MR. AND MRS. JAS. H. MacDONALD

Golden Wedding Day Celebrated At St. George's

Mr. and Mrs. James H. MacDonald, Saint Georges, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on October 27th. The Pastors, Father Bennet MacDonal, and all the members of the family were present with the exception of one daughter, Sister Mary Lauretta, who was with her beloved parents in spirit and in prayer.

A sumptuous dinner was enjoyed by all the immediate members of the family. The table with its arrangement of autumn flowers and lights, was centered by a beautifully decorated wedding cake.

In the afternoon a host of friends and neighbours gathered to present their good wishes and congratulations to the happy couple after which everyone enjoyed a delicious turkey supper.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald were the recipients of many lovely gifts. Friends from far and near sent flowers, telegrams, and cards all of which testify to the esteem in which the happy couple is held.

On the following day the jubilarians were guests of the Sisters of the Precious Blood Monastery where their daughter, Mary, has been a sister for the past nineteen years. Before leaving Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald were consecrated to the Precious Blood.

The numerous friends of the happy couple wish them many more years of happiness in wedded life.

EBENEZER W.I.

Mrs. Norman MacRae was hostess for the annual meeting of Ebenezer W.I. which met on November 5. The president, Mrs. MacRae, conducted the meeting which opened by singing the "Ode" and repeating the "Mary Stewart collect" in unison. The roll call was answered by fourteen members paying their dues.

The minutes of the last annual and last regular meetings were read and adopted. The secretary, treasurer gave her financial report, several bills were paid and school and sick committees gave their reports.

The officers elected for the coming year are President, Mrs. Alex Ford; vice-president, Mrs. Alfred Stead; secretary, Mrs. Douglas MacDonald (re-elected); directors, Mrs. Norman MacRae, Mrs. John MacDonald and Mrs. Emerson MacLeod; auditors, Mrs. Cliff Matheson and Miss Barbara Ford.

It was decided to have safety films at the school in the near future. Each member to take lunch. A leadership course for officers is to be held at Central Royalty Hall on November 23.

The December meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Chester Dover with Mrs. Norman MacRae and Mrs. Chester Dover as lunch committee.

The surprise box brought in 65 cents.

ELLEN'S DIARY

After A Holiday, Ellen Again Is Grand Reading

Sun and pleasant wind. In the orchard bronze leaves and russets falling—that was today.

"You and I, Missis, have had many a day together." Blackie the old dog remarked smiling his thanks after he had licked his breakfast-bowl clean. "Yes, many a day with their ups and their downs. Well this is all very fine loitering here chatting but I must be off to the field. I've missed them" he grinned ruefully, "now I'll have to trust to these old feet to carry me there."

We stopped to watch him go, this faithful old fellow who attends the farmers' out-goings and in-comings from the fields. He usually catches a ride, entering truck or trailer as resolutely as might one of the children, though there are occasions like this morning when he follows on foot.

We catch sight of him, a dark moving object away off on the fields, or perhaps preferring to take to the road, keeping well to a shoulder. He is uncannily knowing, able without being told, to sense any excursion away from the farms, that would be denied to him.

"You must come with me to the barn" Mack smiled coming by in the early morning. "We've something new" he nodded.

"What fetching items we have come there to welcome and admire through our years at Alderlea: early lambkins in promise of pussy willows and the rippling thawings of spring; a first calf, to swell the fortunes of the herd; a foal to be delightful treasure-trove for James; piglets, pink against a mother's breast, and the blind, blessed kittens, wondrous to the children, come to some warm strawy nook.

"Perhaps you'd like to make a guess as to what it is?" Mack suggested leading off.

"Kittens?" we queried. He smook his head. "You're not even warm" he offered.

Now James joined our parade. Alex in his arms. The younger farmer busy in a stable left his interest of the moment too to follow.

"You'll soon see" Mack said opening the half-door which admits to select stalls.

"There he is—not much like a kitten, is he?" Mack chuckled.

"It was a new herdsire! Admittedly a sturdy, handsome animal, most attractive in his fall-coat, yet to us, a farm-hazard, more or less."

"He's quiet," one offered.

"Aye, but like every herdsire not to be trusted," James nodded. "See those powerful forefeet, and that forehead!" he pointed out. "A man unprotected, would have little chance of coming off best in a duel with one of those."

"What's new?" James asks now that the night has returned him to us.

The fishman made his last round today—brought us our supply of winter fish. He asked after your health, and hopes to see us next spring, he said.

"The time" James nods, looking back across the interval of summery months, which had brought the busy truck weekly to the door "surely slips away."

Until tomorrow — — — Diary, Good-night.

WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS

Unhappily The Fog Is Too Thick Between Us

By Ruhamah S. Frank

There was a ship in the harbor last week, a bright yellow ship, and I would have liked to go aboard, but the wind was high and sharp... I settled instead for a comfortable chair and a warm corner in the lounge of the small hotel where I live at present. For there too can I get brief glimpses of ships — ships that pass in the night — the guests that come and go...

MYSTERIOUS GUESTS

Closed faces, mysterious lives are the ones that appear for a moment in the doorway, pause at the desk, disappear into some room — and are gone before breakfast the next day. At times a face, a figure, dress, bearing detaches itself from the others. That small stooped man with the close set eyes, that pretty girl clutching a worn hand-bag — rich fare for the detective-story writer—but of no sinister meaning whatever...

SMILING MASKS

A few there are who stay long enough to become part of our hotel lives. We are hotel-friends — no obligations. Via the grapevine or underground (mentioned above) we know more about each other than either suspect (though the information may be more or less inaccurate). We do not wish to come close. We have all given our sincere friendship too often on too short acquaintance. We are wary...

REACTOR STARTS WORK

ANNAN, Scotland (Reuters)—Scotland's first atomic power reactor begun operation Sunday at nearby Chapel Cross, Britain's atomic energy authority reported Monday. The reactor is one of four planned for Chapel Cross. Each will have a 50,000-kilowatt capacity and produce electricity for the public and plutonium for military purposes.

WINS SECOND AWARD

LONDON (AP) — Andrei Tupolev, the man who put the "TU" in Russia's TU-104 jet airliner, has been awarded another Order of Lenin to mark his 70th birthday. Radio Moscow announced the award and hailed the aircraft designer as the brain behind 100 different types of Soviet aircraft.
