CAT CAUSES A FIRE—The dwelling house and barns of John Hargrove, of French Lake, Sunbury County, N. B., were burned to the ground on Saturday night with nearly all their contents. The fire was caused by a cat upsetting a lamp which was left burning. When the family were awakened the flames had made such progress that the inmates had barely time to escape.

The Charlottetown District Convention of the Womans' Missionary Society will meet at North Wiltshire on Friday, June 17th. There will be three sessions, the morning one opening at 9.30.

The evening session will be a public meeting. Miss Palmer of St. John and Miss Veazey of St. Stephen returned missionaries from Japan will be the speakers.

Tickets will be issued at one fare at all railway stations on June 16th and 17th, good for return on and up to June 20th inclusive.

Delegates and visitors will return on certificate of attendance procured at convention.—Roberta M. Hyde.

A STRANGE CASE—At a meeting of the Medico-Legal Society in New York the other night, a paper was read on the subject of alternating personalities and the reader told of a case which had been investigated by Prof. James, of Harvard and found to be authentic, of a man who went to Norristown, Pa. and engaged in the business of hatter. After being there three years, and while at dinner at his hotel one day he suddenly woke up. He asked where he was, and when told declared he knew nothing of Norristown or the name he had borne there. He gave another name, and said his home was in a Massachusetts town near Boston. Word was sent to that town, and the man's relatives went to Norristown and fully identified him. This case was put in the category of auto-suggestion, and it was explained that the man had been accustomed to dwell upon the expediency of making some change in his business or social relations. The intensity of his thought in this direction finally terminated in a crisis of physical experience and a mental revolution.

IN MEMORIAM— WILLIAM EWART GLADSTONE

Aye, thou hast gained the end
Of long and glorious strife,
Consoled by love and friend,
Thrice blessed life!
If all the immortal die
What gain hath life to give?
If all the immortal live,
Death brings no sigh!

Oh, long I've lit with praise
For duty nobly done,
High aims, laborious days,
And the crown won!
Why should we mourn and weep
That thou dost toil no more?
At length God gives thee sleep,
Thy labor o'er!

The crying of the weak
Called not to thee in vain;
Thy swift tongue burned to speak
Belief to pain.
The lightning of thy scorn
No wrong might long defy,
Thy ruth for lives forlorn,
Thy piercing eye.

Good Knight! no soil of wrong
Thy spotted shield might stain;
Thy keen sword served thee long,
And not in vain.
Oh, high, impetuous soul,
That, mounting to the light,
Spurred 'st the quill world's control
To gain the right.

'Mid strife the century dies—
Massacre, Famine, War:
The noise of groans and sighs
Is borne afar.
The monstrous cannons roar,
The earth, the air, art torn,
'Mid thunderings evermore
Time's Dawns are born!

But thou no more art here,
But watchest far away,
Calm in some peaceful sphere,
The Eternal Day.
Oh, thou who long didst guide
Our Britain's loyal will,
Invisible at her side
Aid thou her still!

Oh, aged life and blest,
Wearing thy duteous years,
Enter thou on thy rest;
We shed not tears!

Wear thou thy labors to thy country given,

Thy eloquent tongue, thy keen, untiring brain
Thy changeless love of man, thy trust in heaven,
Thy crown of pain.

—Lewis Morris.
