

Tortured by Itching

Instant Relief in Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

One of the most distressing symptoms imaginable is the almost unbearable itching which is an accompaniment of Leucorrhoea or whites. The nerves are irritated by the poisonous discharge, and the result is an itching which is only rendered more excruciating by rubbing or scratching.

Especially at night, when the body is warm, the patient is tormented beyond the powers of human endurance. Sleep or rest is out of the question. Nervousness, irritability and despondency are a natural result.

In these offices there are on the file thousands of letters from grateful women who have found in Dr. Chase's Ointment a quick and certain cure for this itching to which women are so subject.

During the expectant period many women suffer from itching of the parts, and itching piles, which are absolutely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The first application of this great discovery of Dr. A. W. Chase will afford prompt relief. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A Street Car Dialogue.

"What is the matter?" asked Smith as his friend Thompson sat down beside him in the street car. "You look about as happy as a wren?"

"I look no worse than I feel," said Thompson, moodily.

"What's the matter, old man?" asked Smith anxiously. "Business bad?"

"No," said Thompson, shortly. "What then?"

"Everything," said Thompson. "That's bad," said Smith, commiseratingly.

"In fact it is about as bad as it can be."

"The fact is," burst out Thompson, "I don't get along happily with my wife."

"I understood she was an angel," said Smith in surprise.

"She doesn't know anything about cooking," said Thompson.

"That's not part of an angel's business," said Smith.

"Well, it should be," said Thompson savagely. "I couldn't get to sleep for hours last night. When I did drop off I dreamt there was a tomb-stone on my chest."

"Indigestion," said Smith.

"My wife's cooking," said Thompson.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets," said Smith.

"Eh?" said Thompson.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets," repeated Smith, "they'll fix you."

"How do you know?" said Thompson.

"Tried 'em," said Smith.
