Sympathy.

Ask God to give thee skill
 In comfort's art,
 That thou may'st consecrated be,
 And set apart
 For a life of sympathy
 For heavy is the weight of ill
 In every heart;
 And comforters are needed much
 Of Christlike touch.

 He wailed in a golden day.
 The gladdest thing that he could say
 Might not be needed so again.

Y. W. C. T. U.

A Christian young woman is such only in name, except in so far as her conduct proves that the Golden Rule forms the basis of her life. That is the infallible test, as accurate as any chemical test applied in the laboratory—"Do unto others as you would that others should do unto you." Any young woman capable of thinking knows that it would be a help to her, if she were a young man running the gauntlet of the dram shops legalized and set along our streets and envied by the temptations which result from cruel customs and cowardly law, to have those most admired, and whose good will was most sought, committed to total abstinence from all that can intoxicate. She knows that if the young women with whom a young man associates speak favorably of the use of alcoholics and tobacco, he is a thousand times more likely to form the habit of using both.

Any Christian young woman who will not take the position of an out-and-out total abstainer, is either ignorant, prejudiced, bewildered, or her Christianity is "as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal." This ought not to be regarded as a harsh judgment, because under the head of ignorance, prejudice and bewilderment of mind are included a whole array of well-meaning but thoughtless and variable-minded girls who would do better if they had been better taught at home in Sunday School and church. It is for this reason that we are doing our utmost to bring the scientific knowledge of the dangers of alcoholism and the tobacco habit to the minds of boys and girls in the public schools of the nation and the world—to introduce temperance lessons into the Sunday Schools—to produce the "arrest of thought" in the minds of all Christian pastors, and through our mothers' meetings to inculcate the duty of parents to teach their girls and boys alike the practical every-day meaning of the golden rule and the imitation of Christ. His Gospel, in its great principles, adapts itself to the special difficulties of every age, so that we judge not by specific acts of the Founder of Christianity, but by the tenor of his life and the one cardinal doctrine that underlies all his teachings—"Do unto others as you would that others should do unto you" and "Love thy neighbor."—Frances E. Willard.

Indirect Cost of Intemperance.

BY REV. W. E. ELLIOTT.

I have spoke of the financial importance of the liquor traffic, as proved by the enormous cost, ten times as much as for the whole support of education, public and private. We tempt men, at high cost, to do wrong, and then punish them, at still higher cost, for having done it. The direct cost of the liquor trade to the consumers, enormous as it is, is insignificant in comparison with the cost to the people of the pauperism and disease and lawlessness and violence of which intoxicating liquor is the generous cause. I know, by experience, for many years past, to examine the official reports of prisons and poor-houses, and government census-bureau reports, in the various states of the Union, and also in the leading and most enlightened nations of Europe, for which to speak within the limits of truth. There is no need of exaggeration, nor of substituting guesses for facts.

If we were to say that one-half of all the social disorders that require interference of criminal law, and one-half of the expenditures entailed upon the community by vice and crime, are the results, directly or indirectly, of intoxicating drink, it would seem to be enough. But in no official statement have I found so low an estimate. The proportion varies from seventy-five to ninety per cent. in different communities, and the more careful the estimates are made, in general, the higher is the rate fixed.

Thus, the U. S. Commissioner of Education states, "that from eighty to ninety per cent. of our criminals connect their course of crime with intemperance. Of the 14,525 inmates of the Massachusetts' prisons, 12,396 are reported to have been in temperance, or 84 per cent. Reports from every state, county and municipal prison in Connecticut show that more than ninety per cent. had been in habits of drink, by their own admission."

The last Parliamentary Report of Great Britain is that eighty per cent. of criminal offences, and a large proportion of pauperism, are directly traceable to intoxicating drink.

Let, then, the cost to the community of seventy-five per cent. of the crime and pauperism and vice be added to the direct cost of the drink to the consumer, and estimate, if you can, what the sum-total will be. Have the people no right to consider and act upon these things?

Prohibition in South Carolina.

There will be no liquor or beer sold in South Carolina except by the state after July 1. Four of the most eminent legal firms in the state have decided the matter. After the passage of the law at the last session in the Legislature, the liquor dealers of the state formed an association, and employed counsel to test its constitutionality. The counsel have filed their opinion. They advise the liquor dealers to prepare to meet the law as valid and constitutional, and that in view of the heavy penalties prescribed they cannot advise them to continue selling liquor after July 1, but, on the contrary, advise them to comply with the state until it has been declared invalid. To test the constitutionality of the statute the counsel advise that proper proceedings be taken. In the meantime the Governor and state dispenser are in the west and northwest making arrangements to open the state bar-rooms in July.

James Blair's Case.

NAPASSEE, April 10.—A highly interesting case has happened in this town, which is creating a good deal of comment. Mr. James Blair, a well known merchant tailor here, has for fourteen years been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as Bright's disease of the kidneys. He suffered so terribly that one hour's work at the cutting table would completely exhaust him, and he had to almost give up work altogether. He tried almost every known remedy for his complaint, but without any good results. Medical men and patent medicines failed him, and he was gradually getting weaker every day. Finally he read a despatch in one of the local papers, stating that a man named Murray, living in Gravenhurst, had been cured of kidney trouble by using Dodd's Kidney Pills. As a last resort Mr. Blair began taking these pills, and three boxes made a new man of him, and seven boxes completely cured him. Mr. Blair is back at work again, and says that he feels twenty years younger, and that these pills completely cured him. His recovery has created quite a sensation.

News Notes.

That trust which is said to have been organized by the clergymen of Birmingham, U. S., in establishing a uniform scale of high prices for performing the marriage ceremony is almost as bad locally as the coal trust. Our young men may well hope that it won't cross the frontier. The proposed tax on bachelors would be nothing in comparison.

Mr. Smalley's London cable to the Tribune says: The political campaign during the Easter holidays covered the war with renewed energy into the provinces against Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill. The one incident, however, which stands out above all others, amidst the flood of speeches and demonstrations of the week, has been Mr. Balfour's visit to Ireland. The cause of Unionism lost little through Lord Salisbury's illness. Even the late Prime Minister could not have evoked more enthusiasm and helped Ulster to demonstrate her hostility to home rule more powerfully than Mr. Balfour has done during the last few days. The ex-Secretary of State for Ireland received a welcome the like of which has hardly ever been given to a public man. Even the wildest enthusiasm with which Mr. Gladstone used to be received in Scotland never equalled the reception given to Mr. Balfour.

A LEFT HANDED COMPLIMENT—A clergyman in Scotland invited Bishop Selwyn to preach in his church. His Lordship gave an impressive and beautiful sermon, which at the same time was perfectly plain and simple. The rector was delighted, and said so on meeting one of the most regular members of his congregation. "Well, sir, I don't think so much of it," rejoined the man. "It was so simple any child could have understood it. For my part, I like a sermon that confuses your head for a week. I don't know any which beats yours for that, sir."—London Baptist.

Why you take Cold and Cough.

Generally caused by exposure to cold, wet feet, sitting in a draught, coming from hot and crowded places, in this dress, or wearing damp clothes, stockings, or any other cause tending to check suddenly the perspiration. The result produces inflammation of the lining membrane of the lungs or throat, and this causes phlegm or matter, which nature tries to throw off by expectoration.
