Beauty

Is desired and admired by all. Among the things which may best be done to enhance personal beauty is the daily use of Ayer's Hair Vigor.

No matter what the color of the hair, this preparation gives it a lustre and pliancy that adds greatly to its charm. Should the hair be thin, harsh, dry, or turning gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the color, bring out a new growth, and render the old soft and shiny. For keeping the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, there is no better preparation in the market.

"I am free to confess that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me that it is a genuine article. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be but it has given my rather stunted mustache a respectable length and appearance."—H. Britton, Oakland, Ohio.

"My hair was coming out (without any assistance from my wife, either). I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, using only one bottle, and I now have as fine a head of hair as any one could wish for."—R. T. Schmitt, Dickinson, Penn.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor in my factory for a number of years, and regard it as the best hair preparation I know of. It keeps the scalp clean, the hair soft and lively, and preserves the original color. My wife has used it for a long time with most satisfactory results."—Benjamin M. Johnson, M. D., Thomas Hill, Mo.

"My hair was becoming harsh and dry, but after using half a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it grew black and glossy. I cannot express the joy and gratitude I feel."—Mabel C. Hardy, Delavan, Ill.

A CALL EXTENDED.—The Presbyterian congregation in Dalhousie at a recent congregational meeting resolved to extend a call to the Rev. Geo. Fisher, of Tignish.

MEETING.—A meeting will be held in Rose-nath Schoolhouse on Jan. 21st, concerning the repairs of Brudenell wharf. The members of the Dominion House and local members of that district are invited to attend.

OBITUARY.—Daniel McFarlane, jr., the youngest member of the wholesale stationery firm of McFarlane, Austin & Robertson, Montreal, died in that city yesterday morning, 14th inst., at three o'clock. Mr. Austin, of the above firm, is well and favorably known here.

HOOK AND LADDER.—A meeting of the new Hook and Ladder Company was held last evening, and the following officers were elected:—William Hertz, Captain; Kenneth Fitzgibbon, Lieutenant; Wm. H. Boyle, Secretary and Treasurer; Michael Hennessey, Captain; James Bell, Ronald McDonald, Duncan MacRae, axe men.

A PLECKY GIRL.—A girl named McLeod, of Big Glen, Baddeck, C. B., met with a thrilling adventure on Monday. There was some excitement among the sheep, and the girl went to the flock to learn the cause of the disturbance. She found a wild cat among them. The animal flew at her, and she hit it on the head with a stick, which she fortunately had in her hand, and killed it.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Yesterday afternoon a young lad named Benny Chappell had a narrow escape from drowning. While skating on the river, and when about half a mile beyond the Asylum, he broke through the thin channel ice. A young man, whose name we have not ascertained, and who had witnessed the accident, ran to the rescue, and taking off his overcoat threw the end of it to the young lad and thus saved his life. He was taken to the Stock Farm, and after being kindly cared for by Mrs. Bell, was driven home.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Saturday afternoon, says the Moncton Times, Mr. Wallace Parker, foreman in Lea's planing mill, was engaged handling doors from the door of the second story of the mill to the truckman below. He had just handed down one article when the wind blew the door against him, knocking him out of his feet, and he fell head foremost. In falling he caught at the door casing, and prevented what might have been a fatal accident. As it was he fell a distance of 12 feet, striking on the wagon, badly injuring one leg which came in contact with a plank, and receiving other injuries.

Obituary.

The late M. William Howe was born in Bristol, England, in the year 1814. He left home at the early age of eight years, and served as cabin boy on the schooner Despatch for a term of three years, after which he emigrated to this Island, where he entered the service of Mr. Cambridge, of Murray River, under whom he learned the art of spar-making. Having completed a term of seven years in that business, he purchased a farm at White Sands, Murray Harbor South, in an almost wilderness state, and resided thereon the rest of his life. This farm, by his industry and good management, he raised to a high degree of cultivation. His dwelling and farm buildings correspond therewith. He pursued the business of spar-making in addition to his farm work, up to within the last ten or twelve years of his death, and was well-known all over King's County and elsewhere in this Island, by those engaged in ship-building, as a man of the strictest integrity. He possessed an indomitable will and succeeded in whatever he undertook. He was always a regular attendant at the services of the Methodist Church in his neighborhood, and contributed generously of his means to its support. He leaves behind him two sons, one daughter and several grand-children to mourn their loss. His death took place on the last day of the year 1888, at the age of 75 years. His end was peace.

CHAPTER IV.

And soon there was but one person remaining—Itzili, the Tezucan. Brought from Tlacopan by officers, too weak to walk, without slaves to help him, at sight of the deserted hall his countenance became haggard, the light in his hollow eyes came and went, and his broad breast heaved passionately; in that long, slow look he measured the depth of his fall.

