Quebec Students Make Special Trip For Queen

Members of the grade 11 class of Pury Memorial High School, Bury, Que., undertook a unique class project this year. They travelled to P.E.I. to see Queen Elizabeth II and her husband, Prince Philip.

The group, number 24 in all — 15 girls, six boys and three chaperones — William Taylor, principal of the high school, his wife and Mrs. Macaulay, a grade 11 history teacher.

The pupils and their chaperones arrived by train last night and are staying at the Queen Hotel. They will leave for their trip on Saturday.

None of the pupils had ever seen the Queen before and they are simply "thrilled to pieces". Each student hoped to earn the money — over $800 — for the trip. Among their money making schemes were plays, carnivals, a car wash, canteen, and a turkey supper open to the public. Their class float in the Dominion Day parade represented the Fathers of Confederation.

When they return to their native Quebec on Saturday they will do so as goodwill ambassadors in compositions and public speaking contests. They take back with them a good impression of the trip.

Community Awakening Discussed By Librarians

A round table discussion on the promotion of reading, a discussion on the "library image" in the community, and a visit to Queen Charlotte High School Library were highlights of the annual convention for librarians at the Prince Edward Island Libraries, held Monday and Tuesday at Prince of Wales College.

A panel made up of Mrs. Ollivier, moderator; Murray River; Mrs. Norman MacDonald, Summerside; Mrs. Melissa Vorstom, Montserrat; Mrs. Gladys Taylor, Georgetown, with Dorothy Cullen, provincial librarian, as moderator discussed the system, and showed how suitable books for borrowers, and finding readers for specific books. They discussed wider use of booklists of new additions to the system, and the education of the borrower so that they can better find their own material on the subject in which they are interested.

The library image was discussed by W.A. Ledwell, of the provincial headquarters staff, and Don Scott, of the Charlottetown Public Library. It was pointed out here that the people in a community identify the library with the librarian, and it was noted that the librarian has a selling job to do for the library by performing his or her duties in a friendly, efficient manner.

It was suggested that the branch librarian should make some effort to effect a "library awakening" in the community, through contact with organizations, schools, teachers, and the general public. A number of concrete suggestions in this regard were discussed.

NEW STAFF
In her review of the past year, Miss Cullen noted the addition of new staff members, including Douglas Boylan and Don Scott at the Charlottetown Public Library; William Ledwell, at the P.E.I. Libraries; and three new branch librarians — Mrs. East Carrier, Kensington; Mrs. Ernest Bolger, Hunter River; and Mrs. Raymond Doucette, Rusty Bay.

The report noted that two communities have provided attractive new quarters for their branch libraries; St. Peter's open new quarters on July 29, Centennial Year project. Mr. Stewart has a new, self-contained building, also opened in July and also a Centennial project.

It was noted that the librarians rendered valuable assistance during the past year in providing information for many projects, working on local history projects.

A report of recent books read revealed a wide variety of tastes among the librarians attending the two-day session. A sampling of these are: "Little Britches", by Ralph Moody; "Miracle at Carville", by Betty Martin; "Water Thunder", by M. A. R. Sandoz; "Incomparable Attitude" by Mordecai Richler; "The Pearl", by John Steinbeck; and "Another Path", by Gladys Taylor.

On Tuesday morning, the group saw a school library in operation at Queen Charlotte High School, where Mrs. Thomas Lothian conducted a regular library period for a grade seven class. Mrs. Lothian showed how students can be taught how to use the library, and she supplemented the program on this occasion with a film strip on the use of reference books.

OLD JOURNALS
Another highlight of the program was a presentation by Miss Cullen of the Journals of Dr. John Mackleson, a Charlottetown doctor, who compiled his own record of events from the year 1850 until 1873. This record covers many amusing and interesting events of the time that are unique in that they probably have not been recorded elsewhere. Among the incidents noted are the visit of the Prince of Wales to Charlottetown in 1860; the great fire in Charlottetown in 1868; storms, picnics and numerous other happenings.

During the convention, a display of some 25 Prince Edward Island books were made available, and a number of community historians entered by schools in a Centennial Year contest competition proved highly interesting.

Attending the convention were Miss Cullen and Mr. Ledwell, of the staff of P.E.I. Libraries; Mrs. Scott and Mary Newman, Charlottetown Public; and the following branch librarians — Mrs. Melissa Vorstom, Montserrat; Mrs. Ernest Bolger, Hunter River; Mrs. Grace Murray, Bradaire; Sister St. Catherine of Sweden, North Rusty; Ada MacDonald, Souris; Eunice Doyle, Mt. Stewart; Mrs. Sadie Brooks, O'Leary; Mrs. Hazel Graham, Wellington; Mrs. Norman MacDonald, Summerside; Mrs. Lillian Compton, Summerside; Mrs. Leona Giddings, Murray River; Mrs. East Carrier, Kensington; and Genevieve Solomon, Georgetown.

