

Irish Bob Murphy In TKO Over Jake La Motta

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, June 27 (AP) — Irish Bob Murphy eluded Jake La Motta's face into a bloody pulp tonight to stop the former middleweight champion on a technical knockout after seven rounds of head-to-head battering. Dr. Vincent Nardiello stopped the blood-letting with Jake spouting red from slashes around both eyes and mouth.

With no radio and no home television, the first major outdoor show of New York drew 21,377 fans who paid a gross gate of $146,690.

Although announcer Johnny Addie announced the bout was stopped when Jake was unable to come out for the eighth round, Referee Ray Miller said it was an official seventh-round knockout under New York rules.

Everybody was as confused as LaMotta, who now has been stopped three times but still never knocked off his feet in 97 professional bouts.

Bleeding badly from the cuts of his eyes and lip, LaMotta told the doctor he "felt weak" when he questioned him in his corner after the seventh. He had been taking a savage beating from the Irishman from San Diego, Calif., in the last three rounds.

Heavier than he ever fought before at 175 pounds, Jake was slow. The extra 15 pounds he picked up since Feb. 14 when he lost his title to Ray Robinson at Chicago obviously did him no

Falcons And Anchors Meet In Game Tonight

The two middle teams in the City Baseball League, the Northwest Falcons and the West end Anchors will battle it out for the sole possession of second place tonight on Memorial Field diamond. The teams will go into the game on even footing each having a two-two record.

Lanky "Gump" Gillis will start on the mound for the Falcons announced Coach Buck Whitlock last night. Gillis, in his only appearance this season, held the Eastern Stars scoreless with a masterful piece of clutch pitching. Martin MacKenzie will take care of the pitching duties for the Anchors, stated coach Johnny Stanley. After getting away to a shaky start the Anchors have come through with two wins in their last two appearances.

Game time is 5.45.

GLASGOW, June 27 (Reuters) — Peter Keenan of Glasgow successfully defended his British bantamweight crown tonight by stopping Bobby Boland of Dundee.

Murphy, on the other hand, was sharp at 175 1-2 about his best fighting weight.

Keen Battles, Surprise Win Feature Races At Local Track Last Night

Two terrific battles between Jenny and Nell Kalmuck and a surprise win by Little Rosalie Hooper in the seventh heat highlighted an exciting night's racing at the Exhibition track last night. The races were viewed by approximately 1,000 people.

Over at the pari-mutuels pay booths excitement was running even higher at times. Rosalie Hooper paid off to the tune of $140.60 for a win ticket and the daily double paid $140.20.

Jenny and Nell Kalmuck put on a stinging battle as has been seen in racing circles for some time. Jenny Kalmuck won the first, Nell won the second and both were so close that they had to be finally decided by photos.

Jenny, led the first race from wire to wire with Nell making a terrific drive from the three quarter mark. In the second event, driver Willard Kelly, changing from his usual driving procedure, pulled Nell out at the three-eighths pole. They raced together like twins around the track to the stretch where Nell came on to win by a nose.

Mary Merk and Lilly Marlene, both bay mares won two heats each. Mary Merk was in a class all by herself in winning the first and fifth heats. Lilly Marlene, won the third heat by two lengths but was pushed to the wire by Dean Swift in order to take the ninth dash.

Rosalie Hooper, driven by Walter Craig, came from third place to win the seventh heat. J. S. J. led the field until the horses hit the stretch but then the Little Hooper mare put on a burst to come home in front.

J. S. J., owned and driven by H. B. Willis won the second heat and paid $31.80. Rosalie Hooper finished sixth.

Miss Knox, a bay mare driven by Len O'Meara turned in the fastest mile of the night when she went the mile in 2:11 1-5. Silk Hal, driven by Roach MacGregor, won the tenth dash with Miss Knox finishing second.

There were two ticket holders on Rosalie Hooper in the seventh race. One of them was Elmer DesRoches from Summerside, a young man about 18. The other lucky better had not turned in his ticket at closing time. The pay was $149.60.

J. S. J. and Lilly Marlene, winners of the second and third heats paid off in the daily double. There were two ticket holders, one of them being Mrs. Marion Dockendorf of Charlottetown.

Entries Sought For Bicycle Road Race

Athletes planning on taking part in the 10-mile bicycle race or the 6-mile road race being held in Charlottetown July 2, at the start of Festive Week, were reminded to get their entries in to the Department of Physical Fitness. Brig. W. W. Reid said plans for the events were well in hand and it would appear that there would be exciting and keenly contested events.

Other events planned for Festive week include a track and field meet for active members of the services on July 3 and a special track and field meet for boys and girls from rural areas on July 6.

Series Of Prize Shoots Are Planned

On the next four Saturday afternoons the Provincial Rifle Association plans to hold prize shoots at the Squaw Point Range, officials of the organization announced last night. The object is to provide a "tune-up" for the Provincial meet on July 30.

