Killed, 12 Injured In Jail Fire

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP)—A fire and explosion wrecked the overcrowded Ocean County jail Sunday, killing eight prisoners and injuring 12 other persons. One of the victims was serving 90 days for disorderly conduct. The others were awaiting disposition of a variety of charges, including rape, murder, larceny and forgery. They were among 65 prisoners crowded into the two-story jail with a recommended capacity of 28. The blaze broke out in a padded cell where one prisoner was placed Saturday on a drunkenness charge after he had ripped apart a cell in the local jail in nearby Lakewood. He was burned to death. The other victims died of asphyxiation in a second floor wing where jail guards and firemen tried vainly to reach them.

Peasants Fight China Drought

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China says it has mobilized nearly 60,000,000 peasants to rescue the cracked and dusty earth in nine provinces from the worst drought in 17 years. Working from dawn to dusk, this work force is reported to be digging wells, building reservoirs and dredging canals in an effort to defeat this now threat to the country's food supply. Coming on the heels of disastrous floods in central and south China, and accompanied by plagues of locusts, the five-week-old drought appears to jeopardize Communist plans to produce 525,000,000 tons of grain this year, a 40 per cent increase over 1958.

PM's Life Threatened In 2 Telephone Calls

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Two telephone calls threatening the life of Prime Minister Diefenbaker were received Friday night at station CJLH-TV station. Special security action was taken immediately by RCMP and city police but no incident occurred. Mr. Diefenbaker was to go "on camera" shortly when the first anonymous call was received. The caller said that if the prime minister appeared on TV, "something pretty serious will happen to him." Police were called immediately by Norman Botterill, manager of CJLH-TV. Police cars travelled in front of and behind Mr. Diefenbaker's car in the cavalcade as the prime minister went to the station. RCMP officers in plainclothes were present when the prime minister was being interviewed. While the interview program was being broadcast, a second phone call was received at the station. The caller, with the voice similar to that of the person making the first call, said: "Get him off right now, or what we said would happen will happen." Security precautions were put into effect and maintained until 10:30 p.m. when the prime minister's aircraft took off for Vancouver. In Vancouver Saturday, a member of the prime minister's staff said: "As far as any of us are concerned, including Mr. Diefenbaker, we don't know the first thing about the so-called threats." Prime Minister Diefenbaker was in Vancouver Saturday to open the Pacific National Exhibition. In Lethbridge, Staff Sergeant W. A. Allen of the RCMP said: "These calls were obviously the work of a crank. But we cannot afford to ignore them and all possible security measures were taken."

KIDS' PRANKS STOP TRAINS

BOOLE, England (AP)—British railway officials made this appeal to the children of Boole Saturday: Stop putting your heads on the track in front of approaching trains. "Locomotive drivers are getting so nervous over this practice that many refuse to operate trains going anywhere near Boole," said an official. Drivers have reported that the youngsters line up along the track, put their heads on the rails and issue challenges to see who will stay there longest. It's the old game of trying to find out who's chicken. "Naturally, we have to stop," said motorman Albert Price. "But the kids just ran further up the track and get their heads down again."

