Three Gallant Girls In France

METZ, France. — The sizable Gallant "clan" of Summerside, P.E.I. is shy three female members. But that Island city's loss has meant a gain for the RCAF's No. 2 Fighter Wing at Grostenquien, France, where all three girls are now stationed.

Corporal Martha (Marty) Gallant arrived first, in March of 1955, to work in the Wing's bustling Orderly Room. As a clerk-typist she has "specialized" on personnel records, an important job on any military establishment.

Next came Leading Airwoman Edna (Eddie) Gallant, Marty's sister, who landed in April, 1955. She is a supply technician.

The third Gallant, Leading Airwoman Diana, who came overseas at the end of the year, works in the Wing Accounts Section.

While not related to Diana, Marty and Eddie, daughters of King Street, knew her back in Summerside. Diana's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Gallant, reside at 446, Notre Dame Street.

And unless a marriage breaks up the combination, the three attractive airwomen will each serve the usual two-year tour in Europe before returning to Canada.

Let's Talk It Over

It seems inevitable that Canada will in the course of time establish health insurance program in this young progressive country of ours, but it is, of course, right and proper that we carefully count the cost before embarking on such an ambitious plan. The concept of "free schools" has long been a part of our advanced civilization. Perhaps we will never use the term "free hospitals" to indicate a health insurance plan, but the idea is the same.

Neither school nor hospital services could possibly be free. Someone has to pay for them. The term "free schools" means simply a more equitable distribution of the costs with ability to pay being the chief yard-stick. This plan has been adopted because it is imperative that all people, rich and poor alike, should be educated. Illness is incompatible with the democratic process. When you give everyone the ballot, making him a part of the government, you must make provision for his education to fit him for his civic responsibilities whether he can personally afford that education or not.

Health would appear to be, at least as vital to our country's welfare as its education. It seems reasonable to assess the cost of health services more equitably than is possible under the present set-up. The old rhyme, "If health was a thing that money could buy, the rich would live and poor would die," glorifies in the fact that health does not depend on wealth. But to a certain limited extent, health does depend on wealth under our present system. Undoubtedly there are people in our country who cannot afford health services that would make their lives happier, and their life-spans longer.

Reagh Tinney Addresses S'side Center Ward Voters

The following Civic Election radio address was delivered over Radio Station C.J.R.W. on Saturday evening by Mr. Reagh Tinney, candidate in today's election for councillor in the Center Ward.

Ladies and gentlemen: My chief reason for speaking to you tonight is because it has been impossible for me to contact each of you personally as I had hoped to. There are approximately 375 voters in the Center Ward. Of these I have tried to learn the general feeling of the voters with regard to civic affairs.

To those with whom I have talked I have made no vain or foolish promises and have asked no one for a vote. I feel strongly that a man's vote is a sacred privilege that should not be influenced by any undue persuasion. If it is cast for me however, you may be sure that I will appreciate it.

From these 300 contacts in the Center Ward and from conversations with hundreds of other interested citizens during the past week I have tried to learn the general feeling of the voters with regard to civic affairs.

CIVIC DEBT
The one outstanding thing that comes to the surface in practically all discussions is a feeling of grievance and a financial debt and the obligations we have incurred.

When an individual spends more than he makes he is very quickly in deep trouble.

When a town goes deeply in debt the matter is buried in a mass of figures and in a financial statement that no ordinary person and very few experts can clearly understand.

But, ladies and gentlemen, make no mistake, towns too often can get beyond their depth. And remember this; there is actually no such thing as a town in the financial sense of the word. You are the town — you and I are the ones and the only ones on whom such a debt falls. If the civic debt becomes too large, you and I, the common people, are the ones who must pay the piper.

We say that many ways — in reduced credit ratings with banks and financial houses — in reduced essential services to citizens — and believe me, that is where it hurts, in increased taxes. For a town to flourish, bills incurred must be paid. It's as simple as that.

BETTER AND BUSIER
This is my home town — I am proud of it and it is my earnest desire to make it an even better and busier town in which to live and in which all who are willing to work hard can have a good living. I believe in progress but I believe only in progress in black ink and not in red.

To me at the moment it seems that we could well mark time and take stock.

Let the first endeavor of the new Council be progress in the direction of putting our house in order; let us curtail non-essential spending and catch up with our bills.

One voter told me bluntly, "In the past few years Summerside has grown too big for its britches." He was right. At any rate let us realize that ours is a small country town with limited resources and cut our garment to our cloth.

Now the question for you to consider is this; if elected, just what could Reagh Tinney do about it? Frankly, I do not know. I can only say this, that I will endeavor — if elected — to bring to your Council all my energy, all the experience, all the knowledge that I have and all the requirements that I have in thirty years as a resident.

I would bring to the Council an open mind on each subject as it arises and do my utmost to keep the Council from forming any opinions or cliques. I would be a defender of business in the town and its requirements that I speak of or am spoken to by a hundred of our townspeople of whose friendship and acquaintance I am proud.

NEEDS COMMON TOUCH
Now permit me to make this comment on the Journal editorial and let me emphasize it: When any candidate cannot be bothered calling on you before an election and stating his case — when any candidate has reached the stage in life when he cannot be bothered speaking to the common man on the street, that man, ladies and gentlemen, does not have the time and cannot have the knowledge of human nature to attend to your affairs.

If such a man is running, as the editorial would appear to suggest, he lacks the common touch that is necessary in the administration of business in a town of affairs or elsewhere. In the course of a day in Summerside, I suppose I speak of our townspeople of whose friendship and acquaintance I am proud.

How to KEEP FIT after 50
In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down — like things easy — watch your diet — get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead — active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "stred-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dadd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order, — helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dadd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dadd's. 54 sense without having the delusion that we can spend lavishly as though we had the resources of a large city instead of those of a small country town.

Just before coming to the studio, a prominent man asked me to declare my stand on fluoridation of water. He says it is being said that I have been brought out in order to see that this goes through at once. Let me say this: I know nothing about fluoridation. That is no disgrace — most of you are in the same boat. Let me say further: I have never been approached on the subject.

I enjoyed very much my good friend Jim MacDougall's carefully prepared and recorded speech, especially the part about the "yes-men" and those with an axe to grind.

It is being used against me that I am associated with a very successful business firm in Summerside. This I am proud to say is 100 percent correct. And why not? Do you wish to recruit candidates from the ranks of the unemployed or the unsuccessful?

If you exclude the successful businessmen or those who have helped make them successful and have attained a place in life where they are trusted by and closely associated with such men or firms — from just what source do you expect to draw your candidates?

The implication that I am the tool of any big business interest is an insult not only to me but to the intelligence of the voters. It is worth only a passing remark here and harms only the one who utters it.

An interesting editorial appeared in the Journal last night. It said in part: "In the polling booth every citizen should cast his vote conscientiously. He should not be swayed by any other consideration than the ability, honesty and energy of the candidates. He should score them on these points and vote for the man who has the most marks regardless of whether that candidate has called on him or whether he speaks to him when he meets him on the street."

Well, ladies and gentlemen, the Journal may be right. It would appear that the Journal must have some particular candidate in mind. You will agree, I think that it does not apply to me.

Friendship is to me a thing to prize and it is a vital part of my life and a necessity in the administration of business in a town of affairs or elsewhere. In the course of a day in Summerside, I suppose I speak of our townspeople of whose friendship and acquaintance I am proud.
