A DICKENS CHARACTER.

THE "ARTFUL DODGER" LIVES IN GOTHAM.

Some of the Bad Boys of Our Neighbors' Big City—Juvenile Pickpockets and Sneak Thieves as They are Turned Out of an American Crook Academy.

Among our neighbors over the boundary line, where crime is of course more rampant than in peaceful, law-abiding Canada, some queer criminals flourish.

The "Artful Dodger" of Dickens's "Oliver Twist," has an exact counterpart in New York.

An organized gang of juvenile pickpockets and sneak thieves, as carefully trained and as thoroughly organized as any command.

In many respects the artful little criminal resembles the old Cockney's gang.

They all contribute to a common fund which is banked by the boss. They work in sets of three and four, each one having his special duty.

Two "stealers," one "dipper" and a "passer" form a set. They are bound together by fear of the power of the "boss" or gang.

They firmly believe that the life of a "squealer" is not worth a moment's purchase.

Bill Sikes, of the story, is represented by one or two burly bullies who live upon the boys' "earnings."

But the ruling mind all this is the modern Artful Dodger of this wicked young crew.

This precocious prince of pickpockets first achieved an unenviable notoriety in May last.

On the thirteenth day of that month two Police-lads, Michael Mendelovich and Bernard Kapsky, were arrested for stealing a pocketbook from a Mrs. Mary Conroy, in Central Park.

They professed to be perfect strangers to the boy to the other. This is an essential part of the scheme taught in Solomon's school of thieving.

Kapsky, the elder of the boys, who gave his name as Mendelovich, indignantly repudiated the idea of his being a thief.

He claimed that he worked hard for an honest man called Solomon. The proof of his hard work was found on his person in the shape of Mrs. Conroy's pocketbook.

Mendelovich, the younger boy, stoutly stood out for his honesty at first, but when he found himself in the hands of the Gerry school for an indefinite period he expressed his willingness to "give the boys a hand."

His story was reached over her with his right hand and made a grab at a pair.

At the same time she felt his left hand slip under her coat and saw him snatch a small shawl shawl by keeping ourselves well fortified by pure blood and a properly nourished frame.

OLD TIME HANGING.

TREY STRUNG THEM UP HALF A CENTURY AGO.

An Execution Then Was a Sort of Public Picnic—All the Country-side Gathered to Witness It—Disgraceful Scenes Around the Scaffold.

Executions half a century ago were not restricted, as they are now, to the prison yard, in the presence of a limited number of witnesses, but were celebrated conspicuously on an open field, before a large and often rollicking and tumultuous crowd of spectators.

Such a body I remember to have seen gathered on such an amphitheatre more than sixty years ago to witness the hanging of a murderer. The man was a farm hand, and well known. When under the influence of strong drink he was sullen, turbulent and ungovernable; but when sober he was so proverbially quiet and inoffensive that he was the easy-going but of his associates.

While at work one day in harvest time he was carrying a limited number of sheaves to a barn near town, he drank freely and became tipsy; whereupon one of his comrades indulged in long-continued and rough horse-play at his expense, till his excess of passion inflamed by rum he turned upon his tormentor and slew him on the spot.

Of course he was immediately arrested, and no doubt I shall forget the woe of horror that swept over the little town when the news of the murder was bruited and the victim was carried to the home of his parents in a barn door. During the trial of the homicide the court-house was crowded to overflowing with people, who looked in from the country for miles around to listen to the gruesome details of the slaying and to gaze upon the murderer as he was escorted to and fro by the constables between the jail and the court-house.

For several days immediately preceding the hanging that was before the day of railroads, it should be recalled that multitudes from the country for twenty and more miles around flocked into town to see the execution, and some of them "to turn an honest penny."

