMU Plans 59th. Yearly Convention

The United Baptist Women's Missionary Union of the Atlantic Provinces, are planning to hold their 59th Convention in Wolfville — August 24th to August 26th.

There will be many highlights during the three days of the program. Stella Gaverluk, a Canadian Christian Fellowship Missionary in Toronto, will be the special speaker on Tuesday Evening, August 22nd. A native of Europe, she speaks several languages, so is well fitted for her chosen work.

Mrs. Evangeline Crowe, of Campbellton, N.B. will preside and the devotions will be led by Mrs. T. W. Howard of Charlottetown, vice-president, and Mrs. R. G. MacCormack, Halifax. The theme of the Convention will be "Open Doors."

There will be special music at each session and addresses will be given by missionaries in Africa and Bolivia.

Lemon-butter for garnish
Brush cubed steaks all over with lemon juice. Mix and rub in garlic powder, salt and pepper.
Melt butter in large skillet. Saute cubed steaks until browned, about seven minutes on each side. Present steaks, each steak garnished with thin slice of lemon-butter. Serve 6.
The chef explains "Garni" means: in French, "the garnish." (garnish) means garnished. Par exemple, the Jellied Madrilene Garni in today's menu-could be garnished with thin cross-cut slices of scalions, a slice of raw mushroom, a little minced parsley, and a lemon slice.

Wedding Bells Ring Out For Fort Augustus Bride

St. Patrick's Church, Fort Augustus was the scene of a wedding in July when Catherine Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Murnaghan, Fort Augustus, became the bride of Louis Brendon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lund, Tracadie Cross.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. James Smith who celebrated the nuptial mass. Rev. Vincent G. Murnaghan and Rev. T. P. Butler were seated in the sanctuary.

The organist, Bernadette Power accompanied by her sister Patricia and George MacDonald sang hymns during the ceremony and signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of organza over peau de soie with full skirt accented by self fabric roses and pearl and lace applique. The neckline was accented with pearls and net, the fitted bodice featured tiered veil held in place with a rosette of pearls and crystals, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Linda Blanchard, Charlottetown and bridesmaid Mrs. Jeanne Gauthier, Emerald wore identical street length dresses of blue peau de soie satin with matching shoes. Their headresses were matching veils and bows and they carried bouquets of white and blue tinted carnations.

Karen Gallant, Picton, Ontario, niece of the bride, was flower girl in a dress of pink peau de soie satin and matching hair-boa. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Gerard Murnaghan, brother of the bride was best man and guests were ushered by Edwin Lund, Tracadie Cross, and Gerard Smith, Fort Augustus.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Murnaghan chose a royal blue dress of lace over taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a silk figured turquoise dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 165 guests was held at the Holy Redeemer Community Centre, Charlottetown, where the bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The master of ceremonies, Adrian Smith, uncle of the bride proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

The guest book was circulated by Reta Lund, sister of the groom.

For a honeymoon around the Cabot Trail, the bride wore a pink and white sheath with matching pink duster and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The newlyweds are residing at 151 Upper Prince Street, Charlottetown. The bride is on the staff of Spring Park School and the groom is a civil service employee of the provincial government.

MARY HAWORTH

Young Bride Demoralized By Knowledgeable Mate

Dear Mary Haworth: I am married not quite a year, to a man who is 10 years my senior. He went to a regular college, also to a business college, and I have been working at a secretarial job since I graduated from high school, where I majored in the secretarial course.

My husband gets very angry at times because I don't know the answers to different questions he asks me about history, geography, news stories, etc. He will say, "Everyone knows the answers but you." That makes me feel awful. I was thinking of enrolling in night school courses in history and geography; but it might be useless, as I am such a slow reader.

It takes me about a month or two to read one rather simple book. And, being a slow reader, I don't get much out of newspapers either, at the beginning or end of an 8-hour work day. I've taken some remedial reading courses, which didn't help much, as I was assigned to a class with people who do a lot of reading in their jobs.

Once the instructor passed copies of a modern novel to the class, but ran out of copies as he got to me, so I was given a book about communism. He started timing the class; pupils were supposed to finish a page in a given time... and I couldn't keep up.

I was thinking of private tutoring in remedial reading. Do you know of such a service? Can you tell me what to do or say when my husband gets angry about my inability to answer his questions? I'll feel better fortified if I have your answer before he questions me again. Sincerely, V.V.

Couple United At Basilica

The marriage of Anna Mary Dennis, daughter of Mrs. Wilfred J. Dennis and the late Mr. Dennis to Raymond Albert Langevin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester J. Langevin of Mexico, Maine was solemnized in July at St. Dunstan's Basilica by Rev. Msgr. William Simpson.

Given in marriage by her brother, Stirling, the bride was in a floor length gown of lace with lily point sleeves and full entrain skirt of peau de soie. Her elbow length veil of tulle was held by a tiara of rhinestones and pearls. She carried red roses.

Elizabeth Dennis, maid of honor for her sister, Mrs. Raymond Murphy and Gertrude Reeves, bridesmaids, all of this city, wore similar gowns of brocade taffeta with scooped necklines, semi-full skirts and elbow length sleeves, in shades of pink, aqua and gold. Their headresses were matching circles tinted mums.

The groomsmen's attendants were Peter Langevin, best man for his brother; Harvie Dennis and John B. MacDonald as ushers.

At the reception, held at the Keppoch Beach Hotel, guests were received by the bride's mother wearing ivory satin embossed in blue with ivory accessories, picture hat of natural straw and corsage of white mums.

The bridegroom's mother was in a blue gown with lace jacket, hat of navy silk and corsage of white mums.
