

ALLIED YOUTH POST CROWNS ROYALTY

The crowning of the Allied Youth King and Queen of the Prince County Welfare Agency at a carnival and dance held Friday in the school auditorium. The program was in charge of Cathy Fraser, Patsy Broderick and Mary Handrhan. Here Paul McAlduff, left, and Tena McMahon, right, place the crowns on the heads of King Norman Bernard and Queen Judy McAlduff.

Island's Welfare Bureau To Get New Jersey Aid

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

The annual meeting of the Prince County Welfare Agency held here yesterday afternoon, was highlighted by a flying visit by a New Jersey physician, Dr. Frank Colantuono, who charted a plane in Montreal early yesterday, flew to Summerside to make a brief speech to the meeting and then returned immediately to Montreal.

The plane carrying Dr. Colantuono landed on the harbor ice and the doctor immediately came to the meeting. He then spoke for approximately 10 minutes on the Sister Mary Eugene Foundation which has been formed in New Jersey in honor of the sister, who is executive director of the agency here.

Dr. Colantuono and his wife adopted a child here through the Prince County agency 15 months ago and the couple are returning here Tuesday to adopt a second one.

Some time ago a testimonial dinner was held in New Jersey by parents in the state to honor Mary Eugene who had enabled them to adopt children through this agency. Some 114 children from P.E.I. have been adopted by New Jersey couples through this agency.

These parents heard of the financial struggle faced by the agency at the meeting and as an expression of thanks to the sister for the happiness endowed them through the adoption of these children, they formed this foundation.

Funds are donated to the foundation and the committee heading it has agreed to pay out of it, the salary or salaries of additional staff members to the amount of $7,000 annually.

DEATH NOTICES

Received too late for Classified death notice column

BRUCE—The death occurred at the St. Joseph's Hospital, Jan. 24, of Laura Christina Bruce, aged three months, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laura Bruce of Kingsboro. Funeral to be held on Monday at 2 o'clock, in the St. Joseph's Cemetery.

APPEL—At Bedoune, Jan. 24, 1963, Mrs. F. Appel, aged 84 years. Remains will be forwarded from the Davison Funeral Home to her late residence, Monday evening. Funeral service will be held from Bedoune United Church Wednesday at 2 p.m. Interment in Bedoune cemetery. A box of flowers, donation to the British and Foreign Bible Society would be appreciated.

WALL—At the Prince County Hospital, Jan. 23, 1963, Everett Wall in his 76th year. Remains were forwarded from the Davison Funeral Home to his late residence, Indian River. Funeral service will be held from the Keir Memorial Church, Malpeque, Tuesday at 2 p.m. Interment People's cemetery, Malpeque.

WESTERN FUNERALS

CAMPBELL FUNERAL—The funeral of Charles Edmund Campbell was held Saturday afternoon from his late residence, Wellington, to the United Church where service was conducted by Rev. W.B. MacPhail. Hymns were Jesus Lover of My Soul and Nearer My God To Thee. In the Sweet Bye and Bye was rendered by the choir. Pallbearers were Claude, David and Allison MacCarville; Carl and James Stewart and Erskine Forbes. Interment was in the Methodist Cemetery, Central Lot 1A.

ARSENault FUNERAL—The funeral of John Peter Arsenault was held Saturday morning from the home of his nephew, Oveida Arsenault, Cape Egmont, to Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church, where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. John Buote. Pallbearers were: Oveida, Edward and John Peter Arsenault; Meddie, Joseph and Edmund Gallant. Interment was in the Church cemetery.

Child Escapes Bump By Car

Louann Beer, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beer, 96 1/2 Brighton Road, was only slightly injured when struck by a car on the St. Peter's Highway shortly before 11 Saturday morning.

Meivin Frederick Smethurst, Marshfield, was the driver of the car and it was reported that the child dived in front of the car so quickly he did not have time to stop.

Mrs. Theresa Pinesu, 232 Hillsboro St., a clerk in a nearby store administered first aid to the child at the scene while waiting for the ambulance to arrive.

Louann was taken to the P.E.I. Hospital by Cutcliffe Ambulance and it is understood she was released from there a short time later suffering from a few scratches.

Has escaped the impact of his role.

