

THE RIGHT HAT

By ALICE ALDEN
IT'S HERE again, that hat with the padre brim that hasn't been around for years. Its lines, like those of the roller, are considered perfect to top the lean lines of the chemise silhouette. Christian Dior features the padre, this one of natural leghorn straw. The simple crown is firmly bowed and banded with black grosgrain ribbon for a youthful look.

North Granville Couple Observe 62nd Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William Folland, North Granville, were pleasantly surprised December 24th, on their 62nd wedding anniversary when ladies of the community called and presented them with a beautiful decorated anniversary cake from the Women's Institute. They also received a lovely arm chair, bed spread and sum of money from their neighbors and friends as a token of the esteem in which this worthy couple is held.

WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS

Mothers Seldom Consider Daughters Entirely Adult

By Ruhamah S. Frank

Curiously enough my informal survey of the past weeks has failed to uncover a single instance where elderly parents, physically able and economically free to do as they wish are living in the home of their married children. There probably are such cases that may yet come to light. Seldom does intentional unkindness on the part of the children have much to do with the decision of the parents to live alone. Among the reasons given are those already cited in this column: too much coddling; on the other hand, too big a share of the household work (imposed on the parent or assumed by her to prove her usefulness); need for peace and quiet (heard very often); and greater loneliness amid the normal social activities in the home (very true, according to comments).

her mother-being told how to wear my hair and how to dress-for those young--well, for those young friends of hers! "You won't believe me," she laughed, "but I didn't say a word--honestly--I let her take me to her beauty parlor and dress shop--and I didn't know myself--and worse, I didn't like myself when Ellen got through with me! But I gritted my teeth and said to myself, "Old Lady, you can take it for three weeks--Thank Heavens you didn't come for longer!" Her story brought on a spirited discussion. The gist of it was that no mother can keep her pride and independence in her daughter's home. It isn't the daughter's fault--it isn't the mother's. No mother can really, in her heart-get over considering her daughter a young, inexperienced person--not even when the daughter has children of her own. The mother feels she must guide her and not take second place in her home. W.E. (to be continued).

MOTHER-DAUGHTER

Behind the reasons given above, lie more basic factors. My friend, Mrs. Wilson has just returned from a three weeks' stay with her daughter and son-in-law and vividly told of her reactions to that experience. "I needn't tell you how much I love Ellen," she said (to a group of us having a nice cup of tea together), "but am I glad to get back to my own little room! I don't mind saying I had been thinking of living with Ellen and Joe--they have a big home and a lovely garden and Joe is a dear and the children are darlings--but I'll never consider it a jinx-while I'm in my right senses! Imagine me sitting back and watching Ellen spoiling her nice husband and children within an inch of their lives and not saying a word. We all laughed with Mrs. Wilson. She was a dynamic outspoken person who had a pretty clear idea of her virtues and her defects--and rightly valued herself for the interesting and likeable individual she was.

INDIGNITY

"And the way she criticized my clothes and my hair--do! I don't blame her for wanting me to make a good impression on her friends--but me--at my age and

TANTON'S ACCESSORIES LTD.
"Quality merchandise at fair prices" has been the motto of Tanton's Accessories since 1929 when the firm first commenced business in Charlottetown. At that time Mr. W. D. Tanton, who is still chief shareholder in the greatly-expanded firm, resolved that his concern would offer the public only the best in automotive parts and accessories. The steady growth of their province-wide trade reflected in a move to more commodious quarters in 1940, and a further extension of their premises in 1957, is ample proof that the public have appreciated Tanton's determination to serve them with nothing but the best. Located at 152 Great George, the up-to-date establishment is easily accessible to garage operators or casual customers.
Anything your car may require to put it in good running condition can be purchased at Tanton's who carry a complete line of Toledo-Thompson parts, which they claim are "the best procurable." In addition this well-known Island firm have been distributors for the famous McCord gasket for 30 years.
Among other public services developed by Tanton's during the three decades they have catered to the Island purchaser are: an up-to-the-minute glass-fitting department and a complete line of tractor parts and accessories.
One of Mr. Tanton's sons, Darold, is associated with him in the operation of the family business; another son, Roger, a member of the R.C.A.F., is stationed at Hamilton, Ontario; a third son, Peter, is still at school. The Tantons' only daughter, Joanne, now Mrs. Julius Arvay, resides in Hamilton.