Proposal Made At Church Meet

RHODES, Greece (Reuters)—Eastern Orthodox theologians Sunday confirmed reports they had accepted Roman Catholic proposals to hold a theological conference in Venice next year with a view to rapprochement of the two churches which split nine centuries ago. The proposals were put forward by two Roman Catholic priests at a private meeting here Friday night, and were then understood to have come directly from the Vatican. The two priests have been attending the central committee meeting of the World Council of Churches here as journalists. One of them, Rev. Jean Dumont, a writer of the French Catholic journal Istina, told a reporter Saturday they had put forward the proposals on the instructions for the priests to "make any agreements" concerning a meeting between theologians of the two churches. He added that as far as he knew the two priests were attending the Rhodes conference purely as observers. (The Associated Press quoted Father Dumont Sunday as saying "I spoke only in my own name. It is pure fantasy to say I spoke for the Vatican or that we reached a formal agreement.") But Bishop Iakovos of Philadelphia, Asia Minor, the main representative of the Orthodox Patriarchate of Constantinople at the Rhodes conference, said the proposals had been made and accepted in principle. Bishop Iakovos is a member of an Orthodox Church committee set up to help work out details concerning the Orthodox-Roman Catholic conference. POPE'S JANUARY MESSAGE Pope John last January called for an ecumenical council of the church, which the Vatican described as "an invitation to the separated communities in quest of unity." The Orthodox Church is regarded as "schismatic" and not "heretical" in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church, as with other Oriental churches it preserved the apostolic succession although detaching itself from Rome. Cardinal Tisserant, in an interview published in the Athens newspaper Atropolis, Sunday called for "brotherly meetings and extradiocesan matters" as a first step towards reunion of the eastern and western churches. SPLIT IN 1954 Communion between the sees of Rome and Constantinople, centre of the Eastern Church as with other Oriental churches it preserved the apostolic succession although detaching itself from Rome. The Orthodox churches rejected supremacy claims by the bishop of Rome and refused to enforce celibacy in the priesthood. They also opposed the use of unleavened bread in communion. There are about 130,000,000 Orthodox Christians in the world, compared with about 500,000,000 Roman Catholics. The world council Saturday appealed to its 173 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox member churches to give full support to the world reunion year launched last month under the auspices of the United Nations.

Ships Collide, 6 Are Missing

LONDON (AP)—Two ships sank Saturday night in two separate collisions off the fog-shrouded British coast. Six men were feared lost. The 42-ton trawler Saxton Wyke and the 10,000-ton motorship Dalhousie collided 12 miles out in the north sea off the Yorkshire coast. Both ships were British owned. Sixteen of the trawler's crew were picked up by the Dalhousie after their ship went down. Rescue ships searched all day for five other fishermen but gave up late Sunday night. Twenty men were rescued from the sinking 304-ton Spanish ship Naranco after she collided with the 8,694-ton Panamanian motorship Goldstone in the English Channel off Dover. One man was missing. Governor's Son Weds Norwegian

SOGNE, Norway (AP)—Steven Rockefeller and radiant Anne Marie Rasmussen spoke the vows of man and wife Saturday in her village church. The son of New York's governor took the left hand of the former minister's daughter in a plain-wedding ceremony. The bridegroom is a member of the rich Rockefeller clan. It was, in the words of the bridegroom's mother, "a beautiful, beautiful service." Blonde Anne Marie, beautiful in a shimmering white wedding gown, was pale throughout the 45-minute ceremony but she had her emotions well in hand. Steven, at 23 two years older than his bride, scarcely took his eyes from her. DIFFERENT FAITHS The traditional service of the Norwegian Lutheran Church was performed by Rev. Olav Gautestad, Anne Marie's pastor. The Rockefeller are Baptists. The parents of both newly weds attended the wedding. The pastor told the couple: "Your example shows that real love, which is from God, breaks down all the social and conventional barriers amongst us. To build a good home is perhaps the greatest of all arts." MET IN NEW YORK Steven met Anne Marie, daughter of a storekeeper on this Norwegian coast, when she went to New York to learn English and took a job as maid in Nelson A. Rockefeller's Fifth Avenue home. An instant before the 4 p.m. ceremony cheers rose from the road outside the church. Crowds lined the road standing behind a roped off area which stretched about 1,000 yards.

