Winners in the various competitions for the different trophies could not be determined last night but will be announced in the near future. A quick glance at the tabulations revealed keen competition among all participating groups.

Ontario Adjudicators To Judge Festival Instrumental Classes

With the exception of Gaelic singing, all the vocal and instrumental classes of Prince Edward Island's 14th annual Festival of Music will be adjudicated by three artists all prominent in Canadian musical circles.

They are: Boris Roubakine, who teaches piano classes at the senior school of Toronto's Royal Conservatory; Garfield L. Bender, director of music in the Kitchener schools for 18 years and the York County (Toronto) schools for three years; and Earl Terry, B.A., B. Paed., M. Mus., director of music, New St. James Presbyterian Church, London, Ontario.

Mr. Roubakine was born and educated in Switzerland where he received the Virtuosity Diploma "with congratulations and highest distinction."

Well known in his native land both as a teacher and a performer, he appeared as soloist with all his country's major orchestras.

For seven years, between 1930 and 1936 he was accompanist for the famed European violinist, Bronislaw Huberman, whom he accompanied on concert tours throughout the world.

An organist and choralmaster with 30 years experience in this field, Mr. Bender for a number of years taught classes in piano, organ, voice and theory for a number of years. For 15 years he conducted summer schools for teachers in Halifax, Toronto and Saskatchewan.

Mr. Terry gained international fame when his group of vocalists, known as the Earle Terry Singers was chosen to represent Canada at UNESCO's international conference on music, held in Brussels, Belgium, the conference resulted in the Terry-led group being invited to do a tour of various European cities.

In addition to his work with the Presbyterian church in London, Mr. Terry is also director of music for the London Board of Education, lecturer in music education at the University of Western Ontario, and examiner for the Western Conservatory of Music.

As a music commentator he is frequently heard on the national networks of the CBC.

The pastor of Fort Massey United Church, Halifax, Rev. Dr. Donald MacLean Sinclair will adjudicate this year's classes in Gaelic singing. A classical scholar who studied Gaelic in Scotland the Rev. Mr. Sinclair is a former pastor of Valleyfield United Church.

He will be assisted by Mrs. Allison MacRae, A.R.C.M., organist at Central Christian Church, Charlottetown.

Dr. C. Frederick MacRae, professor of English at Mt. Allison University, Sackville, N. B., will adjudicate the classes in choral reading.

Professor MacRae has adjudicated at many drama festivals and has directed many plays in university circles.

Mrs. Roger Fink, noted Highland dancer of Halifax, will again adjudicate the festival's classes in Highland and folk dancing. This will be Mrs. Fink's second appearance here in a similar capacity.

The first week of the festival which is scheduled to commence Saturday in Summerside and Monday in Charlottetown is devoted to dancing, choral reading and Gaelic singing classes, the vocalists and instrumentalists not appearing until the second week.

In Charlottetown concurrent sessions will be held in three halls: Birchwood High Auditorium, Queen Charlotte High Auditorium and Prince of Wales College auditorium.

Official opening of the 1959 festival will take place at Prince of Wales College at 7:30 p.m. Monday evening, May 4. Montague competitions will be held on May 2, 4, and 5.

Cadet Inspection Is Slated Today

The annual inspection of St. Dunstan's College Cadet Corps, No. 84, will take place this afternoon at the Charlottetown Armouries. The inspection will take place at 2.30.

Colonel A. W. Rogers, ED, commanding officer of 2 Militia Group, will be accompanied on the inspection tour by Major K. Wildfang, GS2, Captain J. J. MacDonald area Cadet officer, and Lieutenant Eric Temple, all of Eastern Command Headquarters, Halifax.

Cadet Major Harry Callaghan is officer commanding the college corps. Second-in-command is Cadet Captain John Bent.

Lieutenant Frank Callaghan commands No. 1 platoon and Lieutenant Claude Vautour commands No. 2. Company sergeant-major will be Brian Morris with Richard Tingley as company quartermaster sergeant-major.

Training of the corps during the year was carried out under the supervision of chief instructor Major (Rev.) F. L. Cass. Lieutenant A. J. MacAdam and Officer Cadet Noel McCormac assisted in the training.

The corps band will be under the direction of Lloyd Ward.

There will be no inspection of

COL. A. W. ROGERS

Prince of Wales College cadets this year, Lieutenant-Commander Robert LeClair.

