THEIR FOOTPRINTS LEFT IN THE SANDS OF TIME

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Foot prints in the sands of time."

We come back from our holidays to find great gaps in our peak of their powers, have suddenly left us. Others will arise to serve the community with the new methods of a new day, but at the moment we feel that their places no one can fill.

The moment that we mention the names of the few before us, others will occur to many minds, but just think of the following leaders in their different professions — Dr. George Young, Rev. W. A. Cameron, Dr. J. G. Althouse, and Principal John McNicol.

This is the day of the specialist in medicine when the physician who would excel must know a little about everything and everything about something in his profession.

Research in this field is at its highest and best. But knowledge and skill can never dispense with the doctor's personal interest in his patient's welfare, healing or preventing disease with a view to full personal attainment.

For such interest to serve its objective it must be combined with professional skill of the highest order; popularity without ability only mooks expectancy.

Dr. George Young was above all else a great Christian, and as the expression of his faith he acquired and exercised the specialist's high qualifications. In his own profession and with the public he commanded both affection and confidence.

DRAMATIC CAREER

What a dramatic career was Rev. W. A. Cameron's as a preacher! We were associated with him in France in World War I, when, in a single evening, one of the YM CA's large huts would be filled three times in succession with eager listeners when Captain Cameron was the speaker.

As a student he was leader of an evangelistic band as a city minister first in Bloor Street Baptist Church, then in one of the theatres of the city, and finally building Yorkminister Baptist Church and making its pulpit his throne he demonstrated that there is no substitute for the living voice of the preacher of the Gospel.

His was no superficial popularity; there was thorough preparation behind every utterance, and his appeals to accept and follow Christ were based on the solid truth of the Christian revelation in Him.

Leaders in Education in Ontario said the other day that Dr. J. G. Althouse has no successor. There was no one whom they knew capable of filling his place. That prince of Educationists embodied in his own personality Ontario's ideal of education—the training of the mind culminating in the development of character.

NOT ENOUGH

Knowledge in itself is not enough, invaluable though it is. It is a means to an end. The intellect is the instrument of the soul. Culture is an attribute of personality, and the crown of personality is the spirit which links the soul with God.

Leaders in education in every province have a profound realization of the place of the spiritual in our culture and are eager to have it recognized in every school.

Althouse was a noble example. Everyone, from the minister of education to the teacher in the one-room school, profited by his fertility in suggestion, vigorous leadership and unfailing effort to reach his ideals.

It thrills one to think of the vast army of scholarly and devoted men and women who are dedicating their time and talents to the realization of these ideals of sound learning and strong character in the young people of this land.

Dr. John McNicol, for years principal of the Toronto Bible College, is another of the mighty who have passed unto the Unseen.

Just one example of the effects of this labors. At a social gathering a number of missionaries bore witness to the place the College had had in turning their thoughts to world evangelization and equipping them for it.

They were a noble band and had great stories to tell. One speaker commented on the value of such service and added: "A still greater contribution to the cause of Christ was to be found in the hundreds and hundreds of young people, taught and trained in Bible-teaching and Christian work and witness, who had been sent back into the churches of the land through the years."

Dr. McNicol taught the Bible in the firm conviction that the spiritual privileges and powers it offered could be realized in the lives of people now as of old, and his own saintliness was an inspiration in that direction.

The value of this type of work has now caught the imagination of the churches and institutions of this type are springing up in our provinces. Dr. McNicol's work will live long after him.

These, and others who could be named, are outstanding leaders who have just made the headlines in public memory. They are but types of thousands who are giving all they have and are to the reproduction of the image of Christ in the lives of the people.

Such souls are God's best gifts to the nation.

GRUMBLING DAY

LONDON (Reuters)—Rev. R.P. King, vicar of Sidmouth, has proposed a "national grumbling day." "How the British would love it," he said. "One day when they could get off their chests all their complaints, dissatisfactions, grunts, growls and catalogues of aches and pains."

That Give Your Child A "Belonging" Feeling
Mastery of a fine instrument gives your child serene poise and inner confidence, for a talent is never disregarded by others. More important, it gives wings to the child's own spirit. That's why your child deserves a good instrument.
