

Circumstantial Evidence.

BY LIEUTENANT MURRAY.

Frank Osgood and Harry Cummings were two young fellows who had been friends from earliest childhood, and school-mates together up to the age of fourteen, in Bristol, England. Their fathers were merchants, and their families were well off as it regards the world's goods. The two young men having secured as good a common school education as was possible, both entered the counting-room of their respective parents, and were still both companions until they chanced to make an acquaintance of Miss Mary Marr, a girl in their own sphere of society, and about the same age as the young friends.

Still, for some months after their introduction to Miss Marr, there was no unpleasantness between them, but by and by the simple acquaintance seemed to ripen into one of intimacy between the three, and all at once it flashed upon both Harry and Frank that they were both in love with Miss Marr, and as both could not marry her, a source of rivalry was inevitable.

Yet so well founded was their long and consistent friendship that there was no exhibition of feeling upon the subject between them, and to all outward appearances they were still the best of friends when together. But when absent from each other a feeling of antagonism very naturally suggested itself, until by degrees it did not fail to be manifested in public.

As it regarded the young lady, she had not shown any preference between them, and if she had a choice, she thus far kept it quite to herself. She treated them so nearly alike and regarded both with such undisguised good will and friendship that the most acute observer could detect no partiality.

As it regarded Frank Osgood and Harry Cummings each imagined himself the favored one, and put such interpretations upon her words and smiles as he pleased.

This matter remained for a considerable time, without having progressed to such a stage as would warrant either in seeking to formally know his pretensions, or to ask Miss Marr her own avowal of affection.

But in the meantime the slight change in the feelings of Harry and Frank toward each other grew to be something quite serious, and they mutually wondered how they could ever have been good friends in times past.

They no longer spoke to each other. If they met they would turn their faces away without the least recognition, and this Damon and Pythias appeared as though they only lacked the means and opportunity in order to destroy each other. Their friends and acquaintances observed the change, and soon learning of the intimacy of the young men at the house of Miss Marr, they were not long in drawing the very natural deduction that jealousy was at the bottom of this discord between the two long-trying young friends. Of course there was nothing which other parties could do in the premises, however much this state of affairs might be regretted.

Miss Marr was a very sweet and accomplished girl of eighteen, and no one wondered that the gentlemen found so much pleasure in her society. She saw how bitter a feeling she had been the cause of creating between Harry and Frank, and in her very delicate and sensitive nature, she deeply regretted it and said to herself:

'When I come to let them know which it is that I prefer, then the bitter hate which now exists between them, will all be transferred to the heart of one.'

'This was very true. The bitterness between the former friends seemed to increase daily, until finally meeting by themselves they deliberately proposed to each other to seek some quiet spot and to settle their pretensions to the hand of Miss Marr with pistols.'

A Good Thing.

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in Medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Beware of medicines of similar names, lately introduced. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cents. Sample bottle, 10 cents.

Extension of the Grand Trunk to Chicago.

The new line in Michigan which gives the Grand Trunk Railway an independent connexion with Chicago is now so far completed that a locomotive can run over it and it is understood that it will be ready for traffic in a few days. The length of line now owned by the Grand Trunk in Michigan is 325 miles from Port Huron to Chicago, and by means of it the Grand Trunk can reach the great grain depot of the world without paying tribute to any other corporation. The new connection is one that the managers of the Grand Trunk have desired ever since the year 1860, but the want of the necessary funds to complete the line, and the fact that the Michigan Central Railroad generally treated them fairly, delayed the building of an independent line of their own through Chicago. But when Vanderbilt purchased the controlling interest in the Michigan Central Road, the International and one or two others of the Grand Trunk's fast freight lines were almost, if not quite, broken up. This induced the management of the Grand Trunk to take measures to secure an independent connexion with Chicago. This connexion they supposed they had mainly secured by the purchase of the Port Huron and Chicago Road, a railroad reaching from Port Huron to Valparaiso, only 44 miles eastward of Chicago, and of the victims of the railroad panic of 1873. It was afterwards ascertained, however, that Vanderbilt had secured underlying securities that gave him the control of a section of the line between Flint and Lansing, 45 miles in length. After some delay under threats of building a road to fill up the missing link, Vanderbilt sold this section back to the Grand Trunk. Plans were also laid to construct a road from Valparaiso to Chicago, and it is this last piece of road which has delayed the opening of the Chicago connection. As it is now in a condition to admit of a locomotive running over it it will soon be ready for business. The new connection will be known hereafter as the Northwestern Grand Trunk, and in connexion with the other roads of the Grand Trunk will give that railway some 1589 miles of railroad in the United States and Canada. It will now have a line reaching from Chicago to Portland, a distance of 1,257 miles, the longest line upon the continent under one management.

PRINCIPAL:

The Rev. John Padfield.

THIS SCHOOL offers, at very moderate cost, the advantages of a comfortable and pleasant home together with a thorough and refined education.

The course of instruction is the same as that of the best Schools in England and is founded upon the University Examinations for Women. Eight young ladies from this School passed the Local Examination of the University of King's College in June last. This is the only School in Canada that has passed pupils at a University Examination.

The number of pupils is limited, rendering the School select, and while it possesses all the educational advantages of a large public school, each pupil is enabled to receive that individual care and oversight which is so important, and which cannot be given in a large establishment.

Mr. and Mrs. Padfield are assisted by a staff of four resident governesses, besides visiting masters.

Parisienne French is taught conversationally. There are two resident French Governesses.

References given to parents of pupils. For further particulars address the Principal. Sept. 19, 1878.

CATARRH.

Constitutional Catarrh Remedy CURES CATARRH.

Hear what a Reverend Gentleman says of the Constitutional Remedy.

T. J. B. HARDING, Esq., Brockville, Ont.—DEAR SIR—It is now two years since your "Constitutional Catarrh Remedy" was introduced to me. I have waited this long to see if the cure would remain permanent before doing this, my duty, to you, as at first the happy effects seemed to me to be "too good to be true."

I was afflicted in my head for years before I suspected it to be Catarrh. In reading in your Circular I saw my case described in many particulars. The inward "drop" from the head had become very disagreeable, and a choking sensation often preventing me from lying long, I would feel like smothering and be compelled to sit up in the bed. My health and spirits were seriously affected. When your agent came to Walkertown in August, 1876, I secured three bottles. Before I had used a quarter of the contents of one bottle I found decided relief, and when I had used two bottles and a third, I quit taking it, feeling quite clear of that ailment, and have not used any since until of late I have taken some for a cold in my head. A sense of duty to sufferers from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, prompts me to send you this Certificate, unsolicited, with leave to make what use of it you may see proper Yours truly,

W. TINDALL, Methodist Minister.
