An Extensive Business in King's County.

SOME SUGGESTIONS.

The business formerly carried on by Hon. Senator Prowse at Murray Harbor, in King's County, has been transferred to his two sons, Messrs. Albert and Wm. H. Prowse, under the firm name of Prowse & Sons. This firm is one of the most enterprising in King's County, having a lobster factory at Guernsey Cove and another at Indian Island, both of which are fitted out in the best style, and, during the fishing season, give employment to a large number of men, boys and girls.

Prowse & Sons have also a large potato starch factory at Murray Harbor South where thousands of bushels of potatoes are annually marketed by the farmers at fairly good prices; considering that the crop is sold as it comes from the field, without any extra labor for sorting and handling in and out of cellars. The starch factory with its fittings cost about $10,000 and is complete in all its arrangements. The manufactured starch is shipped by schooners to Charlottetown, from whence it is distributed to the cotton factories and other places where it is in demand.

Prowse & Sons have also a large general store and warehouse at South River Bridge in which they carry a heavy supply of all the goods required by their customers. The shop part is handsomely finished and is heated by hot water, it being one of the first to have this heating system in King's County.

The firm are also about building a factory at Murry Harbor for canning mutton, and will give a market for any quantity of sheep and lambs in that part of the Island, something that heretofore was much wanted. If we had more enterprising firms like Prowse & Sons, who would take the products of the farmers and turn them into manufactured articles, there would be less reason to fear the hostile legislation of the United States.

In Nova Scotia a firm has commenced evaporating potatoes, sweet corn, and all kinds of roots and vegetables; and its goods are now commanding ready sale in London, England. The goods put up by the Canning Company have proved so satisfactory that they have a contract to supply them to the British Navy.

They have also a special line of goods put up in small-sized cans, that is meeting with great favor in the English market. These cans contain all the vegetables necessary for making a first-class pot of soup, and are very handy to have in the house. Why cannot a similar enterprise be started in Prince Edward Island, where roots and vegetables can be obtained so cheaply?

Fort Augustus Notes.

The farmers here are busy at their autumn farmwork—potato-digging, ploughing and threshing.

The potatoes are an abundant crop, and should they not be seriously effected by the rot, the prospects for an excellent yield were never better.

A good deal of early ploughing has been done, which will enable those who have shipping to do to haul their produce when a favorable opportunity presents itself.

The oats and wheat threshed seem of good quality, and the turnips I have seen a good sample.

At a fair range of prices, a few schooners could be quickly loaded at Hagarty's Wharf with potatoes, oats and turnips.

The Local Government have lately put this wharf in thorough repair. Messrs. P. Curley and J. & A. Hann were the contractors, and Mr. S. O'Hare inspector of the work; and they have just completed one of the most satisfactory and substantial public contracts that has been done in this part of the country for years. The best of material was used, and every part of the work was done in a speedy, workmanlike manner; and now that the undertaking has been completed, it is pleasing for all interested to know that there is a good wharf at Hagarty's, one of the best shipping places on East River.

Honors are Cheap in Paris.

FOR TEN DOLLARS THE "INVENTORS' ACADEMY" WILL MAKE YOU A MEMBER.

Mr. Park Benjamin, of No. 32 Park place, is in possession of a document which proves that the swindlers of Paris are alive to American methods, especially those of the green goods and bogus diploma men. It is in the shape of a letter purporting to come from the "Parisian Inventors' Academy," and came addressed to one of Mr. Benjamin's clients, who is himself an inventor.

Its English has a peculiarly French flavor, and its orthography speaks for itself. Here it is:—

Gentlemen,—We beg to inform you that after the examination of your last invention the Academy has conferred upon you the title of Corresponding Honorary Member (Membre D'Honneur Correspondant) with attribution of a Diploma and the great Gilded Medal.

This honorific title will be of no expenses for you, only if you would be desirous to receive the Medal and Diploma, you would have to send us a money order or check of ten dollars to cover admission, taxes, freight, etc., and we shall send both well packed and free of charge at your address. (Please indicate the nearest Railway Station.)

Trusting that this present will be favorably received, we are at your disposition in invention and Patent matter, according to the Status of the Academy, and we remain gentlemen, your obedient servant,

A. PRITA, General Secretary.

The office of the "Academy" is at No. 15 Faubourg Montmartre, Paris, and those who deal with it are informed that "letters and money orders are to be addressed at Monsieur E. Boettcher, Engeneur Civil, at the Academy."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Echoes from the Exhibitions.