H. P. MacKee, lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, in a telegram to Lady Churchill:

"Nova Scotia mourns the death of Sir Winston one of history's greatest and most beloved men."

Rev. H. H. Clark, Anglican primate of Canada:

"The news of Winston Churchill's death fills us with a sense of awe at the passing of one of the great figures of history. We feel gratitude for this man whose words and deeds rallied a people threatened with destruction and gave the world a chance to meet the confusions of a new age with more freedom and justice than perhaps it deserved."

Premier John Roberts of Ontario: It is with sadness that one realizes the Churchillian era has passed and a new age is in the making. "He was a man who fulfilled his destiny in the impact he made on the world at large. His prodigious strength lay in his outstanding ability to lead and to inspire. To his tenacity and purpose and will to survive, the free world owes its life. Today, that world enjoying this hard-won freedom and liberty, expresses homage and pays tribute to this great statesman and warrior. His task has been completed, his labors are over. In his hands were some of the finest hours of the British Commonwealth."

Of Churchill, Macmillan declared: "The oldest among us can recall nothing to compare with him."

"You younger ones, however, long you live, will never see the like again."

"If I were to try to sum up his true character, I could think of no words more appropriate than those he has himself written on the fly-leaf of each volume of the history of the Second World War:

"They run as follows: 'In war, resolution; in defeat, defiance; in victory, magnanimity; in peace, goodwill.'"

"The author called the words 'the moral of this book.' In fact, they are the story of his life."

Many of the world's leaders will come to the funeral, likely including President Johnson if his doctors will permit. Churchill's mother was an American, and by a 1963 vote of Congress was transferred to a funeral train. The public ceremony will end at that point. Only members of the family and closest family friends will make the trip to Bladon, on the great Blenheim estate where Sir Winston was born.

It is expected Prime Minister Wilson and four former British prime ministers will serve as pallbearers at the funeral. Randolph Churchill, 53, Sir Winston's only son, may be the sixth.

The four former prime ministers are Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Earl of Avon (Anthony Eden), Harold Macmillan and Earl Ailes.

SUCCEEDED CHURCHILL—Attlee, now 82, was deputy prime minister in a wartime coalition, and succeeded Churchill as prime minister when Churchill died in 1955. He was in the House of Commons and in 1945 voted out his Conservative party. Now the Labor party, he is again in power by a slim margin in the House of Commons. His leader, Prime Minister Wilson, commented:

"Sir Winston will be mourned all over the world by all who owe so much to him. He is now at peace after a life in which he created history and which will be remembered as long as history is read."

Foreign embassy limousines drew up at the Churchill home in a stream as ambassadors paid their respects.

Starting at 10 a.m., the normal peal of bells from St. Paul's was stopped and instead, the state bell—"Great Tom"—was tolled. Normally it only tolls on the death of a member of the royal family, the Bishop of London, the dean of St. Paul's or the lord mayor. For a while, there was one toll a minute.

Throughout the day, Londoners called at the head of Churchill's barred dead-end street, Hyde Park Gate, to pay their respects. As some left and others arrived, the crowd remained fairly constant at about 500 persons.

SIGNS WERE DARK—Advertisers, whose lighted signs made Piccadilly Circus a small Times Square at night, left their signs dark Sunday night.

Sir Winston was fiercely proud of being half American. To the English-Speaking Union, an organization of distinguished Britons, Americans, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians and others, he once said: "My mother was American and my ancestors were officers in Washington's army. So I am myself an English-speaking union."

While best known as a statesman, Sir Winston was also the author of 30 books, including massive histories of the Second World War and of the English-speaking peoples. He was a soldier and painter, too, and an orator with the power to sway his audiences.

One of his most-quoted statements is his defiance of Hitler when Britain stood alone in the war after the fall of France. "We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills, we shall never surrender."

Now that he is dead, this can be told: Churchill made the statement

Child Escapes Bump By Car

Louann Beer, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beer, 96 1/2 Brighton Road, was only slightly injured when struck by a car on the St. Peter's Highway shortly before 11 Saturday morning.

Meivin Frederick Smethurst, Marshfield, was the driver of the car and it was reported that the child dived in front of the car so quickly he did not have time to stop.

