"SAMSON AND DELILAH" AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

Spectacular was the adjective used in advance reports to describe Cecil B. DeMille's "Samson and Delilah," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, and spectacular is the right word for this mammoth Technicolor attraction that reaches new heights in screen entertainment.

Magnificence, splendor, excitement, romance, adventure, thrills, suspense, beauty, great acting, memorable scenes—you name it and this great Paramount picture based on the Holy Bible, Judges 13-16, has it. And has it in such quantities that "Samson and Delilah" is destined to go down in history as one of the most amazing film achievements of all time.

As the mighty Samson, Victor Mature turns in a remarkable portrayal that is almost unbelievably perfect. He not only looks the part of the strong man of Gaza, but plays it so convincingly that even his most staggering feats of strength, and there are many, prove wholly acceptable to the imagination. And his scenes with Miss Lamarr, too, have that same quality of credibility and sincerity. It is, without a doubt, the finest performance of Mature's career. Breath-takingly beautiful in her first Technicolor picture, Hedy Lamarr is a provocative Delilah. It is easy to see why any man would be completely unable to resist her ravishing and seductive charms. But the Viennese star does more than just look beautiful in "Samson and Delilah." Her portrayal of the Bible's famed temptress is an inspired bit of acting that comes through on the screen with a raging passion almost overpowering in its intensity.

oil is made through the Red Cross and is a very small charge to the pupil. The Red Cross has made another offer to the teachers for their pupils, a tube of tooth-paste and a toothbrush for the small charge of 25 cents, this is to encourage children to brush their teeth after meals in order to preserve them.