50 Prison Rioters Are In 'Solitary'

GUELPH, Ont. (CP)—Nearly 50 prisoners of the Ontario reformatory still are in solitary confinement Sunday as evidence against them is reviewed at institutional trials. About 700 prisoners rioted Friday, following small-scale riots Wednesday and Thursday. Saturday 300 inmates were herded into the basement auditorium and spent the night there. Sunday they were allowed to return to their cells and their own beds. About $12,000 damage was caused during the three worst days of rioting, mostly in the cafeteria and tailor shops. Two guards were stabbed Friday. George William Andrews is in serious condition in hospital with a ruptured kidney, while the other guard suffered only minor injuries and was released. WEATHER A FACTOR Superintendent Charles Sanderson said weather was a key factor in the disturbances. He said the heat and humidity of the last week were used by a few trouble-makers to create mob hysteria. Mr. Sanderson said he will confer with Wellington County Crown Attorney J. M. Curran about laying court charges against six or eight youths. Forty others are involved in the institutional trials, being conducted by Mr. Sanderson. Reforms Minister Wardrobe visited the reformatory to personally assure that the prisoners end the violence. "We don't want to bring back the strap," he said.

Catholic Bishop Said 'Improved'

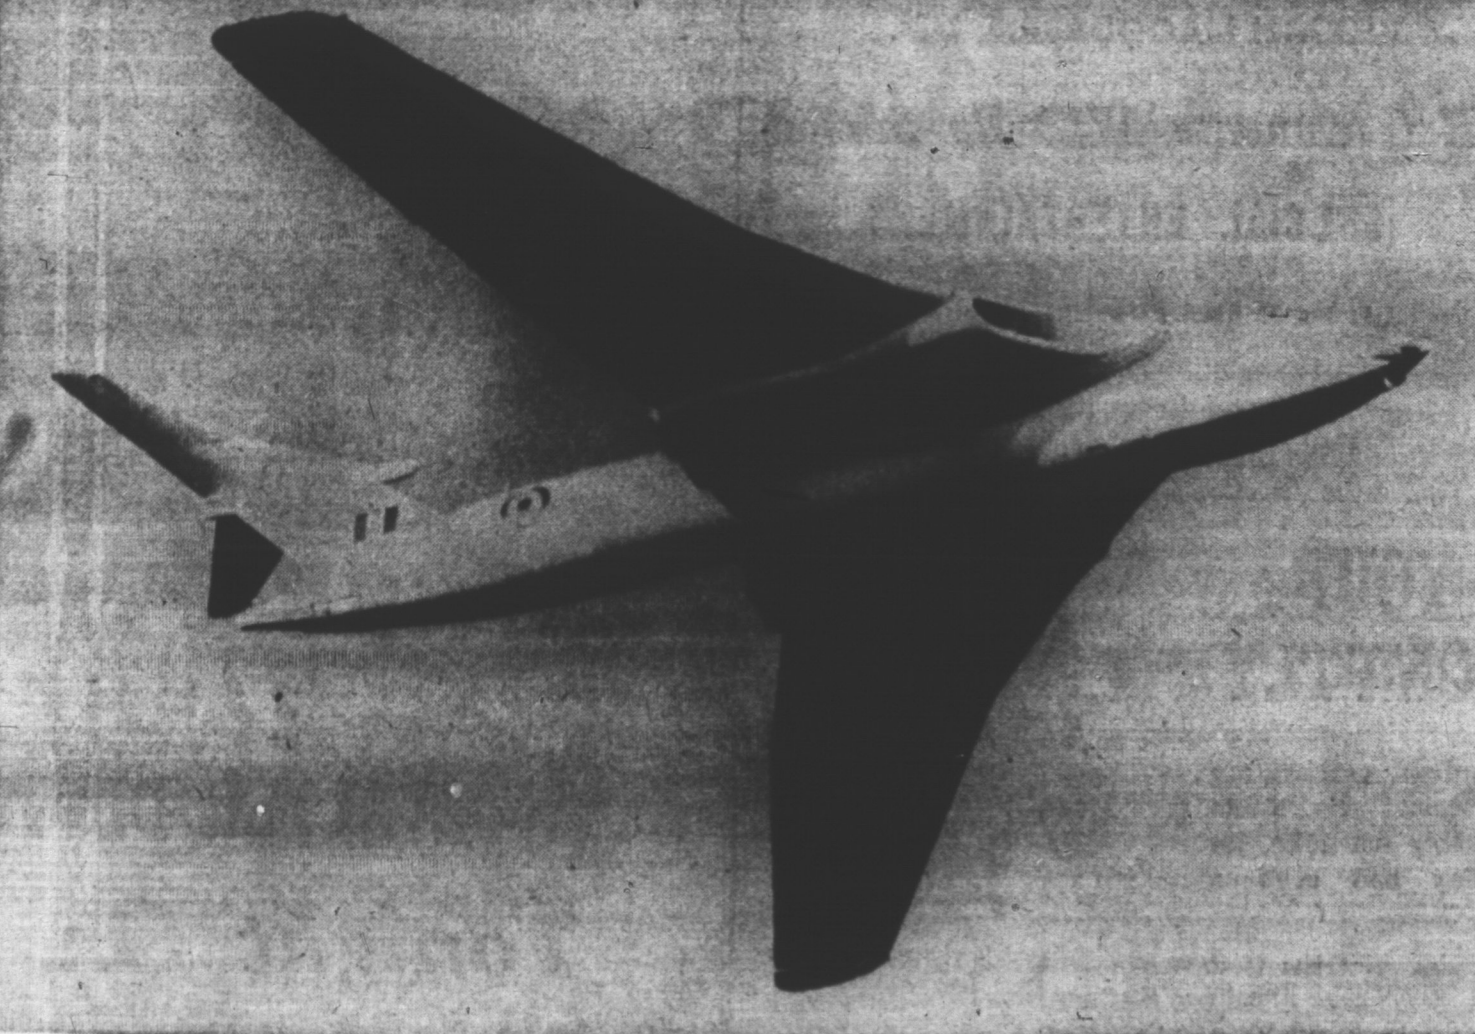

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP)—The Most Rev. John R. Macdonald Roman Catholic Bishop of Antigonish, N.S., is reported in "improved condition" in hospital here following a serious heart attack 10 days ago. Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin is expected to propose recess dates in the next day or two.

Ike-Nikita Meet Expected To Spur Nuclear Test Ban

