THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MARCH 30, 1892.

The Judge of Probate.

THE vacancy in the Court of Probate of this Province is now to be filled. Is it to be filled by the Dominion authorities or the Provincial administration? Turning to the British North American Act—the constitution of the country—we read,—

"The Governor-General shall appoint the Judges of the Superior, District and County Courts in each Province, except those of the Court of Probate in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick."

And again,

"The salaries, allowances and pensions of the Judges of the Superior, District and County Courts (except the Courts of Probate in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick) . . . shall be fixed and provided by the Parliament of Canada."

It is clear, then, that the appointment lies with the Dominion, and that the validity of a decree or order of a Judge of Probate appointed by the Provincial Government would be open to question.

The Parliament of Canada is, under the law, to provide the salary and, we may presume, to fix and collect the fees. But the practice in Ontario, and, we believe, in other Provinces, is that the County Court Judges (appointed by the Dominion Government) do the work of Judges of Probate, and are paid for their services as such by the Provincial Government, which takes the probate fees.

The smallness of this Province makes questionable the expediency of a division of the work of the Probate Office among the three counties. But whether a Judge of Probate be appointed by the Dominion Government, or the practice of Ontario be followed,—there ought to be a radical change in respect to the fees paid into the Probate Court. Hitherto they have been so high that hundreds of dollars have been exacted from some estates; and they have inured not to the advantage of the Province, but to that of the Judge. A reform is needed in the interests of those who are compelled to do business in the Probate office and also in the interests of the country at large. Nor could a better time than the present be found in which to institute the reform that is needed. We hope that the Dominion and local authorities will at once come to a decision about the matter and immediately adopt a reasonable and consistent measure in this regard.

Our Public Schools.

REMEMBERING that the Chief Superintendent of Education has been in office but a few months, we shall not criticise his report from the Opposition point of view. It is pleasing to note that in the presentation of the statistics he has followed very closely upon the lines laid down by his predecessors. The number of school districts in the Province at the end of 1891 was 442, or three more than at the same date of last year; and the number of school departments was 531,—an increase of one. There has been a gradual diminution of the number of vacant schools. Last year not a single school was vacant. The blessings of free school education were general throughout the Province. The number of teachers employed was 531—268 men and 253 women;—227 teachers were employed in Queen's County, 169 in Prince and 135 in King's.

Of pupils there were 22,330 enrolled—two hundred less than last year. But the percentage of attendance was larger by 2.32—the daily average being 12,898 in 1891 and 12,490 in 1890. Upon this point the Superintendent remarks :

"This is particularly gratifying from the fact, that one of the greatest difficulties the teacher has to encounter is irregularity of attendance. The best matured plans for the advancement of his school are often defeated, his own energies and ardor not infrequently dampened from this cause. A few of the evils arising from irregularity are: (1) Its effects upon the classification of the school, The irregular attendant needs additional attention from the teacher in order to bring him up to the average standing of his class. This can only be given at the expense of the other pupils. (2) The pupil who sees his classmates advanced into higher classes while he, from no fault of his own is left behind, is discouraged, perhaps disgusted with his studies and is often led to abandon the school with a very indifferent education. (3) True education is a matter of steady and well directed effort. The want of clearness in any part of a subject affects the thoroughness of a pupil's knowledge in regard to the whole. How then can there be any accuracy or precision with the many breaks which frequent absence from school necessarily produces?"

The following comparative statement is given to show the number of pupils in each subject for 1890 and 1891 :

	1890.	1891.	Inc.	Dec.
Primer and Book I	5,727	5,590		157
Books II and III.	6,837	6,728		109
Book IV	4,690	4,438		252
Book V	4,472	4,038		434
Book VI	797	1,401	704
Writing	18,487	17,828		659
Arithmetic	19,231	18,837		394
Grammar	10,818	10,595		223
History	8,934	8,780		154
Geography	11,556	11,192		364
Orthography	13,852	13,611		241
Composition	8,201	8,292	92
Music	4,728	4,021		707
Book-keeping	82	109	27
Drawing	1,699	3,311	1,612
Agriculture	256	760	504
Latin	471	992	521
Greek	20	3		17
French	2,152	2,004		148
Algebra	526	921	395
Geometry	393	788	395
Nat'ral Philosophy	170	269	99

This statement is worthy of careful attention. It shows a considerable decrease in the number of those learning the lower branches of education—the three R's, and a remarkable increase in the number of those who study the higher branches. It is very pleasing to note that there is shown a large increase in the number of pupils studying the principles of agriculture. The Superintendent truly and aptly remarks :—

"The impression that our public schools are educating our boys and girls away from the farm, has been gaining ground in the minds of our most progressive and intelligent farmers. Let us hope we see in this increase the beginning of a new era when our boys and girls shall grow up with a better knowledge of farm work and of the soil, with a desire to remain on the farm and to excel in the high calling of agriculture. Then, and then only, will the farmer take his true place in the state."