SIR,—The season for Exhibitions has come and gone. That they attracted unusual interest this year is an undisputed fact, and the success attending the efforts of the managing association, especially of the Provincial and King's County Associations, has been duly chronicled in the press. We should now think over the lessons that are to be learned from these Exhibitions. They cost an immense amount of time and money, and unless good practical benefit can be obtained from them, the glorification that we feel in having good exhibits will be poor pay for the expense.

One lesson that should be learned by all, and put into practice also, is that the successful prize winners are men who make a specialty of the classes they compete in. Let every farmer make a specialty of some particular thing; for only by doing so will he find that his efforts will be fully rewarded. Of course, I do not mean that the farmer should neglect everything for one object or one specialty; but while attending generally to all kinds of work, let there be one breed or cereal or vegetable or production of some kind that will receive the best care. In this way a higher standard of excellence will be reached, and the great object of Exhibitions—the raising of the quality of the productions of the country—will be attained.

Although I am disposed to give the managing associations of our Exhibitions due credit for the care they took and the forethought they displayed in providing for the instruction, amusement and comfort of those who patronized them; yet in one respect there is reason for great complaint. Whose was the fault, it is not for me to say. Perhaps nobody was to blame. But it certainly was the case that the dining rooms and provisions provided were not as they should have been, either at Georgetown or Charlottetown.

Strangers attending our exhibition are very apt to carry away poor impressions of our capabilities as a food producing country, if they judged by the quality supplied to the general public at the Exhibition grounds. It is said that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach; and if that be so, no one who trusted to what he got to eat at the Exhibition grounds will have any great love for the managing committee. It is lamentable to think that in a great beef and mutton producing province like P. E. Island claims to be, that the bill of fare for dinner should be only corned beef and cold ham. What will the people from other places say who had this recherche menu put before them?

And then again the attendance was miserable. Instead of having order and cleanliness, the opposite was prevalent. Of course it may be said that the rush is too great—that it was impossible to provide for the great number who patronized the tables. But this should have been provided for on the second day at Charlottetown at any rate; and on the third day there was no excuse for not having ample provision for any number. Every one knew that the town was full of people, and that no one who wished to go out to the Exhibition in the morning wanted to go back to town to get his dinner. The very poor accommodation provided at the dining rooms certainly looked like an attempt to get a grab at the people's money without giving value for it. Would it not be a good idea for the three Exhibition Associations to give a joint purse of say $50 to the best managed dining rooms at the Exhibitions for 1891, which would be awarded by the decision of impartial judges to be named by each Association.

There is also another grievance that should be remedied by the managers of the Provincial Exhibition. Season tickets were issued good for four days, but only one admission each day was allowed.

Now, many persons wanted to visit the grounds both morning and afternoon, who would not be able to stay in town four days. If these tickets had been good for four admissions at any time, they would have given more satisfaction, and the association would have made just as much money. People would buy these season tickets more freely if they had been granted in that way. The merchants of Charlottetown complain that the Exhibition kept the people away from the city all day, and it was a fact. Farmers who wanted to see the stock had to go out to the grounds in the morning and could not return again in the afternoon, if they wished to go into the city to do some shopping between twelve and two, without again paying 50 cents. This kept many away from the shops in town.

Hoping that these remarks may cause amendment another year, I am yours truly,
OBSERVER.

Oct. 6, 1890.

A Suicide's Anxiety.

John Bowden, a Cockney, who committed suicide in London on Thursday last had an anxiety on his mind at the time he died. He was afraid the coffin would not be of that superior quality that his position entitled him to. So much did it worry him that he went to the undertaker's and dropped the following letter into the letter box:—

GENTLEMEN,—I write this for you to come to 86 Abbey Street to make me a good, strong polished elm coffin with brass nails. I have sent you the key of the front door to avoid taking my body to the mortuary. My nephew will furnish you with papers and pay all expenses. Make the box as soon as you can.

Yours,
JOHN BOWDEN.

Then he hurried home, and when the undertaker and the police came they found John hanging to a nail behind the door, as dead as the projection to which he was appended.
