Let's Talk It Over

Gabriel Chiasson and his Summerside sea-cadet band seem to be making quite an impression in Halifax. While down in that vicinity, we heard some very favorable comments seem very long since this band was organized, and we remember hearing the first raucous blasts from their instruments, their performances. It doesn't Under Mr. Chiasson's able tutelage they have come a long way since then.

Sometimes we misgauge what tourists are thinking of our weather. During Summerside's "Lobster Carnival Week" temperatures were abnormally low for July, there was an unusual chill in the wind, and many of us natives were complaining about the cool breezes. Fears were expressed that tourists might not feel like coming back to Summerside another year as they might take it for granted that 1957's July temperatures were a part of our normal weather bill-of-fare.

One tourist we talked to at this time, however, was enchanted with our climate. He was taking deep breaths of our night air as if it were some rare perfume, and vowing to come back again next year. You see, he had just come from heat-ridden New England where "old Sol" had given the residents a real drubbing this summer.

fered from bruises and shock. Beverly was able to return home and Cpl. Smallman was discharged from the hospital on Sunday. The condition of the others is satisfactory. Mr. Wells and Mrs. Smallman were able to leave hospital Monday.
