

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 22, 1889.

Notes and Comments.

To publish "A Schoolboy's" letter in its present form would be to set thousands of tongues wagging against hundreds of teachers throughout the Province.

The Independent of New York remarks: "The arrest of Alexander Sullivan has brought out afresh the story of his life. It reads like a romance of the kind that are bound in yellow covers and sold for ten cents."

The following remarks of the Colonist, of Victoria, B. C., which is edited by Mr. Henry Lawson, of this Province, will be scanned with interest in view of the approaching examinations.

On the subject of purity, Bishop Bond, of Montreal, recently uttered most impressive and important words. He said: "I commend this subject to the deep consideration of parents and guardians, with whom, more than with any others, rests the power as well as the responsibility of stopping the beginning of this sin."

Growth of Maritime Towns.

(Moncton Times.)

The growth of maritime towns is gratifying. A gentleman from Nova Scotia who was in Moncton a few days ago reports that the sister town of Amherst is going ahead very rapidly, rivaling, if it does not surpass, Moncton in this respect.

Don't be deceived in buying shoes, but go straight to McEachen, the cheap boot and shoe man.

Varia.

It may interest some of your readers to read of an apothecary's bill for medicine prescribed over 250 years ago, for a fever patient. The list of medicine given on each other day is quite as long, and every bolus is found in the same way duly specified in "Mr. Parrett, the apothecary's bill sent in to Mr. A. Dalley, who was a mercer on Ludgate Hill."

Table with 3 columns: Name of medicine, Quantity, Price. Includes items like Pearl Julap, Cordial Draught, etc.

One day's medical treatment is here represented as it was often to be met with in the palmy days of physic, when "Some fell by laudanum, and some by steel, And death in ambush lay in every pill."

The following account of the homage paid to Father Matthew is taken from his Life by Mr. Maguire, M. P.: "The missionary of temperance had arrived in the dusk of the evening at the house of a parish priest in a remote part of the County Galway, where he was to preach in aid of the funds of a school, and afterwards administer the pledge."

On the subject of purity, Bishop Bond, of Montreal, recently uttered most impressive and important words. He said: "I commend this subject to the deep consideration of parents and guardians, with whom, more than with any others, rests the power as well as the responsibility of stopping the beginning of this sin."

One has often heard the story of Lord Brougham's instructions on brewing. As ordinarily told it is to the effect that certain illustrious foreigners, accompanied by his Lordship, then Lord High Chancellor, had assembled at a celebrated brewery in order to inspect its working; that the individual detailed to explain everything to them was suddenly taken ill, when Lord Brougham became their instructor instead, and to the astonishment of every one, exhibited a complete acquaintance with the process of brewing, which he lucidly explained.

astonished by his unceasing volubility, and in speaking of it afterwards in a mixed company, where the author (of Brown's Life) was present, observed:—"Quite faith, sir, but it made my hair stand on end" to hear the Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain tell the Lord High Treasurer a long tale about malt and the brewing of it, and use words of truth far beginning to end. It made a thinking man reflect, what a terrible pass things must have come till, when a minister could just tell, and another minister just believe, six awful cantrips! Eh, sirs, nae barrel can be good that blatherin' chief has got the brewin' o'."
