SIX WEEKS ABROAD.

Interesting Chat with Councillor McKay.

Where He Went and the Islanders He Met.

Saw no Place he Preferred to his Island Home.

Councillor W. D. McKay and Benjamin Heartz, Esq., returned from their trip abroad on Monday evening, looking hale and hearty. Messrs. McKay and Heartz were away about six weeks. During their absence they visited the Canadian and American Northwests, coming back by way of California, the Western States and Boston. Both are intelligent, wide-awake men, and are close observers. They travelled with their eyes open, and very little escaped them that was worth taking note of.

Shortly after Mr. McKay's return, like the careful man of business that he is he betook himself to his office to see how things had been going along in his absence. It was there THE EXAMINER's reporter found him, up to his eyes in business, a few minutes after the clock had ceased striking the hour of nine. After the usual greetings had been exchanged, the reporter explained to Mr. McKay that he had called to see if he would tell THE EXAMINER something about his trip—with particular reference to the country through which he had passed, the Islanders he met, and kindred other matters of interest to the public generally. Mr. McKay did not care for being interviewed, and it was not without a good deal of reluctance that he placed himself at the disposal of the reporter "for a few minutes only."

"Well," said he in response to the first question put to him, "I left Charlottetown on the morning of the 11th of April, in company with Martin McLean, son of William McLean, Esq., of the Merchants' Bank of Prince Edward Island, and arrived in St. John the same evening. We remained there all night and the next day. On the evening of the second day we were joined by my mother, Dr. Taylor, Mr. Heartz and a number of other Island friends, and from there we went over the well-equipped C. P. R. clean through to the Pacific coast."

"Where did you stop next?" "Montreal was our first stopping place after leaving St. John, and the next was Winnipeg. Our stay in Montreal was very short. Myself, Dr. Taylor, Mr. Heartz and Mr. McLean remained in Winnipeg two days, the others proceeded on their way. We saw several Islanders in Winnipeg, and all appeared to be doing very well. Mr. W. W. McLeod, Post Office Inspector, whom we met there was very kind to us during our stay, devoting considerable time to showing us about the city and suburbs. Winnipeg is certainly a good place, and is fully abreast of the times."

"Where did you go from Winnipeg?" "We went through to Moosejaw. At Portage la Prairie, a former Charlottetonian, Daniel Macdonald, got on the train with us and came along as far as Brandon. Mr. Macdonald, as you know, is a lawyer. Perhaps you are not aware, however, that he is also interested in farming, and is making money out of that business, as well as out of the practice of the legal profession. Mr. Macdonald is enthusiastic in his praises of the country, and is a very prominent man out there."

"What about Moosejaw?" "We stopped over at Moosejaw some time. There are several big ranches at that place. My brother-in-law, J. H. Ross, is engaged ranching and farming there. Ross is an Ontario man, and has been out there several years. He has evidently been quite successful, and is now speaker of the Northwest Council which meets at Regina."

"What was your first stopping place after leaving Moosejaw?" "We next stopped over at Calgary, spending three days there. We left Dr. Taylor there. Calgary is quite a fine place, at least that is what those who live there and claim to know what they are talking about tell us. It is a great ranching section, and seems to be the place where all the ranchers get their supplies. We met several Islanders there who appeared to be doing well. There is a branch railway running from Calgary to Edmonton, through a beautiful stretch of country, a piece of territory which, to my mind, is the best in the whole Northwest."

"Where did you go next?" "We next went to Golden—between the Rockies and the Selkirk—taking a steamer up the river about one hundred miles to Kootenay Lakes."

"Isn't this about where the steamer broke down, and you and Mr. Heartz lost your way in the woods," put in the reporter. "No it isn't," replied Mr. McKay, "we met with no such mishap as you refer to. The first we heard about the affair was at Point du Chene-to-day. There is not a word of truth in the silly story published in the Patriot."

"Well, now that we have disposed of that little sea issue let me hear how you passed your time in the Kootenay Lakes region," continued the reporter. "We visited several ranches during our ten days stay in that beautiful section of country. My people live there and are engaged farming and ranching. They are the only persons from the Island there, and they have been fairly successful. I am interested in one or two of the ranches myself. We had a very pleasant time while there shooting and fishing and riding over the country on horse back."

"Where did you go from there?" "We next went to Vancouver, B. C., where we remained three or four days. Vancouver is a nice town, but like almost all the rest of the Northwest towns it has the appearance of having grown too quickly, of being ahead of the present population of the country. There we met Albert H. McNeill, son of Rev. Donald McNeill, of this city. He has a law office there and is doing well. He has lately made quite a name for himself as a result of winning an important case in the courts. We also met Captain Malcolm McLeod there. He and Mr. R. F. Anderson, another Islander, are engaged in the real estate and mining business, and are meeting with success. Simon Mason, who was formerly in the employ of G. H. Taylor, is in the watchmaking and jewelry business on his own account, and has been very successful. James Peake is also there, and is apparently doing well. He looks as bright and as happy as ever. Every person knows him and everyone appears to like him. We also met Rev. J. M. McLeod, Mrs. McLeod and Miss McLeod, the Frasers and their families, the Brown brothers, of Stanley Bridge, and their families, A. H. B. Macgowan, Henry Boyer, Sgt. Heywood, head of the police force, and several other Islanders. All appear to be well and happy. Henry Boyer is farming, and came twenty-five miles to the hotel to see us. The Brown brothers are in the grocery business. Chief of Police Heywood and Mr. McNeill were very kind to us during our stay in Vancouver. They were with us a good deal of the time, driving us about and showing us the principal points of interest in and about the city.

