Home Hints, By Pentox

GARAGE DOORS

Need extra protection

Garage doors of plywood or panel type construction should be protected from moisture and rot. Before painting, prime all edges and both sides with two coats of "Pentox" the one-operation primer, sealer and wood preserver. Follow with two coats of good paint.

In this suggested design, the three centre panels and circles are overlays of plywood glued and nailed on face. Paint in harmonizing colours.

Protect all new wood against moisture with low-cost "Pentox".

For a better, longer-lasting paint job... "Pentox" before you paint. Reduces paint consumption, seals wood against swelling... time tested, proven protection against rot and termites.

She spoke in a very positive tone. The truth is, she was positive. She and Reddy had lived in the neighborhood long enough to know every stick and stone, every tree and bush, every old hole, big and little. Now that they had found Johnny's back door, they were positive that they knew every possible way of escape. What they didn't know was that Johnny had two other back doors, and these were so well hidden that they had failed to find either one.

Meanwhile, Johnny Chuck went on being careless, and more and more venturesome. And the sweet clover really wasn't one bit sweeter than that close to his home.