Western officials admit that progress on a test-ban treaty has been slower since the delegates reassembled in June after a month's recess. But one official said the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks "could well be of first importance as far as our conference is concerned." MAJOR HURDLE The major point of disagreement expected to be discussed by Eisenhower and Khrushchev is the problem of effective controls to police the ban. This includes the Soviet proposal for an agreed number of annual inspections. The main difficulty at present is that despite Western remonstrances the Soviet Union continues to insist that the size of the quota must be fixed on a political and not a scientific basis. Furthermore, the Russians, who only recently put their proposal in treaty language, appeared to be expecting Britain and the United States jointly to accept twice the number of inspections as the Soviet Union would receive. The three powers recently have moved together on another main problem which is likely to be argued by the two world leaders—that of the staffing of the 100-odd control posts throughout the world envisaged last summer by an East-West meeting of scientists. But the Soviet Union now is holding to what Western sources describe as an "obviously untenable" position whereby three-quarters of the total staff of control posts in the Soviet Union would be manned by Russians.

Joey Not Sure Of Tour Date

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood, resting after a victorious election campaign, was undecided Saturday about when to begin his cross-Canada crusade for support of Newfoundland's case against the federal government. "It may not even be this year," the relaxing premier said at his huge RussWood Farm, about 40 miles from here. Beyond that he would not speculate. "It has to be well-planned and well-timed," he said. This echoed his sentiments of election night when he said: "I am not a circus barker." The trip would have to be carefully considered. 300 INVITATIONS The Liberal premier said he had upwards of 300 invitations to speak in various Canadian communities.