Bookkeeping, too, is a subject of general importance. Every farmer, as well as every man of business, ought to know how to keep his books of account. To the end that our pupil teachers may be specially instructed in the principles of book-keeping, the recommendation of the Superintendent that "Principal Miller, of the Commercial College be employed three or four hours a week to give instruction in this subject in the Prince of Wales College and Normal School," seems to be a good one.

But instruction in the other "higher branches" should be paid for by those who enjoy the great privilege and advantage of being enabled to receive it.

Dr. Anderson, in the course of his report on Prince of Wales College and Normal School, bears testimony to an improvement in the schools throughout the country. He says :

"One remark I must offer, and it affords me great pleasure in doing so, and that is that I have observed in the students who entered in August a great improvement in penmanship and spelling. This, I can say, has afforded me more satisfaction than anything else for several years in connection with the students who have come to us from the various schools of the Province. It is not only a great comfort to examine well written and correctly spelled papers, but it is an unerring evidence that these very important subjects are much more carefully taught than formerly. It also becomes a guarantee that these young people will be able to prosecute work in these subjects when they get schools of their own, with a zeal and intelligence commensurate with their importance."

Our public schools cost last year $111,154.43 —or $2,472.21 less than in the previous year, in which over $3,000 were expended upon the improvement of Prince of Wales College and Normal School,—and nearly $500 more than last year were paid on account of supplements.

The amount voted and expended on account of public school education in the several towns and counties of the Province were as follows :

	S'plmnts	School Buildings.	Con't'gt Exp.
Queen's Co.	$2,604 59	$3,123.78	$4,700.72
Prince Co.	2,468.50	1,767.02	3.245.63
King's Co.	1,529 50	1,660 15	2,415.29
Ch'town	2,395 00		7,456 48
S'side	675.00		1,587,00
Total	$9,672 59	$6,550.95	$19,405.12

The total of the sums thus raised and expended was $35,628 57. By adding this amount to the amount expended by the Government $111,144.43) we find that our public schools cost last year $146,783.00.

There are several other points in the Report on our public schools to which attention ought to be called by THE EXAMINER. We may return to the subject.

—We learn that MR. HUNT is soon to be heard at the bar of the House of Assembly on the subject of temperance teaching in our public schools. There can be no doubt that our public men will be none the worse for a little gentle stirring in respect to this subject.

CONCERT LAST NIGHT.—We must congratulate Mr. Hawley upon the success of the concert given under his direction in the Philharmonic Hall last evening. It was an exceedingly pleasant affair, and every one who was present appeared satisfied with the manner in which the programme was carried out. The vocal solos by Miss Earle and Mr. Davison were well given and deservedly applauded, as were also the piano duet by Messrs. Hawley and Heartz, and the piano solo by Mr. Heartz. Miss A. Stentiford's recitation was capitally given, and the autoharp selections by a group of young ladies were greatly appreciated. Every one knows how well Rev. Mr. Carruthers and Mr. John McPherson render their numbers, and it goes without saying that the readings by them last night were well given. The performance was brought to a close with selections from the cantata, "The Haymakers," which were splendidly given, and the singing of the National Anthem.

I happen to know not only that Mrs. Hunt was once a professor of Chemistry, but that by the best title she has herself a right to speak as an expert on every branch connected with this theme of scientific temperance education. If you should be favored, as I have been with the sight of her library, you would have to go far and look long to find another equal to it on the topic of the scientific relations of the temperance cause. I do not know where on either side of the Atlantic anyone can be found whose opinions are more worthy of being received as thoroughly trustworthy from a scientific point of view on this whole topic than Mrs. Hunt's are to-day. Mrs. Hunt's success in making scientific temperance instruction compulsory in all but nine States of the Union and the National Government is an eighth wonder of the world, although she is a modest lady, and is not as often heralded by the press in her travels and in her sacrifice and successes in Legislation halls, as she should be. I doubt not that her name is destined to sparkle on the extended forefinger of history when a better age than ours makes up its jewels.—Joseph Cook, in Boston Monday Lectures.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Additional Protests.