Mrs. Theresa Pinesu, 232 Hillsboro St., a clerk in a nearby store administered first aid to the child at the scene while waiting for the ambulance to arrive.

Louann was taken to the P.E.I. Hospital by Cutcliffe Ambulance and it is understood she was released from there a short time later suffering from a few scratches.

Has escaped the impact of his role.

H. P. MacKee, lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, in a telegram to Lady Churchill:

"Nova Scotia mourns the death of Sir Winston one of history's greatest and most beloved men."

Rev. H. H. Clark, Anglican primate of Canada:

"The news of Winston Churchill's death fills us with a sense of awe at the passing of one of the great figures of history. We feel gratitude for this man whose words and deeds rallied a people threatened with destruction and gave the world a chance to meet the confusions of a new age with more freedom and justice than perhaps it deserved."

Premier John Roberts of Ontario: It is with sadness that one realizes the Churchillian era has passed and a new age is in the making. "He was a man who fulfilled his destiny in the impact he made on the world at large. His prodigious strength lay in his outstanding ability to lead and to inspire. To his tenacity and purpose and will to survive, the free world owes its life. Today, that world enjoying this hard-won freedom and liberty, expresses homage and pays tribute to this great statesman and warrior. His task has been completed, his labors are over. In his hands were some of the finest hours of the British Commonwealth."

Of Churchill, Macmillan declared: "The oldest among us can recall nothing to compare with him."

"You younger ones, however, long you live, will never see the like again."

"If I were to try to sum up his true character, I could think of no words more appropriate than those he has himself written on the fly-leaf of each volume of the history of the Second World War:

"They run as follows: 'In war, resolution; in defeat, defiance; in victory, magnanimity; in peace, goodwill.'"

"The author called the words 'the moral of this book.' In fact, they are the story of his life."

Many of the world's leaders will come to the funeral, likely including President Johnson if his doctors will permit. Churchill's mother was an American, and by a 1963 vote of Congress was transferred to a funeral train. The public ceremony will end at that point. Only members of the family and closest family friends will make the trip to Bladon, on the great Blenheim estate where Sir Winston was born.

It is expected Prime Minister Wilson and four former British prime ministers will serve as pallbearers at the funeral. Randolph Churchill, 53, Sir Winston's only son, may be the sixth.

The four former prime ministers are Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Earl of Avon (Anthony Eden), Harold Macmillan and Earl Ailes.

SUCCEEDED CHURCHILL—Attlee, now 82, was deputy prime minister in a wartime coalition, and succeeded Churchill as prime minister when Churchill died in 1955. He was in the House of Commons and in 1945 voted out his Conservative party. Now the Labor party, he is again in power by a slim margin in the House of Commons. His leader, Prime Minister Wilson, commented:

"Sir Winston will be mourned all over the world by all who owe so much to him. He is now at peace after a life in which he created history and which will be remembered as long as history is read."

Foreign embassy limousines drew up at the Churchill home in a stream as ambassadors paid their respects.

Starting at 10 a.m., the normal peal of bells from St. Paul's was stopped and instead, the state bell—"Great Tom"—was tolled. Normally it only tolls on the death of a member of the royal family, the Bishop of London, the dean of St. Paul's or the lord mayor. For a while, there was one toll a minute.

Throughout the day, Londoners called at the head of Churchill's barred dead-end street, Hyde Park Gate, to pay their respects. As some left and others arrived, the crowd remained fairly constant at about 500 persons.

SIGNS WERE DARK—Advertisers, whose lighted signs made Piccadilly Circus a small Times Square at night, left their signs dark Sunday night.

Sir Winston was fiercely proud of being half American. To the English-Speaking Union, an organization of distinguished Britons, Americans, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians and others, he once said: "My mother was American and my ancestors were officers in Washington's army. So I am myself an English-speaking union."

While best known as a statesman, Sir Winston was also the author of 30 books, including massive histories of the Second World War and of the English-speaking peoples. He was a soldier and painter, too, and an orator with the power to sway his audiences.

One of his most-quoted statements is his defiance of Hitler when Britain stood alone in the war after the fall of France. "We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills, we shall never surrender."