"O Tezucan, Tezucan, city of my fathers!" he cried aloud. "This is the last wrong to the last of thy race of kings."

A little after he was upon a bench exhausted, his head covered by his mantle. The hand was laid upon his shoulder; he looked up and saw Hualpa.

"How now! Has the base-born come to enjoy his triumph? I cannot strike. Laugh and revile me; but remember, mine is the blood of kings. The gods loved my father, and will not abandon his son. In their names I curse you!"

"Tezucan, you are proud to foolishness," said the hunter calmly. "I came to serve you. Within an hour I have become master of slaves."

"And were yourself a slave?"
"Well, I won my freedom; I slew a beast and conquered a— But, prince, my slaves are at the door. Command them to Tlacopan."

"Play courtesy to those who have influence; lean your ambition upon one who can advance it, I am undone."

"I am not a courtier. The service I offer you springs from a warrior's motive. I propose it, not to a man of power, but to a prince whose courage is superior to his fortune."

For a moment the Tezucan studied the glowing face; then his brows relaxed, and, sighing like a woman, and like a woman overcome by the unexpected gentleness, he bowed his head and covered his face with his hands, that he might not be accused of tears.

"Let me call the slaves, O prince," said Hualpa.

Thrice he clapped his hands, and four tattooed amazons stalked into the chamber with a palanquin. Itzili took a seat in the carriage and was being borne away, when he called the hunter.

"A word," he said, in a voice from which all passion was gone. "Though my enemy, you have been generous, and remembered my misfortunes when all others forsook me. Take with you this mark. I do not ask you to wear it, for the time is nearly come when the son of Hualpa will be proscribed throughout the valley; but keep it in witness that I, the son of a king, acknowledged your right and fitness to be a noble. Farewell!"
Hualpa could not refuse a present so delicately given; extending his hand he received a bracelet of gold, set with an Aztec diamond of immense value. He clasped it upon his arm, and followed the carriage into the street.

BOOK FOUR.

CHAPTER I.

THE KING GIVES A TRUST TO HUALPA.

AND NOW was come the time of all the year most pleasant—the time when the magney was greenest, when the cacti burst into flower, and in every field women and children, and the strong men, went to pluck the ripened maize. Of the summer, only the abundance and beauty remained. The goddess of Wealth divided the worship which at other seasons, was mostly given to Huitzil' and Tezcatli' (Tezcatlipoca, a god next in rank to the Supreme Being. Supposed creator of the world); in her temples the days were all of prayer, hymning and priestly ceremony. No other towers sent up such columns of the blue smoke so grateful to the dwellers in the Sun; in no other places were there such incessant burning of censers, presentation of gifts and sacrifices of victims. Throughout the valley the people carolled those songs the sweetest and most millennial of men—the songs of harvest, peace and plenty.

I have before said that Tezucan, the lake, was the especial pride of the Aztecs. When the sky was clear and the air tranquil, it was very beautiful; but when the king, with his court, all in state, set out for the hunting grounds on the northern shore, its beauty rose to splendor. By this invitation great numbers of citizens, in style suited to the honor, joined their canoes to the flotilla composing the retinue. And let it not be forgotten that the Aztec loved his canoe as in Christendom the good knight loves his steed, and decorated it with all he knew of art; that its prow, rising high above the water, and touched by the master sculptors, was dressed in garlands and fantastic symbols; that its light and shapely canopy, elegantly trimmed within, was shaded by curtains, and surmounted by trailing streamers; and that the slaves, four, six, and sometimes twelve in number, dipped and drew their flashing paddles in faultless time, and shone afar brilliant in livery. So, when the multitude of vessels cleared the city walls, and with music and song dashed into the open lake, the very water seemed to dance and quiver with a sensuous pleasure.

In such style did Montezuma one pleasant morning leave his capital. Calm was the lake, and so clear that the reflection of the sky above seemed a bed of blue below. There were music and shouts, and merry songs, and from the city the cheers and plaudits of the thousands who, from the walls and housetops, witnessed the pageant. And his canoe was the soul of the pomp, and he had with him his favorite minstrel and jester, and Maxtla; yet there was something on his mind that made him indifferent to the scene and prospective sport. Some distance out, by his direction, the slaves maneuvered that all the flotilla passed him; then he said to Maxtla, "The will has left me. I will not hunt to-day; yet the pastime must go on; a recall now were unkingly. Look out for a way to follow the train, while I return."

The chief arose, and swept the lake with a bright glance. "Yonder is a chinampa; I can take its master's canoe."

"Do so. Give this ring to the Lord Cuitlahua, and tell him to 'conduct the hunt.' And soon Maxtla was hurrying to the north with the signal, while the monarch was speeding more swiftly to the south.