Reasons given were the high incidence of influenza among the cadets and the close proximity of examinations.

Parliamentary

"As announced by the minister of health, the whole proceeding smacks of indifference to the expressed will of our representatives in the Legislature.

"By a vote of the elected representatives the Legislature turned back the mandatory principle to a voluntary principle.

"If this recent announcement is carried through to its proposed intention, and other people are left in complete confusion regarding the intentions of the government on this most important question, we might very well ask if a parliamentary decision is to be flouted in this manner.

"The minister states that the word 'mandatory' does not mean a thing, one way or another. If we are to believe our dictionaries the word means 'the nature of an authoritative command, obligatory, to administer under a mandate.'

"Would not Ontario agree with this meaning when it insisted that the mandatory clause be placed in it legislation?

"So our Health Minister goes on to inform us that should the voluntary system fail, the compulsory or mandatory element will be invoked and our people will be compelled to come in, 'like it or not' without further recourse to legislative sanction.

DECEPTION CHANGED

"Surely it is time, the people of this province awoken to the government's floundering methods, and the deceptive, scanty information provided the public on this very important public issue.

"Regarding the minister's statement that the Conservative Party is attempting to scuttle hospital insurance, I give that statement an unequivocal denial; the statement is only made to cover up the Government's weakness in promoting this policy.

"The Conservative representative, during the Legislature session, never deviated from their policy of supporting legislation promoting hospital insurance and in offering the government helpful and constructive suggestions as to the best means to be adopted for its successful implementation.

"The Conservative Party are 100 per cent behind hospital insurance, and if given the opportunity of doing so, will place this policy in operation on a basis that will include the great majority of our people, without huge additional costs, or public excitement, and on a financial basis that will find favor with our people."

Weekend Briefs

LORD BEAVERBROOK begins a warm and entertaining account of his 50-year relationship with R. B. Bennett in the first of four instalments in The Patriot's Weekend Magazine tomorrow. This is no biographical sketch of one of Canada's Prime Ministers, but a narrative based on an intimate friendship, close business associations and a common political faith. The first episode describes their early acquaintance in New Brunswick, when Beaverbrook recalls campaigning on a bicycle for his hero Bennett—the first man to stir his own ambitions.

ARE ANIMALS SMARTER than people? If you're convinced that your cat has more ingenuity than your neighbor's small boy, prepare to have your illusions shattered. Anthony Barnett, zoology lecturer at the University of Glasgow, disproves some favorite theories of animal lovers in tomorrow's Weekend. Are animals really capable of love and devotion? Are they worthy of the human qualities we attribute to them? Does Lassie agree with Mr. Barnett?

"DEBBIE REYNOLDS IS LIKE a sports car—zippy, nippy, with a lot of engine under a little hood." Weekend Staff Writer Stephen Franklin came to this conclusion after interviewing Debbie, "the hottest property in Hollywood today." With more mature roles forecast, the public image of this energetic lass as a bubbling sophomore is due for a change.

WHEN THE QUEEN SUGGESTED the official portraits for the royal tour be taken by a Canadian, the honor was given to photographer Donald C. McKague, of Toronto. He still "can't get over" how co-operative his royal subjects were during a special sitting at Buckingham Palace. See the results of McKague's interesting poses of the royal couple featured in full color in Weekend Magazine.

Father Robin enumerated some of the many requirements of teachers in their daily work and the strict supervision over them by the department of education, the supervisors, the principals and the parents.

He also pointed out some of the problems which confront the

The members gathered in discussion groups to discuss the question raised by the speakers.

DRAW BRIDGE TO OPEN

Roger Ferguson, mechanic with the department of highways tunes up the engine which operates the draw mechanism in the Hillsboro Bridge preparatory to opening the draw early in May. The Foundation Maritime Ltd., which has the contract for constructing the abutments and piers of the new bridge will be bringing a large floating crane and scow through the opening at that time. The swinging section of the old bridge has not operated since the early 30s when many will remember the weekly excursion trips of the SS Harland. Previous to this time, there were many occasions when the bridge had to be opened to allow for river traffic. Brenton L. Wood, a retired CNR bridge and building foreman is the only living person who has knowledge of the operation and will be consulted regarding the bridge's opening. The tenders for construction of the superstructure of the bridge will be opened today.
