The Song of the Grain.

I was dry and dusty,
I was weak and lusty;
Now I'm glad and lusty,
And the earth looks chery.
Oh, the soaking,
Mirth-provoking,
Laughter-making rain;
Soft and silky,
Mild and milky,
Grows my golden grain.

Listen to the laughter
That my leaves are making,
When the wind comes after
Kisses, softly shaking.
Oh, health-giving,
Breathing, living,
Heaven-pouring rain;
Come, caress me,
Kiss me, bless me,
Once and once again!

Let your hearts be singing;
Peal your psalms, peoples;
Set the joy-bells ringing
In the lofty steeples.
Praises render
To the sender
Of the joyous rain;
Of the living,
The life-giving,
Of the precious rain.

New Glasgow Jottings.

The annual association of the Disciples of Christ met this year at New Glasgow. Last Saturday a goodly number of delegates and visitors arrived at Hunter River, where teams were in readiness to convey them to our happy homes. On Sunday Rev. Mr. Weaver preached in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Harding in the evening. Both sermons were characterized by breadth of thought and earnestness. The services were held in the new Christian church, which was filled to overflowing on both occasions. On Monday a business meeting was held. During the week special evangelistic services were conducted by Rev. Messrs. Wallace, of California, Crawford, of New Glasgow, and Emory, of Ch'town. The meetings, which were largely attended, were interesting; and highly successful.

We are pleased to see Dr. Isaac McMillan in our midst, looking well after his college course. On dit that he will shortly proceed to Massachusetts to practice the healing art. We trust he will prove to be a worthy follower of Esculapius.

While many school districts have reduced the supplements, rise on last year of $25 was voted here at the annual meeting. The same teachers have been engaged for the present year.

Prof. Robinson, of Prince of Wales, and Mr. H. Shaw, of McGill, paid us a flying visit the other day. It is their intention to do the western half of the Island.

Mr. T. F. Norton, formerly of the High School, but now of Kentucky University, has also been with us for a few days. We are all glad to see him; he is still an Islander, and appears to have resolutely refused to be affected by the southern sun or the southern accent.

The Division, with Miss Bessie Smith for W. P., still maintains its former record.

Literary Notes.

Prof. David B. Todd, of Amherst College, will describe in the August Century an ascent of Fuji-san, the sacred mountain of Japan. His expedition was one of several which have been made possible by the bequest of a wealthy and eccentric Boston gentleman, who left a fortune of $200,000 to a Board of Trustees, with discretionary power to employ it in establishing and maintaining an astronomical observatory on some mountain peak. The fund is now managed by the Harvard College Observatory, and experimental research has been conducted in high altitudes in different parts of the globe in order to show the precise nature of the improved conditions of vision, and to ascertain the best location for the mountain observatory.

As for the Wilmot Spa, Ginger Ale, Lemonade, and the new drinks—Fruit Squash, Lime Fruit, Champagne, Cinchona Bitters, all delicious and wholesome.

Curious Wills.

A recent writer has been unearthing curious wills and unique cases of dying wishes as embodied in parchment. The oldest extant will is said to be one discovered by Mr. Petrie in Egypt, dated in ancient characters, signifying 2250 years B. C. Prior to this the will of Sennacherib, who died in 680 B. C., was the oldest known document of the kind. In the history of testamentary literature since that time may be found illustrated all the eccentricities of the human mind. The misanthrope, the hypocrite, the crank and the fool are all in evidence. Even poets have their falling, as the following will made by William Hunnis, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, will prove:

To God my soul I do bequeath, because it is his own,
My body to be laid in grave, where to my friends best known;
Executors I will none make; thereby great stryfe may grow,
Because the goods that I shall leave will not pay all I owe.

The will of Rubelais, or the one assumed to be his, breathes the very spirit of his works: "I have no available property; I owe a great deal; the rest I give to the poor." "Fierce invective and bitter hate are often shown, as in the following codicil to a will preserved in the probate court of Charlottetown, S. C.:

"As I am to be hung to-morrow for the murder of —, of which crime I am innocent, and firmly believing that I was found guilty by a pecked jury, I hereby bequeath to this jury eternal damnation, and in order that their names may be known to posterity, I hereby insert them." (Then followed the names of the foremen and eleven others.)