On the fatal Friday the "Big Field" surrounding the gallows was fringed with booths and tents for the sale of cakes, pies, small beer and other refreshments, interspersed at frequent intervals with farmers' wagons laden with watermelons, muskmelons, apples, peaches and other fruit, the enterprising vendors of which drove a brisk trade under the very shadow of the fatal tree. It was estimated that on that tragic summer day there were twenty-five thousand people, a large proportion of whom were women and children, were clustered around the gallows to witness the dying throes of the wretched man.

And, thoughtless boy though I was, I was shocked by the horrible indifference to the death of a fellow creature which was manifested, and by the still more horrible jesting, profanity and drunken carousal that were indulged in. It was a saturnalia of brutishness and indifference never to be forgotten.

Longevity of Nuns. Cloistered nuns, writes a Paris correspondent, are said to die early, and those active women of the orders of St. Thomas and St. Vincent de Paul are no exception.

At the funeral of Sister Delphine, a nun of the order of St. Vincent de Paul, who died at the age of 102, the nun was engaged in the cholera wards of the Hotel Dieu in 1822, she refused to leave her active service, and has three times volunteered to attend small-pox patients during epidemics.

Sister Rosalie, who organized the French military Landwehr service in the Crimea, lived to a great age. The other day the golden wedding of Sister Delphine (the nun's name) was celebrated at Romeville. She was a full year a novice before she took the black veil, and has been fifty years a school teacher. Sister Delphine is thirty years old when she determined to take the veil.

By the rules of the order of St. Vincent de Paul the nuns are not allowed to aspire to extraordinary riches, but they are permitted to accumulate a considerable fortune. Such efforts might feed pride and cause self-righteousness. The teaching is that those who want to be angels before God call them to higher world are able to fall lower than ordinary mortals.

A Unique Lottery Record. A Japanese student living in Brooklyn has had some curious news from his home in Nikko. It appears that his cousin has won the first prize in a government lottery, and, by so doing, has been sent abroad to travel for ten years, with a handsome allowance, which is to be paid him every three months by one of the many substantial banks in Japan. If he returns to Japan for more than one month in each year he forfeits the allowance, and it also stipulated that at least half of the time spent abroad must be in the various countries in Europe. The second prize was five years' travel, and the third prize one year's travel, on the same allowance, but the conditions were that all the time must be spent in Europe. This certainly is the most unique lottery on record, and the most commendable.

Telephones in Church. Supporters of the telephonic system in Birmingham can now be placed in communication with Christ church in that city and practically take part in the services.

The telephone wires run straight into the pulpit, and the listeners at the other end of the system can hear the tolling of the bell, the prayers, the responses, the singing, and the sermon. Even casual congregants among the congregation can be distinguished. There are many classes of persons who when they hear the sermon, find a great boon. The sick and bedridden, who have been prevented from attending any place of worship, can now be present, if not in flesh, in the hearing.

The Figny Cattle of Samoa. The Samoan Islands are the natural habitat of the most diminutive species of variety of the genus Bos now known to the naturalist. The weight of the males of these ill-fated cattle seldom exceeds two hundred pounds, the average being not greater than one hundred and fifty pounds.

The female specimens average about one hundred pounds larger, are very stocky built, seldom being taller than a merino sheep. These dwarf cattle are nearly all of the same color—reddish mouse color, marked with white. They have very large heads as compared with their bodies and their horns are of exceptional length.

Trouting Records. Robert J. 2,011.3; Joe Fitcher, 2,041. Robert J. 2,012.1. What next? John R. Gentry, record 2,018.3.

Robert J. has not reached his limit. Haley, 2,185.4, is Nelson's best trouting. There are fifteen mile tracks in Iowa. 2,003.4; 2,012.1; 2,012.1; 2,012.1.

The best is Pond's Extract, because it is the strongest, purest and most uniform article made. Note bottles with buff wrap.

Owing to lack of money about five hundred officers of the police department of Chicago are to be discharged.

The advance guard of negro emigrants for Liberia, Africa, has started from Birmingham, Alabama.

For children's coughs and colds Hawk er's balsam of tolu and wild cherry is unequalled. It is the children's favorite.
