

FORTY DOLLARS.

BY MARY KYLE DALLAS.

Concluded.

'Forty dollars,' she repeated, 'and the machine but fifty, and he's taking it. I never failed until Jim broke his leg, and his work stopped and his wages with it, and I'd doctor's bills, and all.'

'No, that she didn't,' cried a voice from the crowd. 'I am knowing to her honesty.'

'And he'd better be off with his cart,' cried a man who had stalked out of the entry of the house near which the crowd gathered, rolling up his sleeves.

'Look here, good people,' exclaiming the man who held the machine. 'I don't want to do this. I obey orders or lose my place, and my bread and butter. See'd better go to the boss and talk to him—not to me.'

'I've been,' said the woman. 'He's made of stone. I told him he'd starve us. He will. There, what is the use of my fighting like a drunken body in the streets—me, a decent woman! They have got more than the worth of the thing now, God knows; but they've the power. Take it.' And she let go her hold and covered her eyes with her hands.

But in the place of those rough, red fingers others, dainty and small, and well gloved, came down upon the cover of the machine. Emma Rome had pressed forward, and now spoke:

'Stop,' she said. 'Will you let this woman keep her machine if I pay you ten dollars?'

'Them's the boss's orders, Miss,' replied the man, 'and I'd be glad to do it, too.'

Then, while the crowd gathered close, and the woman who had told her piteous tale sobbed with joy, Emma drew the sum named from her purse, received in return a receipt, which she gave to the poor woman, and experienced for the first time the delight which the performance of an utterly unselfish act brings with it.

Moreover, when the machine had been borne up stairs, Emma, who had exchanged a few words with its owner, followed her to her miserable room, noted its poverty, heard all the bitter tale. It was a true one—the hot tears told that.

'But I don't mind anything now, Miss,' sobbed the narrator. 'Now the machine is my very own. I don't mind how I work. And the only great tug is the landlord—four dollars a month for rent.'

'As much a month as a yard of that trimming,' thought Emma, with a little pang.

She questioned the woman further, and found that her landlord 'lived down stairs.' And before she turned from the door she had emptied her purse and had paid the three months rent in advance.

'Your husband will be well and at work by that time,' she said, and there were no regrets for the lost fringe as she took her way homeward. Nay, Farine remarked, with a glance that said volumes:

'The black lace from your old grenade dress? Certainly, since it is your taste.'

The dress, however, was not unbecoming, despite the refurbished lace, and Emma wore it to the party. She was quite conscious that every woman of her acquaintance knew what the dress was trimmed with, but her conscience whispered to her that she had done right. Somehow Arthur Main found himself more than ever before attracted by it, and as she drove home that night, Emma felt that the marguerite which had said to her, 'he loves,' had been no false prophet.

She had learned two lessons in a little while. One, that the poor might be clothed and fed from the trimmings of the rich; the other, that extravagance in dress never yet won any man's heart. She never forgot either.

Read and Learn for Yourself.

Many valuable discoveries and much useful knowledge is kept from the world, because of the immense expense in making them known to the people. This is not the case with Boschees German Syrup, although but a few years introduced into this country, its sale now reaches in every town and village in the U. S. Its wonderful success in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Pneumonia, Asthma, and all other diseases of the throat and lungs, was first made known by distributing every year, for three years, over 400,000 bottles to the afflicted, free of charge, by Druggists. No such a test of merit was ever given before to any other preparation. Could you ask more? Go to your druggist and get a bottle for 75 cents and try it. Sample bottles 10 cents.

One person abusing another in the presence of Churchill, the poet said, "He was so extremely stupid that if you said a good thing he could not understand it." Pray, sir," said Churchill, "did you ever try him?"

MISCELLANEOUS.

An International Dairy Fair was held in New York city last week. Among the prizes was one of $100 for the best cheese made anywhere. This was awarded to a Canadian cheese, exhibited by A. Hodgson & Sons, Montreal.

Lady (to a servant who has given notice three days after her arrival)—"But, if you didn't mean to stay, why did you take the place?" Servant—"Well, 'm, when I see you at the registry office, you looked fagged and tired I took your situation out of charity like."

Mr. G. G. Bourinot, assistant clerk of the House of Commons, has had a paper on the national development of Canada accepted with much pleasure by the Colonial Institute, London, England, and it will be read by the Secretary at an early meeting of the institute. The public of Canada will look for the paper with much interest as Mr. Bourinot has made constitutional development a special study.

The body of Mrs. Sarah Mills, a lady of 73 years old, was stolen from Pleasant Ridge Cemetery, Cincinnati, U. S., on Saturday night. Her son came to the city in search of the body among the medical colleges, and found it on the dissecting table of Plato College, with the head cut off and otherwise mutilated. Two students were hacking away at the corpse when the son entered the room. The body was fully identified and surrendered.

A DOLEFUL STATE OF THINGS.—A writer in the Atlantic Monthly for December has been on a visit to Kansas, and gives a very doleful account of the farmers in that State. The date of the writer's visit was in June. He found the people living in shanties, discouraged and suffering many privations; those who bought lands of the railroads were hopelessly in debt, while those who took up homesteads were equally miserable. He found crops uncertain, the prices unremunerative, and the farmers only staying because they lacked the means to leave the country.

The cost of the Atchin war has now had the result that in the present year the Dutch National Debt, which had been in gradual course of reduction for a century, will be increased rather than diminished. Between the years 1850 and 1878, Holland paid off 300,000,000 guilders and saved interest to the amount of 10,000,000. In the latter year the National Debt amounted to 912,000,000; in 1880 the National liabilities will be 953,000,000 guilders. Of the 300 millions paid off in 30 years, nearly 200 millions were found from the Indian revenue. The war in Atchin has abolished the annual Indian surplus.

The latest sensation is furnished by a youthful but ambitious electrician named Freeman, from Racine, Wisconsin, who claims to have put Edison in the shade in solving the problem of the perfection and utilization of electric light. He claims to have discovered a preparation of carbon so that it will burn a month without renewal; also, that he controls the current and can lower or elevate the flame in the same manner that gas is used, but he can distribute 100 lights and give 600 candle power to each, and can conduct light over 20 miles of wire. He states further that he will soon give an exhibition in Chicago.

A SOFT ANSWER.—One day at the dinner table in a Washington hotel, when the dinner hall was well filled, Capt. Jones finished his dinner first, got up and walked almost to the dining-hall door, when Emerson spoke to him in a loud voice and said: 'Halloo, Captain! see here; I want to speak to you a minute.' The captain turned and walked back to the table and bent over him, when Emerson whispered: 'I wanted to know how far you would have gone if I had not spoken to you?' The Captain never changed a muscle, but straightened up and put his fingers in his vest pocket and said in a voice loud enough for all to hear him: 'Captain Emerson, I don't know a man in the world I would rather lend $5 to than you, but the fact is I haven't a cent with me to-day,' and turned on his heel and walked away. Emerson was the color of half-a-dozen rainbows, but he had to stand it. He never heard the last of it, and it cost him more than $10 to treat on it.