A certain French merchant mixed generosity and malice in a rather unique fashion. In leaving a handsome fortune to a lady, who, twenty years before, had refused to marry him, he explained that it was an expression of his gratitude to her for her forbearance and sagacity in leaving him in a happy bachelor life of independence and freedom. Many similar cases are on record. A certain Dr. Dunlop bequeathed to his brother-in-law his best pipe out of gratitude that he married "my sister Jane, whom no man of taste would have taken."

Still more curious, though innocent of bitterness, was the will of an Englishman who would not allow his remains to be buried underground "because he did not wish to be eaten by his relatives." The explanation of his ratiocinative mind was that "the worms would eat him, the ducks would eat the worms, and my relatives would eat the ducks." And very light-hearted was the Parisian philosopher who inserted the following clause in his testament: "It is my will that any one of my relatives who shall presume to shed tears at my funeral shall be disinherited; he who laughs most heartily shall be the principal heir."

The story goes that his grandfather won through pricing an artificial hilarity by basely inhaling nitrous oxide gas.

But for sheer levity, few wills can compare with that of the wealthy New Yorker, a cousin of the Vanderbilts, whom left every dollar he possessed to a girl who he used to watch in the theatre, and whom he did not even know. The only reason given for his strange freak was that her turned-up nose amused him. Frivolity, however, is a characteristic of French wills, and the foregoing was equalled by a bright specimen of the race, who provided in his will that a new cooking recipe should be pateted on his tomb each day.

Perhaps the oddest of all arrangements is that of the Finn, who left his entire property to the Devil. As Mr. Walsh, the writer from whom we are quoting, says, Finland is now probably the only country where the Devil is a full fledged land-owner. But instances might be quoted in endless succession, and death seems by no means to end the singular combination of folly, eccentricity and bitterness of which life is ordinarily so full.

A SUIT WITHDRAWN.—One of the most bitter Canadian politicians, a well-known Ontario ex-member of Parliament, who, through his public career, has spared neither the political or personal reputation of his opponents, has undergone a painful experience. He was in the House of Commons last year where he made things lively for his opponents as usual; but in the by-election which followed the judgment of the election court, he found himself placed on the defensive on a great moral question. He was met in the campaign with a charge made by two or more persons, who accused him of the commission of a criminal offence, involving the disgrace and untimely death of an orphan child of whom he was the guardian. The politician denounced the accusers as slanderers and took legal proceedings against them. The suit has gone through certain preliminary stages, the defendants undertaking to substantiate their allegations. The evidence of a former servant of the plaintiff has been taken by a commission, as the witness was believed to be not likely to live long. And now a journal published in the village where the parties live, states that the ex member has withdrawn the suit, paying all the defendant's costs in order that the evidence heard by the commissioners should be kept off the records. The journal in question asserts that the evidence would have substantiated the original charge, and that the course of the plaintiff is a confession of his guilt of a dastardly and fiendish crime. After repeating in the strongest form the allegations which led to the suit for libel, the local paper invites the politician to resent its expressions in any way he sees fit. It may be remarked that the candidate who opposed the politician not only refused to repeat the charges, but desired his friends not to bring the subject up in any private or public way during the canvass.—St. John Sun.

SKODA'S DISCOVERY contains MORE SARSAPARILLA than any Sarsaparilla made.

"People said I would die!" A TERRIBLE CASE OF Blood Poisoning! SKODA VICTORIOUS!

THE FOLLOWING CASE WILL BE YOUNG FOR BY MANY OF THE BEST CITIZENS OF BELFAST, AND THE CURE THAT FOLLOWED IS TRUTHFULLY RECORDED.

"For months I had been a great sufferer from supposed Blood Poisoning, and its attendant results. My legs would swell to twice their ordinary size, and from my feet to my hips both legs were one solid mass of great purple BLOOD SORES. My arms and body also became covered with these sores. My appetite was lost, and I was unable to eat. People said I would die, and I believed there was no help for me. This was my condition when I began taking SKODA'S DISCOVERY LITTLE TABLETS. I soon commenced to improve. After using these REMEDIES four weeks I had gained fifteen pounds in flesh, and my appetite was excellent. I was able to do my work, and my skin was free from sores and blotches, and only the ugly scars upon my legs tell of my previous trouble." Belfast, Me. CLIFFTON WEST.