Communist Rebels Move Within 50 Miles Of Capital

By BRUCE RUSSELL VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Communist rebels have infiltrated into Vientiane province and advanced to within 50 miles of this capital city, reliable military sources said Sunday. The reports were not confirmed by the Laotian defence department. Laos has charged that the rebels are being helped by Communist China and Communist North Viet Nam. Government forces are reported to have evacuated army posts at Sop Vieng, 50 miles northeast of here, and at Bacadinh, 70 miles east of here. Monsoon rains have temporarily stopped the airlift into the northern town of Sam Neua, the main trouble centre of the rebel war. The United States Embassy said Saturday that two transport planes from a Formosan charter company were being used for "logistical support." ROAD THREATENED The rebels now are in a position to cut the road between Sam Neua and the south but no attacks on road transport have been reported. After a two-week lull, widespread fighting was reported Thursday when a government communique said rebels had attacked in southern Laos, bordering on South Viet Nam, as well as in the north. The communique predicted that the rebels, backed by North Viet Nam, were about to launch a major offensive to retake the two northern provinces of Sam Neua and Phongsaly. In Taipei, Formosa, Sunday, Laotian cabinet minister Oudom Sanakone said in an interview that his country will appeal to the United Nations Security Council if the General Assembly did not respond to her call for help in expelling the "invaders." In New York, Laotian special UN envoy Ngon Sanankone said he had reached agreement with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold for the "peaceful solution" of the Laotian fighting. This did not involve the Security Council, he added. In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia repeated the charge Sunday that "the real culprits responsible for the aggravation of the situation in Laos are the ruling circles of the United States."

ONTARIO SLUMP SEEN

Poll Indicates Tories Gaining In Maritimes

By CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION TORONTO — Except in Ontario, the Conservatives appear to have weathered the steady downward trend shown by Gallup Poll reports for the past year. Their popularity has risen in the Maritimes, and Quebec since last May, and has remained firm in the West. However a further drop of seven per cent in party standing in Ontario offsets the Eastern increase to bring the national rating down to a 47 per cent level, three points lower than in the poll's last report. About a year ago, in July, 1958, a few months after the Federal election, Conservatives had reached the highest point recorded by the poll for a political party in Canada, a whopping 60 per cent of the national popular vote. Today that popular vote stands at 47 per cent, seven points below the 54 per cent with which they won the election. Last July in Ontario the Liberals were holding 29 per cent of the popular vote. Today they have gained almost ten points, reaching 38 per cent — four points higher than their election standing. For the first time since July, the Maritimes shows a turn back towards the Conservatives and a (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2)

Earthquake Survivors Tell Tales Of Violence, Horror

By JACK LEFLER WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP)—The night was still and cool along the Madison River gushing through a fisherman's paradise in southwestern Montana. It was close to midnight last Monday. Nothing seemed more peaceful than a night at Rock Creek campground along the Madison. Suddenly a thunderous roar split the night. The side of a mountain fell off, hit trees, crushed cars, trailers and tents. "I thought the world had come to an end," says 71-year-old Grover Maul. The famed vacationland of Yellowstone National Park and surrounding area was reeling under one of the heaviest earthquakes ever to hit the United States. Shocks extended over vast areas of the American and Canadian West. A "THOUSAND WINDS" "There was a terrific shaking," Mrs. Clarence Scott says. "There was a huge noise. It sounded like a thousand winds going through the trees." "Children started screaming for help," she said. "Husbands begged their wives to answer." "We saw the mountain falling with the most awful roar," said Mrs. Polly Weston. "We could see trees flying in the air like toothpicks. Grover Maul and his wife escaped from their trailer when it was swept into the river. "In the morning they came for us by boat. I couldn't have held on another 10 minutes." In Canada, the earthquake series was comparatively mild. At Grand Forks, B.C., just north of the U.S. border, the walls of a telephone exchange cracked. At Kamloops, a grandfather clock idle for more than a year suddenly started ticking and has been going since. At Nelson, an RCMP constable watched an unoccupied chair wander around the room on its castors. The tremors apparently had little effect on the Prairies, although the walls of a store were reported cracked at Foremost, Alta. ENQUIRE AFTER FRIENDS In Edmonton, it was learned that Red Cross officials in Montana had received at least 38 queries from Western Canada residents regarding friends or relatives who may have been on vacation in the state at the time of the quake.