SIR,—The first teaching I ever received concerning the efficacy of the death of Christ and the propriety of observing one day in commemoration of His dying love was from the people called Methodists. It is, therefore, with extreme sorrow that I notice a "Grand Tea and Fancy Sale" is to be held on that day in aid of the Second Methodist Church—a Church which I have so often attended, and where I have learned much in the way of holiness. What, I ask, is Methodism coming to? Has it only lived to unlearn the good old ways the devout and holy observances of its founder and first messengers of salvation. Surely the Methodists have not so learned Christ? The early Methodists did not spend Good Friday as a day of worldly pleasure—a day for feasting on ice cream or holding fancy sales. No. They knew themselves better. They observed it as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer; a day for dwelling upon the boundless love of Jesus, and His all-sufficient sacrifice. They observed it as a day of intercession for the conversion of sinners, and for imploring God's mercy upon themselves. Alas! that they have so soon lost their first love! But some may say Good Friday is no more than any other day. In one sense this is quite true. It is no more than any other day to those who know little of the love of Jesus, and to those who do not think it necessary to set apart one day for thinking seriously of His passion and death. Again, people may say that God has only commanded us to keep holy the Sabbath day. But I ask, are we on that account to have no week day services? Will God be displeased if we set apart a day for seriously thinking about what He has done for us? No true Christian can possibly think so. And what day I ask can be more suitable for this than Good Friday—a day on which millions of Christians (including the vast majority of Protestants) commemorate the death of their Saviour. Every true Methodist knows the blessedness of observing this day devoutly, and I hope many will still continue to keep it as their forefathers did. Let those who love the memory of John Wesley and the good "old paths" go to the House of God on that day and not to the "grand tea." A humane feeling, to say the least, and a little consideration for the better instincts of their brethren, might have chosen a more suitable day for such a festival. But it is not yet too late to change it, and I sincerely hope they will do so. It pains me very much to have to write in this manner, and nothing but a sincere love for the truth would prompt me to do so.

A PRIMITIVE METHODIST.

SIR,—I am glad to see a protest against the proposed Good Friday Tea and Fancy Sale. Surely our Methodist friends must have chosen that day without taking into consideration the feelings of a large number of their fellow citizens, for I am certain they would not wantonly give offence in such a matter, and are not we Christians already sufficiently divided without any further breach being made? Will not, then, the managers reconsider their determination and transfer their entertainment to Easter week?

If the advertisement had simply announced a Tea, etc., on Friday, April 15th, we might have thought it was an oversight—but Good Friday is the name of the day which many Christians (Protestants as well as Catholics) observe as the anniversary of the death of Jesus Christ, and to have an entertainment advertised for that day seems to us a slight put on the memory of our Lord.

Let me put it to our friends in this way: Suppose the Roman Catholics, for instance, advertised a Fancy Sale on April 30th, no one would feel aggrieved; but if they put at the head of their posters: "Anniversary of the Death of John Wesley—Grand Tea, lots of fun," etc., the Methodists would very rightly consider that offence was intended to be given them and their founder.

A LOVER OF CHRISTIAN UNITY.

SIR,—Will you allow one who laments any interference with the solemnity of Good Friday, to express a hope that the Methodists will yet see their way clear to hold their Tea and Fancy Sale on some other day.

A CHRISTIAN WOMAN.

Personal.

Mr. H. J. Macdonald, who has been spending the winter with his friends at Greenvale, left this morning for Duluth, Minn.

We are delighted to learn that Dr. Dorsey, whose success was chronicled by THE EXAMINER a few days ago, has, in a competition with fifteen other students, won an appointment to Bellevue Hospital, New York—the largest hospital in the world, with 730 patients at the present time. Dr. Dorsey is the only Islander who ever won this distinction—a distinction which is not due to wealth or influence but to practical ability alone. The position will afford ample opportunity to perfect himself in his profession. Again we congratulate Dr. Dorsey.

Mr. Geo. A. Dixon, of New Glasgow N. S., arrived here on a business trip yesterday.

Captain Ronald McMillan left this morning for the Old Country via New York to purchase a steamer to take the place of the William lost last fall. Captain McMillan's enterprise is worthy of commendation.

Mr. G. Frank Beer, of the firm of Beer Bros, has returned from his business trip to the Old Country. He was a passenger in the Stanley yesterday.

Hon. D. L. Hanington, ex-premier of New Brunswick has been appointed judge of the supreme court of that province, vice Wetmore deceased.
