ELLEN'S DIARY

Young Herdsman Is Off To Atlantic Winter Fair

"A white frost" James remarked by the window, in a first look at his world today. "It must have turned cold toward morning." Presently a sunrise glowed rosily, and spread, above the wooded rise to the east.

"Seems as though we're to get a nice sunny day" we said ... We wanted one cheerfully bright in which to do so many things: to put away for winter-keeping, the dahlias, to gather in last apples, to repot a violet and bury — but so hopefully — a few daffodils; to make an apple pie, and remember in planning our menus for the day, that for his liking, we must make a hot meaty dish for his supper when dusk should fetch James from the fields.

"I think I'll plow until this frost clears away" Mack said. "It will mean that much more of it done" he nodded... By this if all has gone well with us, he will be missed at Alderlea, in the office of junior herdsman he will have gone with his father to Halifax to show this or that one of the herd at the Atlantic Winter Fair. Before this he has been assembling the various pieces of gearing, the halters and other items which must go on a trip of this kind. This will not be his first visit there. He became acquainted pleasantly with the old and lovely city during last Fall's Fair. Then with Haligonians, of kin, he enjoyed incidental tours to sites and scenes, which before this had been only names to him.

A youngster is a fine scout to have along, we have noticed, at a Fair. He, or she, soon gains a working knowledge of the lie of the land. They can lead you to its best features, tell you where you can get "the best meal", or lunch, see the finest of the various displays, or the booths which hold the most interest of all. Already, even before their elders have a bowling aquaintance with the place, they have made the rounds and settled it.

Will others of the family be going? We do not know at the moment. We think however that any new feminine hairdos in evidence presently, will be looked on with some suspicion, at least by one husband of the name!

A sunny day followed, one to stop Mack's plow in the furrows and bear him off to help with the harvesting which has been making progress at Rob's. How happily the farmers greet weather favorable to this, even continuing the combining on past the dusk.

A bantam called this household to see the sunup, one who long since has been into his beauty sleep.

"Well so far, so good, Ellen" James, come to the old armchair, says unlacing his boots. "Got a nice bit of grain saved this afternoon" he smiles. "I wonder what tomorrow'll bring in the way of weather?"

Again as to that, we can only conjecture. Of this however we can be certain: there will come a brand new day in the morning.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night.....

BRISTOL

Mrs. Andrew Murant, the former Margaret Landley, spent a week here with friends recently. She left here nearly half a century ago as a young girl and had been back very seldom since.

For the first time since it opened its doors to the public nearly 100 years ago the old school at St. Peters Harbor remained closed this term and will not take over even again owing to so few children in the district. Those who reside there will attend Morell School. Such great teachers as the late Hon H.D. MacEwen, taught in the old harbor school and the late Robert McEwen, with his flowing grey beard was considered one of the best more than 70 years ago.

A new religious sect that has sprung up in this vicinity under the leadership of a former fisherman is trying to buy the old United Church building to use it for a meeting place along with another building that they are reported as having bought.

As a result of her public service to Canada, she was awarded an M. B. E. (Member of the British Empire) in 1945. 2nd Debut for Mother

From Germany—
The "Wiesbaden Discovery" that Makes Older Faces Look Younger

WIESBADEN, GERMANY—April 28—News has leaked out concerning a carefully guarded top secret discovery by a small but important group of skin physiologists. Scientific authority has it that a way is now known whereby facial skin is made to drink minute quantities of water, to quickly gain an appearance of fresh, smooth youthfulness it hasn't had in years. Facial lines around the eyes, and the dread crepey-ness that so deeply mark the pace of unwanted birthdays are said to more or less "get lost." as this water beneath the skin's surface pushes them out of sight. While this research was not conducted in the interest of beauty, it appears that new happiness for millions of unhappy women is a real, though honestly not intended, result. By special arrangement with the discoverer of this technique a special lotion has been formulated which makes home application of the Wiesbaden discovery easy, pleasant, harden discovery easy, pleasant and effective. The name of this preparation is 2ND DEBUT.