This coming Saturday ten shots at 200 yards and 10 at 600 are planned. The following week there will be 10 shots at 300 and the same number at 600. The third Saturday, which will be July 14, and there will be 10 shots at 300 yards and 10 at the 600 range. For the fourth week-end, the shots and ranges are still to be decided.

Preparations Under Way For Festive Week

Charlottetown Streets received their preliminary touches of colour in preparation for Festive Week yesterday as coloured lights and strings of flags appeared in various sections.

Entering the city on Longworth Avenue motorists drove under a canopy of large, brightly hued flags from the railway tracks to Euston Street. The next string is on Kent Street at the corner of Prince.

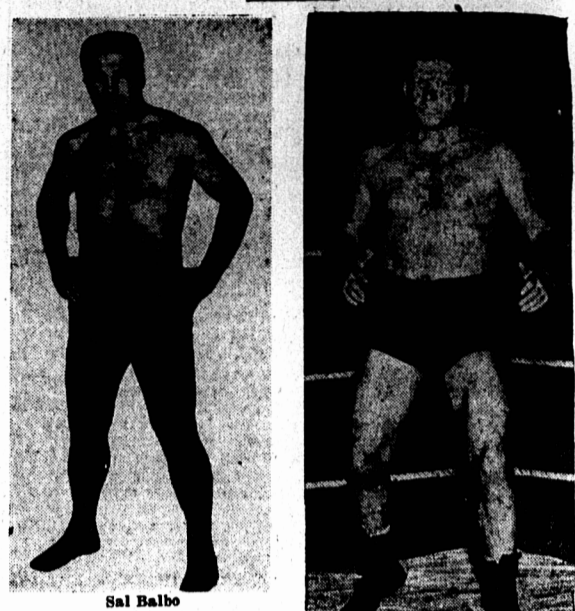

In the downtown section, Kent Street from Great George to Queen is strung with colored lights through the co-operation of the merchants in that area, with the work being done by Brown Electric.

On Queen Street, Woolworths and S. A. MacDonald's were decorating their store fronts most attractively, using flags and triangular shields, and Chappell and Co., were hanging colored lights for the entire block of merchants.

Holman's is resplendent with flags of all colors and the City has strung flags on the Market Square and at the City Hall.

Residents and visitors to Charlottetown in the next few days will become increasingly aware of the excitement which is seeping into the shopping area of the City as it prepares for what promises to be a gale week of fun.

Wrestling Team Tag Match Here Tonight Offers Many Thrills

Prince Edward Island sports fans who have never seen a wrestling team tag match are in for the treat of their lives at the Charlottetown Forum tonight. For the first time Charlottetown fans and those from surrounding districts will see four of the greatest names in the game mingle in one great sports feature.

Here are the rules of the game. They pair off, two to a side. One is supposed to take on one from the other side, relieving each other in times of stress. Perfect teamwork means a lot. Not more than two are permitted to go inside the ropes at one time. That is, according to the rules. But in a team tag match, which offers more in sensational wrestling than any other sport, everything goes because the referee is often powerless to act.

Here are the sides—Len Hughes and Sal Balbo against Ivan Rasputin and Tiny Mills. A word about each. Versatility is the word to describe Hughes. He has been in the game a long time, has the enthusiasm of a young man, and the experience of a veteran. His partner is a real speedball, one of the fastest the game has known.

Rasputin is built like a truck, low-slung and powerful. He is a hairy individual who looks like a bear. His bear-hug is a menace and a caution. His partner Tiny Mills is a giant of a man, and a mean one. He uses his weight, height and experience at all times, isn't fussy what rules he kicks around as long as he gets what he wants.

There will be two supporting bouts—Hughes against Mills and Balbo against Rasputin, both limited to one fall and 20 minutes. The main event is to a finish, with no time limit. Best two falls in three wins the honors.

Feature Articles In West Indies Magazine

The June edition of "Canada-West Indies Magazine" is a Maritime issue and features individual articles on Premier J. Walter Jones and Prince Edward Island. Published in Huntingdon, Quebec, the magazine is published monthly for the promotion of mutual interests of Canada, Bermuda, the British West Indies, British Guiana, British Honduras and other British countries in the Caribbean.

Under the caption, "Master Breeder, Premier of Province," the illustrated article on Premier Jones reviews his life since his birth at Pownal in 1878, and picks up highlights of his career in education, athletics, fur farming and as a breeder of Holstein-Friesian cattle.

"A Wave-washed; Wind-swept, Air Cooled Province . . . the most beautiful I have ever seen," is the sub-heading over the informative story about this Province. Illustrated with many pictures of activities and scenes of the Island, the article states this Province to be one of the best agricultural areas in North America.

It refers to the well-planned farm programs as being the reason for stabilized economy of the Province. It adds that the cattle population is between 90,000 and 100,000, or roughly, the same number as there are people on the Island. During the past year 900 head of Island cattle, chiefly the dairy type, were exported to the United States. Another 4,000 cattle and about 2,000 calves were shipped to markets in Newfoundland.

The fishing and tourist industries are also reviewed and complete an article which will no doubt arouse much interest in the distant countries which are reached by "Canada-West Indies Magazine."