Now that he is dead, this can be told: Churchill made the statement

Churchill made the statement

Child Escapes Bump By Car

Louann Beer, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beer, 96 1/2 Brighton Road, was only slightly injured when struck by a car on the St. Peter's Highway shortly before 11 Saturday morning.

Meivin Frederick Smethurst, Marshfield, was the driver of the car and it was reported that the child dived in front of the car so quickly he did not have time to stop.

Mrs. Theresa Pinesu, 232 Hillsboro St., a clerk in a nearby store administered first aid to the child at the scene while waiting for the ambulance to arrive.

Louann was taken to the P.E.I. Hospital by Cutcliffe Ambulance and it is understood she was released from there a short time later suffering from a few scratches.

Has escaped the impact of his role.

H. P. MacKee, lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, in a telegram to Lady Churchill:

"Nova Scotia mourns the death of Sir Winston one of history's greatest and most beloved men."

Rev. H. H. Clark, Anglican primate of Canada:

"The news of Winston Churchill's death fills us with a sense of awe at the passing of one of the great figures of history. We feel gratitude for this man whose words and deeds rallied a people threatened with destruction and gave the world a chance to meet the confusions of a new age with more freedom and justice than perhaps it deserved."

Premier John Roberts of Ontario: It is with sadness that one realizes the Churchillian era has passed and a new age is in the making. "He was a man who fulfilled his destiny in the impact he made on the world at large. His prodigious strength lay in his outstanding ability to lead and to inspire. To his tenacity and purpose and will to survive, the free world owes its life. Today, that world enjoying this hard-won freedom and liberty, expresses homage and pays tribute to this great statesman and warrior. His task has been completed, his labors are over. In his hands were some of the finest hours of the British Commonwealth."

Of Churchill, Macmillan declared: "The oldest among us can recall nothing to compare with him."

"You younger ones, however, long you live, will never see the like again."

"If I were to try to sum up his true character, I could think of no words more appropriate than those he has himself written on the fly-leaf of each volume of the history of the Second World War:

"They run as follows: 'In war, resolution; in defeat, defiance; in victory, magnanimity; in peace, goodwill.'"

"The author called the words 'the moral of this book.' In fact, they are the story of his life."

Many of the world's leaders will come to the funeral, likely including President Johnson if his doctors will permit. Churchill's mother was an American, and by a 1963 vote of Congress was transferred to a funeral train. The public ceremony will end at that point. Only members of the family and closest family friends will make the trip to Bladon, on the great Blenheim estate where Sir Winston was born.

It is expected Prime Minister Wilson and four former British prime ministers will serve as pallbearers at the funeral. Randolph Churchill, 53, Sir Winston's only son, may be the sixth.

The four former prime ministers are Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Earl of Avon (Anthony Eden), Harold Macmillan and Earl Ailes.

SUCCEEDED CHURCHILL—Attlee, now 82, was deputy prime minister in a wartime coalition, and succeeded Churchill as prime minister when Churchill died in 1955. He was in the House of Commons and in 1945 voted out his Conservative party. Now the Labor party, he is again in power by a slim margin in the House of Commons. His leader, Prime Minister Wilson, commented:

"Sir Winston will be mourned all over the world by all who owe so much to him. He is now at peace after a life in which he created history and which will be remembered as long as history is read."

Foreign embassy limousines drew up at the Churchill home in a stream as ambassadors paid their respects.

Starting at 10 a.m., the normal peal of bells from St. Paul's was stopped and instead, the state bell—"Great Tom"—was tolled. Normally it only tolls on the death of a member of the royal family, the Bishop of London, the dean of St. Paul's or the lord mayor. For a while, there was one toll a minute.

Throughout the day, Londoners called at the head of Churchill's barred dead-end street, Hyde Park Gate, to pay their respects. As some left and others arrived, the crowd remained fairly constant at about 500 persons.

SIGNS WERE DARK—Advertisers, whose lighted signs made Piccadilly Circus a small Times Square at night, left their signs dark Sunday night.

Sir Winston was fiercely proud of being half American. To the English-Speaking Union, an organization of distinguished Britons, Americans, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians and others, he once said: "My mother was American and my ancestors were officers in Washington's army. So I am myself an English-speaking union."

