30,000 Lbs. Fish Carried To Bottom With Cape Bear

SOURIS — The Eastern Fisheries 60-foot dragger, Cape Bear, was carrying about 30,000 lbs. of mixed fish when it sank Thursday.

Submerged ice had been listed as the probable cause of the sinking of the Souris-based dragger captained by Jacques Gallant and manned by a crew of four.

When the trouble was first noted, the Cape Bear, Richard and Brian and the Virginia Ann were steaming from the coast of Cape Breton to St. George's Bay, Newfoundland, approximately 150 yards apart. Ice conditions were good in that particular area enabling the Richard and Brian to get alongside the Cape Bear in approximately five minutes following the call for help. The pumps were not working fast enough to keep ahead of the water.

The nearest port, Cheticamp, Nova Scotia, was filled with ice, preventing the possibility of towing. The crews of the draggers began salvaging all possible equipment. In about three hours from the time the trouble was noted, the vessel went down.

The Cape Bear was captained by Jacques Gallant and manned by a crew of four. The Richard and Brian is captained by Richard MacIntyre of Souris and owned by Usen Fisheries of Souris.

Board Of Accreditation Approved By Engineers

The Canadian Council of Professional Engineers decided here yesterday to approve the setting up of a Canadian Accreditation Board.

The board, whose purpose would be to establish national standards for the engineering profession, will be set up "within a year or two," a spokesman for the meeting said.

The decision was made at the council's annual meeting held yesterday and Thursday at the Charlottetown Hotel.

Another resolution made gave the council's support to the profession's participation in Expo '67. The council will urge Canada's 47,000 engineers to contribute to the financing of the project, to be handled by younger engineers. No definite decision as to the nature of the project has been made, although there have been various suggestions on ways to "express the contribution of the engineering profession to man and his world."

U.S. DELEGATES

Among some 40 delegates and observers attending the meeting were four Americans: L. W. Ruth, California, president elect of the National Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners; J. H. Sands, North Carolina, NCSBEE executive secretary; N. L. Freeman, New York, representing the New York State Board of Engineering Examiners; and P. H. Robbins, Washington, executive director of the National Society of Professional Engineers.

All provinces of Canada, as well as the Yukon Territory, were represented at the meeting. Local delegates were Ted Chandler and Bruce MacLennan.

Next year the council holds its annual meeting in Vancouver.

In our election of officers L. F. Kirkpatrick, of Nova Scotia, was chosen president of the council. Other members of the new executive are, W. M. Armstrong, British Columbia, vice-president; R. Genereux, Saskatchewan, member of the executive committee; and M. F. McDougall, Alberta, past president. The executive serves for one year.