"What did you do with yourselves after you left Vancouver?" "We went to San Francisco, stopping on the way at Seattle and Portland, Oregon. We were only a few hours at Seattle and did not meet any Islanders. We were a day at Portland and saw several Islanders there who were apparently doing very well. Cowan McLean, son of Peter's Bay, is in charge of an electric light company, and Finlay McNeill, formerly of Summerside, is in the railway employ."

"How long did you stay in San Francisco?" "We were there several days. We visited Senator Stanford's place, the famous Palo Alto, and saw all the highly-bred stock there. There was one stallion called Advertiser that he refused $168,000 a short time before, which, judging by appearances, was not worth much more than DeCoursey's Billy. But the blood was there all the same—and blood tells every time. During our stay in San Francisco we met a number of Islanders. Alfred Bryenton is clerk in a dry goods store, the Perkins' brothers are in the dry goods business, W. F. Mobs and J. Higgins are running a grocery store, Charles Crockett is on the Detective force, and so on. All are apparently doing well."

"What direction did you go in after leaving San Francisco?" "To Salt Lake City and thence to Leadville where we met the Campion brothers, formerly of Souris. They are engaged in the mining business, and are making money lively. They have now about a dozen working mines under their control, and are about opening up new ones. They are also the prime movers in a project for tunneling the city to carry the water from the mines. This tunnel will be four miles long, and will cost some $5,000,000. I expect to hear that the work of constructing this tunnel will soon be commenced."

"After Leadville where?" "From Leadville we went to Colorado Springs, thence to Denver and Chicago and home by way of Boston. We met Dr. Taylor again at Leadville and left him at Colorado Springs. While in Chicago we went through the World's Fair Buildings. From Colorado all the way through to Chicago the country was under water. It had been raining continuously for several weeks, and everything was decidedly water-soaked. The train had to move along so slowly owing to the water on the track that we were a day late getting into Chicago, and along the line cattle were perishing for the want of sustenance."

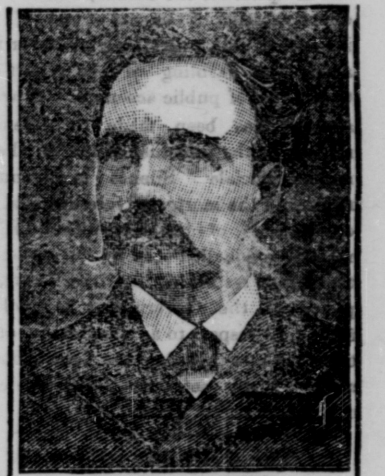

"What do you think of the country through which you passed as compared with your Island home?" "I want to say just this—that during my whole trip I did not see a place that I would prefer to the Island. My advice to any farmer who is doing fairly well on the Island is to stay there. But to a person who has the moving fever real bad and must leave the Province, I would say go to the Canadian Northwest by all means, as for farming country, out along the line of the Island, it beats any place we saw in our travels. Mr. Heartz, who is a practical agriculturist, tells me he would not exchange his farm on the Island for anything he saw while abroad."

"That's my opinion," said Mr. McKay, "and as it is getting late perhaps we had better adjourn this meeting." Suiting the action to the word he prepared to leave the office. "Wait a moment, Mr. McKay, one word more," said the reporter. "Well, what is it?" asked he turning about. "What about a lee?" "None of that for me," said Mr. McKay smiling, as he passed out of the door leaving the reporter alone with the clerk who was waiting to close up for the night, and whose patience was becoming pretty well exhausted at the length of the session.

In addition to this, I was troubled as follows: 1st a lame Back and Kidney trouble, 2d, Dyspepsia, 3d, Flatulency and an all-over feeling; 4th, Distress at pit of Stomach; 5th, Headache and Dizziness; 6th, Muscular Rheumatism in Chest so I had to lie in bed for several weeks at a time. THE Government of the Dominion of Canada has accepted the invitation of the Government of the United States to take part in the World's Columbian Exposition, to be held in Chicago from 1st May to 31st October, 1893. An Executive Commissioner for Canada has been appointed, who will have the general charge of the exhibits and the allotment of space, and the several Provincial Governments have been invited to co-operate with the view of making the exhibition as complete and satisfactory as possible.

The Dominion Government will pay the transport of exhibits and returning, and for the placing of articles sent.
Entries must be made not later than 31st July. The receipt of articles at the Exposition buildings will commence 1st November, 1892, and all exhibits, excepting Live Stock, must be in place by 1st April, 1893.