While best known as a statesman, Sir Winston was also the author of 30 books, including massive histories of the Second World War and of the English-speaking peoples. He was a soldier and painter, too, and an orator with the power to sway his audiences.

One of his most-quoted statements is his defiance of Hitler when Britain stood alone in the war after the fall of France. "We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills, we shall never surrender."

Now that he is dead, this can be told: Churchill made the statement

Churchill made the statement

ISLAND NEWS PAGE

Western And Central Districts

The Guardian, Charlottetown, Mon., Jan. 25, 1963

Don Loney Will Speak At Sportsmen's Dinner

MORELL—The fourth annual Morell Sportsmen's Dinner is set for Wednesday evening, Jan. 27, at Morell Regional High School, with Don Loney, head football coach at St. Francis Xavier, as guest speaker.

The Morell function, originated in 1962 to assist payments on the capital cost of a new community rink, has been a "red letter" date on the sports calendar of this province ever since, with more than 300 people attending annually.

This year's headline speaker, Don Loney, was one of the outstanding Canadian football players in Canada with Ottawa Rough Riders a few years before he turned to coaching. He made his first mark with Shearwater Flyers in the Atlantic Football Conference, but he gained real fame at St. Francis Xavier University in the past five years.

Under Loney, the X-men became one of the top college grid teams in the nation, defeating teams like McGill and University of Toronto in exhibition and Atlantic Bowl games, and the Xavarians went five seasons without a loss in the Atlantic Conference under Loney before St. Mary's Huskies dropped them last October.

Meivin Frederick Smethurst, Marshfield, was the driver of the car and it was reported that the child dived in front of the car so quickly he did not have time to stop.

Mrs. Theresa Pinesu, 232 Hillsboro St., a clerk in a nearby store administered first aid to the child at the scene while waiting for the ambulance to arrive.

Louann was taken to the P.E.I. Hospital by Cutcliffe Ambulance and it is understood she was released from there a short time later suffering from a few scratches.

Has escaped the impact of his role.

H. P. MacKee, lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia, in a telegram to Lady Churchill:

"Nova Scotia mourns the death of Sir Winston one of history's greatest and most beloved men."

Rev. H. H. Clark, Anglican primate of Canada:

"The news of Winston Churchill's death fills us with a sense of awe at the passing of one of the great figures of history. We feel gratitude for this man whose words and deeds rallied a people threatened with destruction and gave the world a chance to meet the confusions of a new age with more freedom and justice than perhaps it deserved."

Premier John Roberts of Ontario: It is with sadness that one realizes the Churchillian era has passed and a new age is in the making. "He was a man who fulfilled his destiny in the impact he made on the world at large. His prodigious strength lay in his outstanding ability to lead and to inspire. To his tenacity and purpose and will to survive, the free world owes its life. Today, that world enjoying this hard-won freedom and liberty, expresses homage and pays tribute to this great statesman and warrior. His task has been completed, his labors are over. In his hands were some of the finest hours of the British Commonwealth."

Of Churchill, Macmillan declared: "The oldest among us can recall nothing to compare with him."

"You younger ones, however, long you live, will never see the like again."

"If I were to try to sum up his true character, I could think of no words more appropriate than those he has himself written on the fly-leaf of each volume of the history of the Second World War:

"They run as follows: 'In war, resolution; in defeat, defiance; in victory, magnanimity; in peace, goodwill.'"

"The author called the words 'the moral of this book.' In fact, they are the story of his life."

Many of the world's leaders will come to the funeral, likely including President Johnson if his doctors will permit. Churchill's mother was an American, and by a 1963 vote of Congress was transferred to a funeral train. The public ceremony will end at that point. Only members of the family and closest family friends will make the trip to Bladon, on the great Blenheim estate where Sir Winston was born.

It is expected Prime Minister Wilson and four former British prime ministers will serve as pallbearers at the funeral. Randolph Churchill, 53, Sir Winston's only son, may be the sixth.

The four former prime ministers are Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Earl of Avon (Anthony Eden), Harold Macmillan and Earl Ailes.