Driver of the car involved was Colin Love of Borden.

The mishap was investigated by the Borden RCMP detachment.

Condition Described Not Serious

SUMMERSIDE — The condition of Ronald Boudreau, 17, a native of L. I. E. Dover, N.S., struck by a car in Truro, Nova Scotia, was described Tuesday as "not serious" by Prince County Hospital officials, where he was a patient.

Boudreau is employed as a potato picker near Truro. A hospital spokesman said he was suffering from abrasions and "sore all over," but otherwise satisfactory.

Boudreau was treated at the scene by Dr. David Stewart of Crapaud. He was taken to Prince County Hospital by an ambulance from Chatham's Amal Home.

Driver of the car involved was Colin Love of Borden. The mishap was investigated by the Borden RCMP detachment.

Blind Preacher Says Dog Leads Him Right to Pulpit

SUMMERSIDE — A man who has been blind for the past 16 years will give a special at a United Rally here tonight at 7:30 in the United Baptist Church.

Dr. Alexander Marks, who is blind, arrived in Prince Edward Island recently from New York.

Dr. Marks said that when he stepped aboard buses and trucks he had to get a wife and others to get a dog. He said it was a very difficult job but he chose the dog in the end because "she never answers back."

He said he got the dog from "Guiding Eyes for the Blind" in Yorktown, N.Y. Training and then Dr. Marks spent four weeks with the dog before taking him to Summerside.

Dr. Marks and Michelle have traveled thousands of miles together during his preaching in various cities across the land. When he goes into a church Dr. Marks says Michelle leads him down the aisle to the pulpit and proceeds to go to sleep during the service. Michelle is a German shepherd.

During the service at Summerside with Rev. Keith Hobson, Dr. Marks will address the gathering and then present a sound film on the Holy Land.

Bishop Davis Dedicates Church Lights

Rev. W.W. Davis, DD, Bishop of Nova Scotia and a Prince Edward Island, dedicated memorial lights at a special service Monday evening in Christ the Redeemer Church, Hunter Valley.

The church was wired for electric power and lights were installed a few months ago.

The lights were installed in the presence of Rev. A.E. Percey, in the presence of an almost capacity congregation.

Security Remains Evident

Some of the security arrangements for the Queen's safety during her visit here were evident yesterday afternoon during the official opening of the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Foundation.

Anxious eyes of security officers in various vantage points around the city were seen as the crowd in general scanned the area. "Their eyes never stopped moving for a minute" an onlooker was heard to say.

A rather elderly man has banished from his vantage point standing atop a chair in the rear section where he could not produce accreditation, but not before a hard object (closely inspected) was thrown at him.

A checked by an RCMP man in civilian dress who looked as if he stepped from the pages of a men's fashion magazine.

A number of other persons were asked to leave the press section when they could not produce the correct credentials.

One person was taken to the police station. A 13-year-old girl named Jackie wandering among cameras and cables managed to get a good look at the Queen by standing with the press. "I tried to get over to the other side, but I couldn't do it," she explained. "I hope nobody minds."

Queen 'Piped' From Britannia To Clang Of Burglar Alarm

An eerie note was injected into the Queen's visit Tuesday night, when just before Her Majesty departed from the Royal, yacht Britannia for the variety performance at the Confederation Centre, a burglar alarm rang off on Queen Street two blocks from the department of transport dock where Britannia is berthed.

It turned out to be a false alarm, according to city police.

The alarm system continuing to ring for more than 20 minutes before finally shut off.

The alarm went off in two business establishments, K.A.Y. Brothers Ltd. and R. E. Mutch Co. Ltd. on Queen Street, between Water Street and King Street.

City police and members of the RCMP arrived at the scene about the same time, when the alarm was still ringing.

Paul Kays was first contacted, and with his arrival city police searched Kays Brothers Ltd. after the alarm was turned off.

James MacLean of R.E. Mutch Co. Ltd. was next contacted, and turned the alarm off there.

The two burglar alarm systems were connected police said.

Police said a search of the two businesses disclosed nothing suspicious.

Police said it was believed the alarm at R. E. Mutch Co. Ltd. was very sensitive, and had been set off when the door onto Queen Street had been touched by someone unknown.
