

The Search for the Green

Hello again. One of the hot topics in financial aid news these days in the Canada Student Loan and its appeal procedure. I would like to point out two things, 1) if you aren't satisfied with your load assessment, for a legitimate reason, you have a right to appeal and 2) many appeals are handled very routinely through the Student Aid branch of the Dept. of Education.

Steps for appealing your student loan:

1. There is no deadline for appeals. Although it is in your interest to file an appeal as soon as possible.

2. You can appeal if:

-you didn't receive the amount of award requested

-if your award was adjusted

3. You may appeal any of the following: assessed student contribution, assessed parental contributions, and/or assessed educational costs. The usual basis for appeal is an extenuating circumstance. However, even if your reason isn't a common one don't hesitate to appeal if you can't meet your expenses for the coming year.

4. Your student contribution may be appealed due to exceptionally low income, unemployment, or if you attended intercession courses or summer school.

5. Parental contribution appeals will be considered in the case of funeral, legal fees, weddings, dependant relatives, unavoidable home emergency repairs, strikes, unemployment, and illness that affected income.

6. Appeals for educational costs will be considered based on an increase in the cost following the original application for loan.

In order to help students with their loans and/or appeals I offer my assistance Tuesday through Friday from 1:30 to 3:30.

Here are some upcoming scholarship deadline dates, but I remind you that there are also more awards not printed here in today's column because of quantity. Do come in and inquire at Student Services because the search for the green really does begin with you.

Mixed Witz

Gem's Pet Peeve of the Week:

Do YOU have a Pet Peeve? Tell the GEM about it!

I hate it when edible oil products are used as creamers in the cafeterias

-a concerned student

The Security Department is Non-existent!

-unsecure

I hate it when I have to pay a 40 cent deposit on a big bottle of pop if I don't have an empty; but when I bring the bottle back, I only get 35 cents!

-sick of this pop-poop