SUCCEEDED CHURCHILL—Attlee, now 82, was deputy prime minister in a wartime coalition, and succeeded Churchill as prime minister when Churchill died in 1955. He was in the House of Commons and in 1945 voted out his Conservative party. Now the Labor party, he is again in power by a slim margin in the House of Commons. His leader, Prime Minister Wilson, commented:

"Sir Winston will be mourned all over the world by all who owe so much to him. He is now at peace after a life in which he created history and which will be remembered as long as history is read."

Foreign embassy limousines drew up at the Churchill home in a stream as ambassadors paid their respects.

Starting at 10 a.m., the normal peal of bells from St. Paul's was stopped and instead, the state bell—"Great Tom"—was tolled. Normally it only tolls on the death of a member of the royal family, the Bishop of London, the dean of St. Paul's or the lord mayor. For a while, there was one toll a minute.

Throughout the day, Londoners called at the head of Churchill's barred dead-end street, Hyde Park Gate, to pay their respects. As some left and others arrived, the crowd remained fairly constant at about 500 persons.

SIGNS WERE DARK—Advertisers, whose lighted signs made Piccadilly Circus a small Times Square at night, left their signs dark Sunday night.

Sir Winston was fiercely proud of being half American. To the English-Speaking Union, an organization of distinguished Britons, Americans, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians and others, he once said: "My mother was American and my ancestors were officers in Washington's army. So I am myself an English-speaking union."

While best known as a statesman, Sir Winston was also the author of 30 books, including massive histories of the Second World War and of the English-speaking peoples. He was a soldier and painter, too, and an orator with the power to sway his audiences.

One of his most-quoted statements is his defiance of Hitler when Britain stood alone in the war after the fall of France. "We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills, we shall never surrender."

Now that he is dead, this can be told: Churchill made the statement

Churchill made the statement

Churchill made the statement

Churchill made the statement

Churchill made the statement

he was an honorary citizen of the United States. Medical experts said death came to him like a friend—peacefully and without pain.

For nine days his rugged constitution had fought off the ravages of a cerebral thrombosis—his third stroke in 14 years. In the end, the medical bulletin related, he slipped into a deeper sleep and did not awaken.

Said the official bulletin: "Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, Sunday, January 24, Sir Winston Churchill died at his London home."

Within minutes of the announcement buildings all over rainy London began dropping their flags to half staff. The BBC coupled its news bulletin with a playing of Beethoven's fifth symphony. Once that symphony's opening notes over BBC symbolized for Nazi-occupied lands the hope of deliverance, just as Churchill's voice and his V-for-victory sign helped give Britons and their allies the resolve to make true his assurance: "We shall never surrender."

RITUAL PLANNED—All the solemn ritual of the Church of England and the British military establishment will be employed to show Britain's gratitude. Not since the death of William Gladstone 67 years ago has a British statesman been honored with a state funeral.

The ceremony will include features used for the funeral of Lord Nelson in 1805 and the Duke of Wellington in 1852. Both these heroes were entombed in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The funeral services will be conducted by Most Rev. Michael Ramsey, the archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England.

Government officials have been studying and planning the final honors ever since his death became certain, early last week.

Churchill's coffin will rest on a gun carriage drawn by 12 horses as the funeral procession moves from Westminster to Trafalgar Square, and down the Strand and Fleet Street to Lodge Hill and the cathedral.

Troops of Britain's famed regiments, including the Queen's Household Cavalry, will escort the gun carriage. The procession will include many of Britain's and the world's great.

WILL MOVE TO PIER—Following the ceremony at St. Paul's, the funeral cortege will move slowly to Tower Pier, near the ancient Tower of London. A funeral barge draped in black will move up the Thames to Festival Pier, where it will be transferred to a funeral train. The public ceremony will end at that point. Only members of the family and closest family friends will make the trip to Bladon, on the great Blenheim estate where Sir Winston was born.

It is expected Prime Minister Wilson and four former British prime ministers will serve as pallbearers at the funeral. Randolph Churchill, 53, Sir Winston's only son, may be the sixth.

The four former prime ministers are Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the Earl of Avon (Anthony Eden), Harold Macmillan and Earl Ailes.

SUCCEEDED CHURCHILL—Attlee, now 82, was deputy prime minister in a wartime coalition, and succeeded Churchill as prime minister when Churchill died in 1955. He was in the House of Commons and in 1945 voted out his Conservative party. Now the Labor party, he is again